UI 'yes' to workers' consortium irks SAS

Members of the anti-sweatshop group are upset over "legalese and purposely vague language."

By Michael Chapman The Daily Iowan

While UI officials have declared that the university will join the Workers' Rights Consortium, members of the UI Students Against Sweatshops say the UI letter of intent is filled with loopholes.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman sent the letter on March 31 to join the workers' consortium and attend the organization's founding conference in New York Friday.

Coleman made the decision to send the letter after communicating with Maria Roeser, a coordinator for the workers' consortium, said Ann Rhodes, the vice president for university relations.

"I am writing to confirm the UI's agreement in principle to collaborate, through the workers' consortium, with other universities, workers and non-governmental organizations to improve the conditions of textile workers in the United States and abroad, particularly those producing collegiate apparel," Coleman said in the letter.

"I am optimistic that detailed agreements structuring an organization for the workers' consortium that reflects these goals can be developed at the meeting, or shortly thereafter, and that we can move together in pursuit of our shared purpose," she said.

However, SAS members are "very disappointed" with the UI letter of intent, said Ned Bertz, a UI graduate student and SAS member. He said the letter basically allows the UI to go whatever way it chooses after the conference.

"It's a cautious document filled with legalese and purposely vague language," Bertz said. "It doesn't signify any intention to join after the workers' consortium founding meeting."

Rhodes said the letter was written with the proviso that the workers' consortium is consistent with the structure of the organization already determined. The UI would not "absolutely agree" to join the workers' consortium until the final form of the organization is seen.

SAS has called a press conference at 2 p.m. today to discuss its reactions to the UI letter. The group will also announce future action and Bertz's decision on whether or not he will attend the founding conference. Bertz had been invited to represent the UI, along with Marc Beltrame, a law student, law Professor Marcella David and Laraine Carmichael Nelson, the director of student services in the nursing school.

Rhodes said the reason behind sending the letter on the day of the deadline was the time it took to prepare paperwork and draft the letter. The UI also

Anti-SAS group forms at UI

A new UI student group, which opposes the protest tactics of the UI Students Against Sweatshops, has emerged.

Students Against the Methods of Students Against Sweatshops has formed in opposition to the atmosphere promoted by SAS and to inform the student population about current issues, said Joe Obyrcki, a UI sophomore and the co-founder of the group.

"The university seems more than willing to meet in the middle, and SAS seems unwilling to do that," he said.

The UI has already met some of the group's demands, said Obyrcki, citing its decision to send SAS member Ned Bertz to New York as one of the university's representatives, but SAS is still not satisfied.

"The university is extending a huge olive branch in that," he said. "If that is not going to agree with it, then I don't know if anything will."

There are two members of the anti-SAS group and several others who are expressing interest, Obyrcki said. The group feels that SAS "grossly overstepped the bounds" during its protest at UI President Mary Sue Coleman's fireside chat on March 27, he said.

"I'm sorry if they think we're impolite, but sweatshop labor crushes the life out of people their age and younger," said Douglas Anderson, a UI graduate student

Greek Week kicks off with candles, melodies on Pentacrest

The sorority-fraternity event will benefit Greeks and members of the community.

By Kate McGeown Daily Iowan

Approximately 500 UI students gathered on the Pentacrest for an hour of candle-lit singing Sunday evening, marking the beginning of Greek Week.

Greek Sing, part of a week-long celebration involving fraternity and sorority members throughout campus, brings unity to the Greek system, said Vanessa Parks, the president of Sigma Lambda Gamma.

For Parks and Inez Cruz, another member of Sigma Lambda Gamma, Greek Week 2000 is more than just a time to celebrate sisterhood and brotherhood in the Greek system — it will also commemorate their sorority's 10th anniversary.

"We're hoping to disseminate information about our culture and who we are," Cruz said.

The theme for the week, "Enjoy the ride," was influenced by the approaching millennium, said Meghan McHugh, the executive director of Greek Week 2000.

"It gets people to remember the principles of their national organizations," she said. "It symbolizes the ride we've already taken and that which we're about to take in the future."

Allie Daneberg, a graduate student in the office of student life and the adviser for Greek Week, also said the event

Microsoft discussions crash

The antitrust case will now go back to the court room.

By Larry Margasak Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Talks between Microsoft Corp. and government lawyers failed after the company insisted on its own proposal to settle the antitrust lawsuit — not because of disputes between state and federal officials, people familiar with the negotiations said Sunday.

Describing the negotiations as "very complex," Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller said "many factors" led to the breakdown but "the position of the states was not the cause of the failure." Miller has led 19 state attorneys general in their antitrust lawsuit against Microsoft.

The talks broke down on April 1, sending the case back to U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson in Washington, who last fall issued a finding of fact that Microsoft used its monopoly powers to thwart competition. A decision on the lawsuit is expected any day; if Jackson sides with the government, he will begin the lengthy process of determining a penalty that could include a breakup or restructuring of the company.

Sources said government lawyers no longer were insisting on a breakup but that Microsoft refused to accept proposals submitted by the Justice Department and 19 states that sued the company.

Even before the states made new proposals on March 31, "it was clear Microsoft was rejecting the government's proposal and insisting on its own approach," said an individual familiar with the government's position, who would not be quoted by name.

"That approach had a lot of loopholes and would not have been effective."

Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates contended on April 1 that "it became impossible to settle because the

UI officials on lookout for more racist e-mails

A second e-mail, sent to dental school minority students last week, threatened violence and vandalism.

By Ryan Foley The Daily Iowan

Though no new racist e-mails have been received since March 30, a UI official remains confident that investigators will determine the source of the racist messages targeting minority faculty members and students at the College of Dentistry.

The UI has made progress in the investigation, said Ann Rhodes, the vice president for university relations. The origin of the e-mails remains unknown, she said.

"We will make sure that this stops," Rhodes said during a March 31 press conference. "We will absolutely find this person. It might take time, but I believe it will happen."

The UI will take decisive action against the e-mail's sender, she said, which could include expulsion, if the person is a student, or legal action.

David Dobbins, the director of UI information technology services, said the department was using a technique called "reverse engineering" to trace the origin of the e-mails; he would not comment further about the investigation.

The last e-mail, sent to eight minority students in the dental school on March 30, threatened the use of gun violence against the students and said the students and their families should fear for their lives.

It also said the person or people sending the e-mail would be responsible for any vandalism to the cars of the minority students and advised them to stay home from school.

The first e-mail, sent on March 28, demanded that UI officials remove the dental school minority students and mentioned sending other e-mails in three days or a possible bomb threat if nothing happened.

Young Edisons strut their creative stuff

Invent Iowa 2000 brings 368 young inventors to the IMU.

By Rupa Shenoy The Daily Iowan

When Shelby Johnson and Laura Thomas, both fourth graders from Sacred Heart School in Osage, Iowa, were frustrated about not being able to read and study in the car, they took action to solve their problem.

The "Lap Activity Set," a device that allows passengers to color or read in a car without bothering the driver, was one of almost 300 inventions showcased in the IMU Sunday. Inventions ranged from a computer mouse that doesn't cause palms to sweat to portable disco balls.

"The walls on its sides don't let the light distract the driver, and fewer accidents will happen," Johnson said.

The 13th annual Invent Iowa provides a forum for students in grades three through 12 to exhibit inventions and have them judged. Judges looked for originality, usefulness and presentation in addition to the general requirements for a U.S. patent. The UI and Iowa State University engineering schools co-sponsored the event.

Johnson said she was nervous and excited to be one of 30,000 students that participated across Iowa and attempted to qualify for the event. To reach the state level, students must pass through local and regional conventions.

Nick Colangelo, the director of Invent Iowa and of the Belin/Blank international center in the education school, said 368 students participated Sunday, showing off 285 inventions. One hundred seventy-nine schools were represented.

"Most of us bypass the problems these students have thought about and made useful inventions for," he said. "Most of

LAW OF GOLF

Law 1: No matter how bad your last shot was, the worst is yet to come. This law does not expire on the 18th hole because it has the supernatural tendency to extend over the course of a tournament, a summer and, eventually, a lifetime.

Law 2: Your best round of golf will be followed almost immediately by your worst round ever. The probability of the latter increases with the number of people you tell about the former.

Law 3: Brand-new golf balls are water-magnetic. Though this cannot be proven in the lab, it is a known fact that the more expensive the golf ball, the greater its attraction to water.

Law 4: Golf balls never bounce off of trees back into play. If one does, the tree is breaking a law of the universe and should be cut down.

Law 5: No matter what causes a golfer to muffle a shot, all his playing partners must solemnly chant "You looked up," or invoke the wrath of the universe.

Researchers ID area for assessing emotions

A frown, a smile, raised eyebrows, pursed lips — facial expressions can reveal a lot about how a person is feeling. But just what enables us to make the connection between facial expressions and emotions?

For some time, researchers have known that the right hemisphere of the brain was important in judging emotions. Now, UI Health Care investigators have identified specific areas of the brain that aid in the assessment of facial expressions.

According to results of a UI study, right somatosensory-related cortices may help people to "put themselves in other's shoes" and think about how they would feel if they were making similar facial expressions. The UI findings appear in the April 1 issue of the Journal of Neuroscience.

The role of the amygdala in processing emotions has received considerable attention in scientific study, but until the UI investigation, the contribution made by cortical regions within the right hemisphere of the brain had not been well-understood.

I.C. sign of spring: renovating downtown

■ Areas along Linn and College streets will undergo the third phase of downtown revitalization.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

Today marks the beginning of the third phase in the revitalization of downtown Iowa City.

The project will involve new benches, flower pots, light poles, trees and repairs to streets and sidewalks. Phase I and II were completed last summer.

"We decided we should spruce it up before it got shabby," said Iowa City Mayor Ernie Lehman. "We're one of the few cities in the country that has a vibrant, vital downtown."

The first areas to undergo reconstruction are Linn Street between Burlington and Washington streets and College Street between Linn and Gilbert streets.

Plans to improve the downtown area were first discussed six years ago, Lehman said.

The improvements have transformed the downtown area, said Mary Kay Brooks, a UI graduate student.

"I really enjoy it," she said. "A couple of years ago, I didn't spend a lot of time downtown because I didn't like the atmosphere. Now, I visit it routinely."

It has become more family oriented and accommodating for pedestrians, she said.

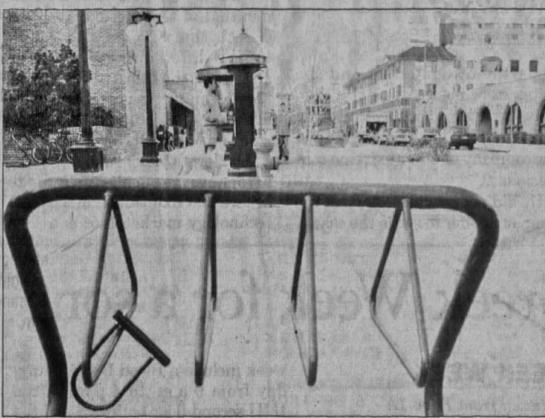

Downtown Iowa City faces the challenge of catering to both families and UI students — a combination that has created a unique quality in the city, Lehman said.

"I think there are a lot of people down here, and they definitely use these facilities," said UI freshman Brittany Mills. "The renovation is definitely a good idea because downtown's not really homey. When I'm down here, I'm not very comfortable."

A problem the city will be working to alleviate was voiced by members of the UI astronomy department, which has two telescopes on top of Van Allen Hall.

They were concerned the glare from the new light poles would hinder viewing the sky, said Rick Fosse, city engineer. Lights along Iowa Avenue, Gilbert and Burlington streets will be hooded to cast the light down and reduce the glare, he said.

"We just want to minimize what's being done," said Wayne Polyzou, a professor of physics and astronomy. "As the city develops, we don't want it to get any worse."

Kirk Murray/The Daily Iowan

Renovation will begin today in some downtown areas.

One lane of traffic on both Linn and College streets will be closed in the areas undergoing construction; access to the city parking ramp and the parking lot adjacent to the Iowa City Public Library will be from the north only.

Construction is expected to be completed in mid to late May. Additional work along Clinton, Gilbert and Burlington streets is expected to begin in late May or early June.

Three-hundred new parking spaces, mostly in the Iowa Avenue ramp, will be available once all improvements are complete, Lehman said.

The city is "hoping" to complete work to fix the kiosks on the Pedestrian Mall, which do not comply with American with Disabilities Association standards, and level the fountain to allow proper drainage by the end of April, Fosse said.

Supreme Court to rule on late abortions

■ A Nebraska law banning late-term abortions, nearly identical to Iowa's, is under scrutiny.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — The U.S. Supreme Court's decision to consider Nebraska's law banning late-term abortions could test a similar law passed in Iowa.

The court will hear arguments later this month in the Nebraska case, in which a law banning late-term abortions was challenged by the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy.

Attorneys and activists agree the law is virtually identical to one passed in Iowa and 28 other states.

Last September, a federal appeals court struck down laws in Nebraska, Iowa and Arkansas. A month later, another federal appeals court upheld nearly identical laws in Illinois and Wisconsin.

The Supreme Court will remedy the conflict by clarifying the extent to which states can prohibit abortions.

"This decision is going to have huge implications for other places," said William Buss, a UI professor of law.

"When they decide the so-called partial-birth abortion issue, they are going to have decided it, and they don't want to decide it 20 times," he said.

Opponents of the law say it is written so broadly that it bans virtually all abortions.

Abortion-rights activists say the Nebraska case will cause justices to view the scope of Roe v. Wade, the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion. They say this year's decision could go straight to the definition of what constitutes an abortion.

"This case, first of all, is potentially a vehicle for overturning Roe v. Wade," said Mark Lambert, an attorney for Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa. "That is a real risk of this case."

Abortion opponents say later-term abortions are not covered by the landmark-court decision.

"If the Supreme Court says this is legal and protected killing, they could have to expand the definition of Roe v. Wade," said Mary Spaulding Balch of the National Right to Life Committee.

CITY & STATE BRIEFS

Stoll assumes reins

As UI Student Government President Andy Stoll gave his inauguration address on April 1, he focused on the past, not the future.

Stoll spent the majority of his speech thanking members of UISG, his family and outgoing UISG President Lana Zak for their time and dedication to the group. "I don't want to let future words to get in the way of what we do," he said.

Despite his being the vice president last year and his background knowledge about the issues, Stoll said, he is somewhat nervous about the added responsibilities.

"I used to be able to pass it off to Lana; I can't anymore," he joked.

During her keynote address, Alice Mathis, the director of the office of student life, called the newly elected candidate's commitment to UISG "genuine" and offered advice on how to become a more effective leader.

In addition to the inauguration of Stoll and Vice President Chris Linn, a group of 23 new student senators were also sworn in for one-year terms.

Zak also reflected during her time in office.

"Last year, we were charged with a new mission to shape a new future by being a progressive institution," she said. "We needed to challenge the administration's decisions and student apathy. I think we did that."

Small fire hits 'homeless shelter'

A fire involving wooden pallets and railroad ties underneath the Benton Street bridge caused only minor damage on April 1.

Four units of the Iowa City Fire Department responded to a fire at approximately 2:45 p.m. underneath the east side of the bridge. Only one engine was needed to get the fire under control, said Iowa City Fire Lt. Larry Kahler.

"It took us about three to five minutes after we arrived to get the fire out," Kahler said. "There is no structural damage to the bridge, just some melted plastic insulation to the waterlines."

The place under the bridge is frequented by homeless people but none were at the scene when the police and Fire Department arrived, said Iowa City police Officer Charles Singleman.

The firefighters were unsure how the fire started or if somebody may have set it, Kahler said.

"It really is impossible to tell how the fire started," he said. "Especially because there is nobody around to ask about this."

Vilsack, GOP look for compromise budget

DES MOINES (AP) — There's an increasing buzz at the Statehouse about the likelihood of a special legislative session, which some predict will be needed to solve a running budget impasse.

While there is little doubt whether Republicans running the Legislature and Democratic Gov. Tom Vilsack are at loggerheads, with little progress to report, the odds favor them finding a solution.

There are conflicts aplenty, but in many fundamental ways the two sides are headed in the same direction. That's easy to forget sometimes in the sound and fury of the rhetoric flying in the political fight.

Stepping back, it becomes apparent.

First, legislative leaders and Vilsack are playing off the same budget book. Both sides agree that state tax collections are slowing, and a budget that only a few months ago was awash in money is now tight.

A Millennium Festival World Premiere

Australian Chamber Orchestra with the Bang on a Can All-Stars

Saturday, April 8, 8 p.m.

The Australian Chamber Orchestra, with pianist Anne-Marie McDermott, will also give a performance Thursday, April 6.

Performance will consist of three sets

- 1 Australian Chamber Orchestra, called "the best chamber orchestra on earth" (The Times, London)
- 2 Bang on a Can All-Stars, with UI graduate Steven Schick, percussionist "It combines the incendiary punch of a garage band with the breathtaking precision of the best chamber group." (Chamber Music)
- 3 A joint set, featuring the premiere of three Hancher-commissioned works by composers Brett Dean, Steve Martland and Bang On A Can founders Julia Wolfe, Michael Gordon and UI alumnus David Lang.

no conceptual baggage allowed

Bang on a Can guitarist Mark Stewart will give a workshop on Thursday, April 6 at West Music Co., 1212 5th Street, Coralville at 5:30 p.m. This is free and open to the public.

Composers David Lang, Julia Woolf and Michael Gordon will give a preperformance discussion in the Hancher Greenroom at 7 p.m. This is free to concert ticketbuyers.

wanted to wait until it knew which Big Ten schools were attending the conference before deciding. The University of Minnesota, University of Michigan, Indiana University and the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, will also attend.

However, Bertz said, the UI's hesitation until the last possible minute to send the letter was a reflection of how much the university cares about the issue.

Bertz said workers' consortium officials met over the weekend to decide whether the letter qualifies the UI to join the meeting; they should reach a decision by this afternoon.

and SAS member.

Student groups opposing others are not uncommon, Anderson said, but student activism has been a catalyst for nationwide changes and local discussions about UI policy concerning sweatshop labor.

The impact of the large number of students who stormed into the fireside chat was part of the many efforts of SAS to use strength in numbers to communicate with the UI, Anderson said.

The anti-SAS group is not taking a stance on sweatshop labor, and it will not use protesting as a tactic to communicate with the public, Obrycki said.

Department of Justice and the states were not working together. Between them, they appeared to be demanding either a breakup of our company or other extreme concessions ..."

He did not provide details of the company's offer to settle the case.

Attorney General Richard Blumenthal of Connecticut rejected Gates' claim.

"The differences between the states and the Department of Justice are minimal when compared with the divergence between our side and Microsoft," he said.

And Iowa's Miller said, "The state attorneys general continue to believe that competition in the high-technology marketplace is a high priority for the economic well-being of businesses and consumers in their respective states. We regret we were unable to achieve those goals through the mediation process."

Microsoft officials — including Gates — negotiated with government attorneys just days before the Justice Department filed its original complaint in 1998. An agreement appeared likely until government lawyers complained that Gates reconsidered details in an offer he made. The deal fell through, and the government filed suit.

In November 1999, Jackson issued a finding of fact. He said Microsoft was a monopoly in the market for computer operating-system software and that the company used its power to put the squeeze on competitors' products.

Greek Week for a song

prods people to remember the principles of their national organizations.

Greek Week also enables members of different houses to get to know each other. "We're competing but yet we're still bonding," said Kara Dawson, a sophomore and member of Alpha Phi.

"I think it's a good time for us to come together as a house, as well as with the wider community," said Kelly Dunn, also a UI sophomore and a member of Alpha Phi.

Thursday's Follies, with the theme "Destination unknown," is seen by many Greeks as the highlight of the week.

"Our house has been preparing the dance and skit for about a month," said Matt Willey, a sophomore from Sigma Phi Epsilon. "A lot of our new guys do follies, and it gets them to know each other better."

Other events scheduled this week include a Blood Drive Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the IMU second-floor ballroom and the Penny Wars, in which paired houses compete to raise money for a specific charity. For the first time in Greek Week history, the executive committee has chosen a national philanthropy, the Pediatric AIDS Foundation.

The week will also benefit local residents, through the Blood Drive and the Food and Clothing Drive (also Thursday in the IMU). In another first for Greek Week, participants of the reciprocal dinner exchanges between sororities and fraternities will make greeting cards for people in Iowa hospitals.

them don't cost much money, but they did take a lot of creative energy."

"Ever drink," a hand-free water bottle attached to a bike that allows people to lean over for a drink, was invented by Molly Knefel, an eighth grade student from Washington Junior High School in Dubuque.

She said she knew "Ever Drink" was a good idea for a bike ride. She used to keep a water bottle in her shirt when riding, she said, but it would spill all over her when she tried to drink.

"This was my first time inventing something," Knefel said. "But now, I'll be sitting (somewhere) doing something, then I'll think, someone should invent this or that."

Cody Jense and partner Brennan Gruhn, sixth graders from Grinnell Middle School, invented "Fix-a-Divot," a device used to make golf easier for people with bad backs. The idea came to them because there are many people in Jense's family with back problems, he said; his success has now made him consider engineering in the future.

"Engineering is a possibility now that I've made it this far," he said.

The purpose of the UI engineering school's support of Invent Iowa is to encourage young people such as Jense to show an interest in engineering or science, said Anthony Hines, the dean of engineering.

Probe of racist e-mails continues

The e-mail said the dental school was a random place to start and that the group will try to rid all minorities — with blacks going first — from the UI.

Rhodes called the demands "not only impossible, but inherently offensive."

The first e-mail was sent from the e-mail address minoirtyrid@excite.com (containing the spelling "minoirtyrid"), and the second was sent from minoirtygetout@excite.com. According to the excite.com Web page, neither of the two accounts were active as of Sunday afternoon.

The groups sending the e-mail goes by four names — Minorityout, Minoritygetout, Minoirtyrid Committee and the Committee of Minority Flight — but Rhodes said she thought one person was probably responsible for the threats.

Rhodes said the e-mails were consistent in nature and did not appear to be the work of a national group because they were unorganized and poorly written.

The FBI, which is investigating the groups to see if they exist, has not yet gotten back to UI Public Safety, which is heading the investigation.

Investigators determined that the first e-mail posed no "credible" threats to students, but the second seemed to be more directly aimed, Rhodes said.

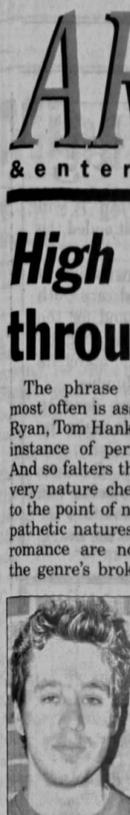

Though the group sending the e-mail knows the names of some minority students — something not available through any UI publication — and claims in the e-mails it has inside information on the dental school, Rhodes said investigators are not narrowing the investigation down to someone affiliated with the college.

"It does sound that the person is well-aware of what's going on (locally)," she said. "(But) it could be anybody." Some of the doors that are normally unlocked at the dental building have been locked to limit access, Rhodes said, and officers will be frequently monitoring the area.

Most students seemed to attend their classes on March 30, the first day the group threatened action against minority students, Rhodes said.

High Fidelity comes through loud and clear

The phrase romantic comedy most often is associated with Meg Ryan, Tom Hanks and some wacky instance of perfect, lullaby love. And so falters the subgenre, by its very nature cheesy and idealized to the point of nausea. The innate pathetic natures of loneliness and romance are not what torments the genre's broken heart. Rather, his new interest, Marie De Salle. Things get more complicated as Rob's disposition takes a firmer grip on his view of love and more significantly, his view of himself.

High Fidelity is a fantastic film for a very simple reason — it's honest. The characters are like people we all know, and the story doesn't hold anything back. The script, co-written by Cusack, is chock full of hilarious and smart dialogue that drives the story along and builds the characters by letting them constantly play off each other.

Cusack's natural charm gives the movie its bittersweet appeal. Rob is borderline despicable, owning all the attributes of the typical '90s indecisive male. Nonetheless, he creates Top 10 lists of songs all day long and is obsessed with his own humanity and the evasiveness of true love, and this makes him real and adorable.

Three pinpoints of why High Fidelity is great: The first is the entire awkward tale of Rob's relationship with Laura. It's dark and romantic and sad and comforting. Second, the scene at the record store when Rob and his cantankerous co-workers clash with Ian. It's an unforgettable sequence that epitomizes the movie's diversion from the romantic/comedy trash-bin genre. And third, Rob's interaction with Charlie is perfect. Zeta-Jones' is frightening in her highly sexualized stance as a modern-day version of a scorching femme-fatale. Their sparse but distinct interplay in particular gives the movie its honest and bittersweet appeal.

High Fidelity is among the best romantic comedies I have ever seen. It's innovative and hilarious and makes romance seem romantically non-romantic, which is a romantic notion, all romantic comedies considered.

FILM REVIEW By Van Griffin

it's the (surprise) tight embrace of Hollywood formulaic filmmaking that makes the past 100 romantic comedies nothing but an ill-fated three-way between script, acting and directing.

But alas, here is a movie that can make the cinematic ménage à trois romantic again. In High Fidelity, the latest film by Stephen Frears (The Hi-Lo Country, The Grifters, Dangerous Liaisons), John Cusack plays Rob Gordon, the owner of a hip little record store in Chi-town and he has just been dumped ... again. His girlfriend Laura (Iben Hjejle) has just left him for the obstreperous Zen-posing sex machine Ian (Tim Robbins). Freshly embittered, Rob decides to review and investigate the top five breakups of his life in hopes of making sense of this latest split. Lili Taylor and Catherine Zeta-Jones play two of his more significant old-school ladyfriends, and Lisa Bonet plays

Hundreds march against Confederate flag

■ The marchers will cover 120 miles in five days to push South Carolina to take down its Rebel flag.

By Bruce Smith
Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — More than 600 people set out Sunday on a five-day, 120-mile protest march to Columbia to urge state lawmakers to move the Confederate flag from the Statehouse dome.

"Take it down," chanted some marchers.

"The people of South Carolina — white and African American — want the flag to come down," said Charleston Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr., who had the idea for the march.

"The purpose is to say the people of South Carolina are in step, and we want the Legislature to get in step with the people of South Carolina," said the mayor, who carried the blue state flag with its white palmetto tree and crescent as he led marchers into the street.

The marchers, who will walk only during daylight hours, plan to arrive in Columbia for a rally Thursday, when pro-flag supporters have also scheduled a Statehouse rally.

The NAACP has called for a tourism boycott of the state, saying the Confederate flag above the Statehouse is a racist emblem. Flag defenders say it is a symbol of Southern heritage and honors the Confederate war dead.

Only state lawmakers can move the flag from the dome, and several plans are under consideration. Organizers of the "Get in Step" walk say it should be moved from the dome to a place of honor.

Vans and shuttle buses will take people to the march so they can join as long as they can. It will start each day where it ended the previous day.

Novelist Pat Conroy, author of Prince of Tides and a South Carolinian, was on hand for the start of the march. He said he would pick up with the marchers again Thursday in Columbia.

"They would find me dead on the highway if I tried to make the entire march," he said.

Conroy said South Carolina lawmakers do not like being told what to do but predicted that the march will help resolve the issue.

Miami relatives say Elian's father unfit

■ The U.S. government calls the allegations "outrageous."

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With a deadline looming and legal options narrowing, relatives of Elian Gonzalez Sunday pressed arguments that the boy's father is unfit as they battled to retain custody of the 6-year-old.

The White House responded that there is no evidence of the sort, and the father's lawyer said the "outrageous" allegations were a sign the Miami relatives are getting desperate. "There is no doubt this father loves his boy very, very much," said Gregory Craig, who represents Juan Miguel Gonzalez.

Three of the relatives' attorneys, appearing separately on three Sunday talk shows, suggested that the father is not fit to raise Elian. Attorney Manny Diaz said the legal team has submitted evidence to federal court and to the government, although he declined to detail it Sunday.

"One of the lawyers on our team met with the attorney general at the beginning of this process and raised those types of concern," Diaz said on ABC's "This Week."

But Craig said the family is just now raising the issue after months of allowing that Gonzalez was a loving man. "It's outrageous that at this point in this discussion ... they're raising these kinds of questions," he said on CNN's "Late Edition."

Meanwhile, the man once known as the "littlest defector" for choosing this country when he was just 12 came to Miami on Sunday to lend his support and sympathy to Elian.

Walter Polovchak, who defied his parents two decades ago and chose to stay in the United States while they returned to the Ukraine, said that while Elian may not understand the legal battle over his custody, the boy's perspective on American life is probably clear enough for him to have an opinion about his fate.

"I feel he's a little more mature and understands," Polovchak said. "Even a 6-year-old will realize you don't have to stand in line for food, that even dogs have aisles for food in the supermarket in America."

Polovchak met Elian and his Miami relatives Sunday to offer support and sympathy for their plight.

As a 12-year-old defector, Polovchak listed Jell-O and bananas as top reasons for wanting to stay in the United States. But what he really was expressing was a love of freedom, he says. He marveled at walking in a grocery store and plucking things from the aisles; he was used to long lines and small rations.

Polovchak's refusal to return to the Ukraine with his parents set off a 5½-year custody battle that didn't end until he turned 18 and was granted U.S. citizenship. He's now an office manager in Chicago, is married and has a 6-year-old son of his own.

Polovchak said he understood what Elian was going through during the custody tug-of-war between his Miami relatives and his father in Cuba.

The family's arguments about Elian's father's fitness to be a parent, backed up by members of Congress who want Elian to remain in the United States, come as the Justice Department insists that the relatives agree to surrender Elian if they lose their pending court case.

The department has given the relatives until Tuesday to sign such a promise and has threatened to revoke the boy's permission to be in this country if they do not agree. That deadline has been extended twice already.

Family members want to preserve their option to keep up the legal fight even if they lose their case in federal court, which enforces immigration law. They also want a family court, which considers a child's best interests, to hear the case.

Ethics storm erupts in N.H. court

■ Some legislators consider impeachment, while others urge three justices to resign.

By Norma Love

CONCORD, N.H. — A crisis involving allegations of ethics violations in the New Hampshire Supreme Court kept lawmakers at work during the weekend, researching impeachment procedures or trying to arrange a less drastic solution.

While some worked to persuade Chief Justice David Brock to resign and avoid a protracted and damaging legislative battle, others questioned whether a clean sweep of the court wouldn't be better.

Legislative leaders wouldn't comment on whether Brock or the two others should resign, but several rank-and-file legislators said that may be the only way to restore public confidence in the court.

"If nobody trusts that group of people — whether it's fair or not — that may be the only thing we can do, though I wouldn't favor it," said state Rep. James Craig. "It may be the only way to save the integrity of the judicial branch."

State Rep. Paul Mirski said on April 1 he would file a bill to impeach or otherwise remove Brock, and state House leaders researched the mechanics of such a move.

"We're looking to see how it's done in the event we need to go forward," House Speaker Donna Sytek said Sunday. "What's at stake is the people's confidence in the court."

On March 31, Justice W. Stephen Thayer resigned after being accused of criminal ethics violations. In return, Attorney General Philip McLaughlin promised not to prosecute.

McLaughlin issued a 25-page report that not only detailed Thayer's transgressions but also accused the entire court of ethics violations. He said it was an "institutional practice" for judges who had recused themselves from cases to review and discuss draft decisions in those cases.

McLaughlin said the chief justice broke the law just by listening to Thayer. He said Thayer, 54, tried to influence the selection of substitute judges when his own divorce case came before the high court.

McLaughlin is expected to release investigators' reports this week, and sources say material in them could be more damaging than the report released March 31.

In addition, the Judicial Conduct Committee will be conducting an ethics investigation of Brock, Justice Sherman Horton, Justice John Broderick and retired Justice William Johnson.

NATION BRIEF

Cybercrime gets Internet burglar alarm

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A leading cybercrime expert plans to launch a new Internet burglar alarm system today that analysts say may raise the bar in the burgeoning and vital field of computer security.

Security consultant and author Bruce Schneier's Counterpane Internet Security Inc.'s system uses teams of analysts working around the clock in Mountain View, Calif., and Chantilly, Va., to scrutinize activity logs from customers' Internet sites.

If analysts notice something fishy — a potential hacking attempt, for example — they alert the customers and help them plug the security breach.

It's a field expected to explode as major corporations' Internet sites become a crucial part of their business.

"Computer security without monitoring is kind of like having a car alarm go off in the city," Schneier said. "It might make a lot of noise, but everyone ignores it."

The system, which costs $12,000 a month, differs from traditional Internet security systems that are usually built and staffed in-house either by company employees or consultants.

"Counterpane is kicking off the next big trend in security 'out-sourcing,'" said Steve Hunt, a security analyst at Giga Information Group.

Internet security industry leader Computer Associates International Inc. provides automated systems within the customer's organization to monitor for potential attacks on Web servers, desktop computers and mainframes.

If there is a potential flaw, the system responds automatically.

Simon Perry, a security business manager at Computer Associates, said it's not concerned about competition from Counterpane or similar systems that use human analysts at remote locations to watch for break-ins.

Stepping Up plan exceeds group's boundaries

Some say the road to hell is paved with good intentions. Others are a bit less apocalyptic, claiming that good intentions adorn only the road to bad social policy.

While Stepping Up certainly isn't headed for purgatory, misguided and ineffectual social policy is in the group's headlights. The group's honorable intent to curb binge and underage drinking among college students has raised the possibility of eliminating drink specials at local bars. However, should such a move occur, the group will have moved beyond curbing binge and underage drinking to policing alcohol in general, something beyond its originally intended scope.

The idea is that drink specials, such as Happy Hours, 2 for 1's and FAC's, promote binge drinking, especially by underage individuals. While this is certainly possible, it is not the whole story. Beyond media hype, there are actually those who enjoy alcoholic beverages for their taste, not their intoxicating effects, and partake in their enjoyment responsibly. Be it through experience or instruction from their elders, they have learned how to appreciate such beverages responsibly, without bingeing immaturity.

However, bars do not discriminate on the basis of maturity in one's drinking habits. Drinks are expensive, regardless of whether the buyer wants to enjoy the taste or get smashed. Thus, eliminating drink specials punishes innocent individuals who prefer to save a dollar or two when enjoying alcoholic beverages in a responsible manner.

More importantly, the move simply won't work. Those who prefer to drink mass quantities of alcohol in short amounts of time will do so, just as those under the age of 21 will have the desire to drink, regardless of the monetary cost.

A wiser move would be to study the societal structures that create the widespread desire to drink heavily, especially among adolescents, and find a way to educate and raise our young in a way that does not induce a desire for binge drinking. Looking to Europe, one is inclined to wonder if less restriction, rather than more, might be the answer.

This is not to say that Stepping Up is failing in its initiatives. Binge and underage drinking are serious campus problems that need to be dealt with. But simply because they have a common nature doesn't mean they can both be cured by a common solution. Limiting bar access to those 21 and over (with exceptions for musical performances) and cracking down on fake ID's would help curb underage drinking. Education from a young age would help curb binge drinking. But eliminating an establishment's ability to offer a sale price on its product will not help solve either problem.

Celebrate in unified silence

Silence is an incredible tool. Used as a method of power to control the truths of the oppressed, silence is a prison. Used as a method of protection, to conceal incriminating truths of the oppressed, silence is a curtain of secrecy. Many women, men and people of genders beyond and between, struggle with silence imposed upon them in various ways.

The Day of Silence, to be observed April 5 of this year, was established to recognize the silence that gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender people deal with at some point throughout their lives. The UI Feminist Union, in conjunction with numerous co-sponsors, organized a variety of events to help raise awareness of what it is like to suffer in silence.

On April 5, we will take a vow of silence. We will participate in class, order food from a restaurant, speak to friends, family, co-workers via written messages instead of speech. Sure, this will be annoying, frustrating and inconvenient, but this is simply a reflection of the feelings of those who truly do suffer in silence. Our participation will give us visibility as gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender and allies because any disruption or inconvenience we create will be noticed. We intend to be loud with our silence.

We strongly encourage you to participate, even if you aren't generally imposed upon with silence as a result of your sexual orientation. Your participation will help you understand the aggravation that accompanies silence, and you may come to recognize and better appreciate the privilege you have as someone who is not forced to survive in secrecy. Granted, your silence throughout this day doesn't compare with the intensity of the silence of those who suffer daily. Nevertheless, it will perhaps give you a better awareness of and compassion for this pain.

Silence affects everybody. Even when we don't hear the silence, we encounter it daily. Gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender people surround us constantly, but it is their silence that fools us into believing otherwise. Silence may be their only option if they feel threatened by the dangers that coincide with brutal honesty.

Ending their silence may not be a risk some gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender feel compelled to take if their jobs, families, even lives are at stake.

Therefore, we all need to respect their silence. Your support and participation is important to us. If you are unable to participate, your respect for us and our cause is appreciated.

We will take a vow of silence from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will dress in black. We will communicate by writing messages on small sheets of paper that explain our silence. These sheets, along with other specific information, are included in the project packets that will be available at the tables in the IMU throughout the days prior to the event.

From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., we will host a silent lunch at the Pentacrest. At 5 p.m., we will hold a "Breaking the Silence" rally in the Pedestrian Mall. Monique DiCarlo, the director of the Women's Resource and Action Center, and Lia Carman and Jack Pepple, two local activists, will speak.

Diane Finnerty of the Office of Affirmative Action and Andy Stoll, the UI student government president, will also speak at the event. Kelly Carrell and Kathryn Musilek, two local musicians, will perform. On Tuesday, we will show The Brandon Teena Story in Room A, Iowa City Public Library, at 7 p.m. Project packets will also be available here.

Whether you are gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender or an ally, your participation will illustrate your commitment to raising awareness about the use of silence both as a tool of oppression and as a shield for protection. Your support will feel comforting and validating to those who are silent and will contribute to the visibility of the network of support in this community.

And to those members of the population who struggle in silence, who are forced to tip-toe through a life of secrecy, who live unrecognized as the complete human beings that you are, this day is dedicated to you. We hear your silence.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Sad time to be a Hawkeye

On March 23, I awoke to a beautiful sun-filled morning and all was well with the world. When I turned to page 2A of The Daily Iowan and saw an article about a proposal for a new Tiger Hawk logo, however, the day became very gloomy. The whole affair surrounding Iowa's new emblem has saddened me greatly, and I felt the need to express my concerns.

As a child growing up near Iowa City, I developed a love for the UI and the Hawkeyes at an early age. I have always supported Iowa athletics with extreme levels of loyalty. In the past, I have watched Iowa coaching legends Hayden Fry, Dan Gable and Tom Davis lead their programs to success all while being represented by the so called "outdated" Tiger Hawk.

Such athletes as Chuck Long, B.J. Armstrong, Chris Street and Tim Dwight all wore the "old" Tiger Hawk on their uniforms as they led their teams to victory. By implementing a new logo, the UI would be degrading past success and excellence it once experienced on a regular basis.

Except for the success of Jim Zalesky's wrestling squad, Hawkeye fans have had little to cheer about in recent times. Coaching legend Hayden Fry has retired, losses to lightweight Iowa State are becoming more frequent, and now a new Tiger Hawk is being implemented as Iowa's logo. What will be next to go? Kinnick Stadium?

It's definite that the Iowa Athletics Department has screwed up the only worthwhile thing it had going for the university.

This is a sad time to be a Hawkeye. Only the continued use of Iowa's traditional Tiger Hawk logo will make things a little more bearable.

XFL to bridge the next frontier in violent excess

Get ready to rumble, Iowa City. The World Wrestling Federation's new football league, the XFL, is guaranteed to be coming to a NBC station near you.

On March 29, NBC Sports announced it has become a 50 percent partner with the WWF in the new league. The deal is expected to give the XFL some credibility (and, surely, take credibility away from NBC Sports), and give NBC, as Richard Sandomir for the New York Times wrote, the ability to "reach male viewers 12 to 24 years old, whom the WWF attracts in droves."

Vince McMahon, being the crass and greedy WWF chairman that he is, was welcomed with open arms by NBC Sports. Said Dick Ebersol, the chairman of NBC Sports, "In Vince McMahon, we believe we're getting the best promoter to that audience."

Scary. Very, very scary. McMahon being a promoter to America's youth, that is.

The league, expected to begin in February 2001, is to display a different brand of football — "extreme fun." With a few different rules than the NFL, most of which are designed to shorten the game (10 minute half-times) and add offense (running backs and receivers can be in motion on the snap), Ebersol and McMahon believe they can tap into their desired audience.

The play, both insist, won't be scripted like the action on WWF programs such as "Raw is War." But there is the possibility of scripted action before and after the game. Stolen water coolers and jock straps, fights among the scantily clad cheerleaders, you name it, I bet it will be in there. The excesses for which the WWF is known, however, including violence, profanity and sexual content will be toned down a notch, Ebersol said. So maybe scratch out that last part about the stolen water cooler.

What's also scary is that the whole thing may work, despite the bad odds. Having created an addicting (or so I'm told) soap-opera-for-men in the WWF, McMahon has shown he can make something out of nothing, or very little.

Having combined itself with network powerhouse NBC, its chances are even better. For NBC, this is a chance for relatively cheap entertainment production, so don't expect it to bow out too early.

The real question is whether the new league can survive in its toned-down form. If he had it his way, McMahon would probably have the players wear little-to-no pads, the cheerleaders even less and have some kind of torture pit for the losing team.

And — hey — you never know, it may happen. Stranger things have happened, like the WWF's cult following. If the ratings aren't what they're supposed to be, don't be surprised by some changes. The WWF isn't getting any cleaner, you know. "NBC is a pretty forward-thinking network," said Ebersol. "It gave us 'Saturday Night Live' and 'Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In.'"

Forward-thinking? The WWF? Since when do oversized men who like to beat their chests, run around with mute women and pound each other with folding chairs constitute forward-thinking? How can "SNL," which has helped develop many of today's best comedians, be compared with the WWF?

Or maybe Ebersol is right. Maybe the XFL is the next big thing. Excitement and immediacy over quality and style definitely is the trend. More touch-downs, longer end-zone celebrations, less strategy and more fights seem to be the key to ratings success. Forget about good football — Americans want non-stop, hard-core action.

There could even be a cage match in case of a tie. One lineman, a skill player and the punter from each team would enter the cage. Winner take all. No holds barred. Rage Against the Machine as background music. This has to be much better than sudden death — unless, of course, that's what happens.

And, speaking of unabashed violence, aren't enough football players involved in off-the-field violence already — including murder charges involving the NFL's Rae Carruth and Ray Lewis? Wouldn't the XFL court such characters? Whereas on March 29 the NFL owners met in Florida to discuss ways to deter off-the-field violence, up the coast in New York the WWF — whose wrestling stars include the Undertaker and Billy Gunn — talked about making a league that was harder-hitting and not so cerebral.

All of this almost makes you wonder, or at least makes me wonder, what's next in terms of television and sports. Bionic baseball? Brawling basketball? Naked figure skating? I, for one, can wait to find out.

Negotiator says no Balkanization of West Bank

■ A leading Palestinian says Israel's vision of a Palestinian state is unacceptable.

By Samar Assad
Associated Press

RAMALLAH, West Bank — Israel accepts the inevitability of Palestinian statehood, a top Palestinian negotiator said Sunday — but it envisions the state as unnatural “islands in an Israeli ocean,” an outcome that would be unacceptable to Palestinians.

Yasser Abed Rabbo, who is leading talks with Israelis in Washington, said there has been little progress in bridging gaps that led to a breakdown in negotiations in February. The renewed U.S.-sponsored talks aim for an outline of a final agreement by May and a full-fledged agreement by September.

Abed Rabbo said he has ascertained through the talks that Israel hopes for a Palestine without natural borders and totally surrounded by Israel, save for an outlet onto the Mediterranean Sea in Gaza.

Abed Rabbo said Israel's insistence on limited statehood, as well as its refusal to accommodate Palestinian refugees, “is the most dangerous issue we are facing.”

Israel has not formally proposed such a state, and Israeli Cabinet Minister Haim Ramon described Abed Rabbo's perception of Israel's position as “extreme.”

Abed Rabbo said Israel had dropped its opposition to the Palestinian state that Yasser Arafat hopes to declare by September. The problem, he said, is Israel's vision of that state.

The West Bank would be divided into two clusters of land connected by a passage. Along with some West Bank suburbs of Jerusalem, the proposed state would cover approximately half of the current West Bank.

Israel would control two Palestinian border crossings into Jordan, as it now controls the border crossing between the Gaza Strip and Egypt. Large Jewish settlements would be controlled by Israel, and Israel would also control security on major roads.

Abed Rabbo said that proposal — which he described as “islands in an Israeli ocean” — is unacceptable to Palestinians, and he repeated demands for the return of all Palestinian lands captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

Ramon, who is close to the negotiations, said the sides were not so far from agreement on most issues.

“At the end, we will reach an agreement with the Palestinians over a Palestinian state,” Ramon said. “It will not be a state that the Palestinians could not accept.”

Ramon said Israel sees a Palestinian state with limited sovereignty, especially over security matters.

He suggested postponing discussion of Jerusalem, claimed by both sides as their capital, for a few years in order to reach agreement on the other issues by September. Abed Rabbo rejected the idea.

A first round of talks at Bolling Air Force base near Washington ended last week, and the sides are expected to return to the United States Thursday for a second round. Negotiators will discuss borders, settlements, water, Jerusalem and refugees.

The sides met in Jerusalem Sunday to discuss interim issues.

Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat said he gave the Israelis a list of 230 Palestinians arrested for anti-Israel acts before an interim peace agreement was signed on May 4, 1994, and asked for their release.

Colombian rebels bomb jail, free 74

■ Two guards were wounded and four prisoners were killed in the action.

Associated Press

BOGOTÁ, Colombia — Leftist rebels stormed a provincial jail, detonating a powerful car bomb to rip a hole in the prison wall and free 74 prisoners, officials said Sunday.

Guerrillas from the National Liberation Army and the People's Liberation Army unleashed automatic fire on April 1 against guards at the Modelo jail in Cucuta near the Venezuelan border, said regional police Col. Rafael Cepeda.

Prisoners inside the jail joined the onslaught, and fighting continued in the streets for more than an hour. A total of 74 inmates escaped, taking one guard with them as a hostage.

Two prison guards were wounded, and four prisoners were killed, said Gen. Alfonso Arellano, the operations director of the Colombian National Police.

Most of the escapees were militants of the two rebel groups or the country's largest guerrilla group, the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia.

Meanwhile, police agents deactivated three more car bombs in the city and found a car loaded with 42 hand grenades.

Approximately 1,000 prisoners have escaped from Colombian prisons since 1997, including dozens of inmates who fled during a revolutionary army attack on a southern village last month.

In a separate attack on April 1, a police officer was killed when revolutionary army rebels rained gunfire and homemade rockets on the village of Puerto Saldana, 160 miles south of Bogotá.

Junior's Reds debut marks Opening Day

The 2000 baseball season premieres in North America today with 26 teams in action.

By Ronald Blum
 Associated Press

Ken Griffey Jr. will be in his new Reds jersey.

Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa will have the first faceoff in the Home Run Central.

Andres Galarraga, Kerry Ligtenberg, Moises Alou and Jason Kendall will be back.

And John Rocker, John Smoltz, Curt Schilling, Kerry Wood, Matt Williams, Darryl Strawberry and Richie Garcia will be among the missing.

The first, full day of baseball in the new century — did those games in Japan last week really count? — is filled with a year's worth of plot lines.

"My son's skipping school on opening day. It's a tradition," Griffey said. "Cincinnati expects that a lot of kids are not going to be there."

Griffey renewed baseball's buzz in Cincinnati when he forced Seattle to trade him to his hometown team on Feb. 10. With their annual parade, the Reds — who started play in 1869 — get the most worked up about opening day.

"I can't wait to see Junior get announced," Reds first baseman Hal Morris said Sunday, a day before the Reds open the North American portion of the baseball season against Milwaukee.

"In '91, there was tremendous excitement because we'd just won the World Series," Morris said. "I think this matches if not surpasses that."

While the New York Mets and Chicago Cubs split a two-game series at Tokyo last week — the first season opener outside North America — the other 28 clubs were still at spring training.

UConn wins championship against storied rival Tennessee

Shea Ralph's tenacious play led the Huskies past the Volunteers 71-52 Sunday.

By Ken Berger

PHILADELPHIA — Her face bears the expression of someone on the playground whose lunch money has been stolen. Whatever someone is trying to take from Shea Ralph, she aims to get it back.

Top-ranked Connecticut cruised to its second national championship with such ease Sunday night because one of its players would never stop diving, swatting snarling and shouting. With all this, Ralph somehow found time to get nearly every loose ball, make every deadeye pass, toss in every layup that her tenacity earned.

With the determination of a freight train, Ralph led UConn to a 71-52 victory over archrival Tennessee. Ralph scored 15 points on 7-for-8 shooting and had seven assists, six steals and a block for good measure.

After sparking UConn's 21-6 run to start the game, Ralph ensured there would be no letup in the second half. She started off with a layup and double-clutch, driving jumper to make it 36-19, then picked off a pass and quickly set up Svetlana Abrosimova for a layup to give the Huskies a 40-19 lead.

She got free for another layup to make it 48-27, then ran a little give-and-go on the fast break with a bounce pass to Abrosimova for a layup that gave UConn a 50-27 lead with 13:31 left.

Her face, always contorted with a mixture of consternation and aggression, revealed almost as much as her relentless game.

When she forced a jump ball, she pumped her fist wildly. When she attacked the basket for a jump-stop and jumper, she screamed, flexed her biceps and grabbed any teammate who would dare share her vice-like embrace.

Bittersweet finish

Iowa falls to third in final event

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

Bittersweet — adj. 1. Producing a mixture of pain and pleasure. 2. A word to describe the NCAA men's gymnastics championships for Iowa.

Pleasure because all four Hawkeye qualifiers earned All-American status in Saturday's individual event finals. Pleasure because Iowa showed heart and determination in coming from behind in Thursday's preliminary rounds to make Friday's team finals. Pleasure because Friday was their best meet of their year in front of over 2,000 Carver fans.

Pain because it wasn't quite enough.

Friday, the Hawkeyes gave everything they had, scoring a season-high 231.525. But it was only good enough for third place. Penn State, with 231.975, and Michigan, with 231.850, finished ahead of Iowa in one of the closest finishes Iowa coach Tom Dunn could remember.

Saturday, some of that pain was eased. Sophomore Don Jackson became Iowa's first NCAA champion since 1996 and the tenth in Iowa history by tying Penn State's Brandon Stefaniak for first place on pommel horse with a 9.9125.

"My main goal was to get in the finals and be an All-American," Jackson said. "To have it end up like this, especially at home is just the greatest that I would have expected."

After faltering in their last routines on parallel bars Friday night, seniors Brian Hamilton, now a two-time All-American, and Todd Strada, a three-time All-American, ended their collegiate careers with a third-place and sixth-place finish on horizontal bar, respectively.

"It was one of my best routines all year. It just came down to the dismount," said Hamilton. "If I stick, I probably would have won, but I'm happy I went out with a great hit."

Strada also earned All-American status in the all-around competition Friday, finishing seventh. Ohio State's Jamie Natalie took first, with a score of 58.375. Sophomore Shane de Freitas earned All-American status for the second straight year on high bar, finishing fifth.

But Iowa's hopes of a team title and a triumphant exit from Carver-Hawkeye Arena ended Friday night on the parallel bars.

Don Jackson becomes first Hawkeye individual champion since 1996

Don Jackson emerged from the tunnel, duffel bag hung over one shoulder, and acknowledged the Hawkeye crowd with a smile.

A grin is about all the emotion Jackson shows, so when he was crowned the NCAA co-champion on pommel horse Saturday afternoon, he didn't jump, scream or even pump his fists.

He just wore a great big smile.

"It's almost like there's no worries," Anthony Petrocelli said. "He just gets up there and does his thing."

Only a sophomore, Jackson has quite the list of accomplishments for "doing his thing."

Jackson, a member of High Country Gymnastics, was a three-time USA Gymnastics academic all-American in high school. His senior year, he placed third in the all-around at the Colorado state meet and finished third on the pommel horse at the 1998 Junior Olympic Championships.

Last season he was crowned the Big Ten champion on the pommel horse in front of the Carver-Hawkeye Arena crowd and was named to the all-Big Ten team.

This season, he broke

Tonight's NCAA championship game features the relentless attack of Florida and the physical force of Michigan State.

By Jim O'Connell
 Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Michigan State and Florida both started the season in the Top 10 and never dropped far below. Now they're the only teams left.

Similarities over. While the Spartans are most effective in a half-court game, where they can crash the boards and be physical, the Gators prefer to play at warp speed, using a 10-man rotation and full-court pressure.

Michigan State (31-7) was the only No. 1 seed to reach the Final Four and has lived up to the role in its bid for the national championship. The Spartans won every game in the NCAA tournament by at least 11 points, including Saturday night's 53-41 victory over Wisconsin.

Florida, seeded fifth, got a first-round scare from Butler before wearing down higher-seeded teams — Illinois, top-ranked Duke and Oklahoma State — with its hectic pace. The Gators (29-7) used the same style to end North Carolina's surprising run with a 71-59 win Saturday night.

"We like to run, too," Michigan State coach Tom Izzo said. "Maybe some of that is our style also. ... I think we have an understanding for that. I think these guys want to run, too."

The Spartans can get up and down the court, having scored more than 80 points nine times this season. In the tournament, however, they have averaged 68.2 with the five starters averaging between 27 and 35 minutes a game and only two reserves averaging more than 10.

Florida has averaged 79.4 points in the five tournament games, just off its 84.1 mark for the season. The 10 Gators who create all that havoc on the floor average between 13 and 31 minutes a game.

Michigan State starts three seniors, while Florida has one on the team and plays seven sophomores and freshmen in the rotation.

"Our youthfulness has won us a lot of basketball games this year," said Kenyan Weaks, Florida's lone member of the Class of 2000. "I don't know if that's going to be a big problem in this game."

The Spartans were going to use an age-old method to prepare for Florida's full-court press Monday night.

"We always go against six or seven guys in practice and I'm sure we'll have a bunch of players out there today," Michigan State forward Andre Hutson said Sunday.

Iowa Women's Tennis

The Iowa women's tennis team extended its winning streak to four matches over the weekend, defeating Wisconsin 6-1 in Madison on Friday.

The victory was anything but easy for the No. 63 Hawkeyes, who improved to 7-9 on the season and 4-1 in conference play.

"It felt like it was 1-0 heading into the ninth inning," said coach Paul Wardlaw. Iowa jumped to a 1-0 lead by picking up the doubles point in the eighth match point of the last match. The No. 21 duo of Shera Wiegler and Toni Neykova picked up an 8-4 victory while the third doubles team of Megan Kearney and Erica Johnson fell 8-6.

The drama came at No. 2 doubles where Natalya Dawaf and Jen Sinclair held on to win their match 9-8 (7-2). The duo was up 7-4 at 40-love with three match points when Wisconsin began to rally before Dawaf and Sinclair finally shut the door on the Badgers.

Singles was no easier for Iowa, as the Hawkeyes won five of six matches with three of the victories going to three sets. Both Wiegler and Neykova won their matches 7-6, 7-4 and 6-3, 6-4, respectively.

Kearney dropped the first set of her match to Linda Mues 6-7, before rebounding to win the final two sets 6-4, 6-0. Dawaf and Steffi Hoch both won their first sets before dropping the second and winning the third. Dawaf defeated Shana McElroy 6-2, 1-6, 6-2 while Hoch held off the Badgers' Lara Vonov 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. Erica Johnson had Iowa's lone loss at No. 5 singles, falling to Dena Baritot 6-2, 6-1.

No reports of riots in East Lansing

Police reported less violence near the Michigan State campus than after last year's costly riots.

By Malcolm Johnson
Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Music blared. People danced and set off fireworks. Women sat atop men's shoulders and yelled and cheered.

Across the Michigan State campus Saturday night, students celebrated as the Spartans earned their first NCAA title game berth since Magic Johnson led them to the national title in 1979.

"This is crazy. It's our own little Mardi Gras," said Seth Ullreg, a 19-year-old student.

There were no reports of the violence that marred the Spartans' semifinal loss to Duke a year ago. More than 10,000 people ran through East Lansing streets after that loss, some overturning cars, setting bonfires and breaking windows and smashing parking meters.

On Saturday, the campus was noisy but peaceful. There were six arrests — three for disorderly conduct, two for indecent exposure and one for a minor in possession of alcohol, East Lansing Police said early Sunday.

"It's kind of nice to see," Michigan State Police Capt. Tony Kleibacker said. "They were well behaved. A lot of cheering going on, but that's about it."

Police estimate that more than 2,000 fans congregated near the Cedar Village apartments where some of the rioting occurred a year ago. There were police on every corner and six mounted officers nearby, but no trouble.

Students chatted with the officers, who closed down the street to traffic.

"I have a feeling everything will be fine here," said Kim Medena, 19, a sophomore in psychology at Western Michigan University who said she grew up a Michigan State fan.

By 9:15 p.m., the crowds were breaking up.

"People are getting back into their normal Saturday night routine and heading home or to wherever they are headed," Kleibacker said.

The only thing the fans left behind were broken beer bottles and plastic cups littering the streets.

Earlier, crowds of people in downtown East Lansing poured out of bars into the streets, shouting and honking horns. The celebrating began shortly after Michigan State broke the game open in the second half.

Morris Peterson scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half as Michigan State beat Wisconsin 53-41 in Indianapolis on Saturday and will play Florida on Monday. The Gators beat North Carolina 71-59 in the late game Saturday.

"It's a good thing Wisconsin can't shoot," said Mark McMillin, a 52-year-old teacher from Otsego.

Television exposure has helped both maintain that tradition.

All but one of Connecticut's regular-season games were televised and the Huskies appeared on national telecasts seven times. Tennessee was on television 21 times, including five national appearances.

When ESPN did the first nationally televised regular-season women's game in prime time in 17 years, it showed — who else? — Tennessee at Connecticut.

The recruiting advantage of appearing on television so much is obvious. Good players want to go where they can be seen and where they can win. Connecticut and Tennessee offer both. And until more teams get on TV, those two will continue to enjoy that edge.

"It's a double-edged sword, isn't it?" UConn coach Geno Auriemma said. "More teams need to get on TV so they can recruit better players. But more teams need to get better players so they can get on TV."

Jackson's focus leads to NCAA championship

Iowa's pommel horse record, scoring a 9.95 several times. He finished second at the conference meet but claimed first in the nation, tying with Penn State's defending NCAA champion Brandon Stefaniak, earning his first All-American honor.

"Carver's great. I had a successful Big Ten's here last year and just to do the same thing for nationals has been great," Jackson said. "You can't do it any better than doing it in front of your home crowd."

Pommel horse is arguably Iowa's strongest event, largely due to Jackson. The Littleton, Colo. native has been one of the Hawkeyes' most consistent performers the past two years.

In fact, his solid routines have come to be expected. The nature of his demeanor and his focus make pommel horse a perfect event for him.

"You don't want too much adrenaline. You don't want to be too pumped up before you go," Todd Strada said. "He's figured out mentally what he has to do. He's a great guy. I couldn't be happier for him."

It's been a long season and Jackson now has some time to relax before starting up his title defense run. Next season, Stefaniak is gone and Jackson will be the man of the moment.

"I'm gonna try," Jackson said on his title defense. "There's a lot of other guys out there who don't want to see me do that."

Jackson emerged from the tunnel minus the duffel bag later Saturday afternoon. Instead he was holding his championship plaque, but he was still wearing a smile.

Carter leaves game with injured shoulder

TORONTO (AP) — Vince Carter had to leave Toronto's game against Indiana on Sunday with an injured right shoulder. Carter, who was bumped in the second quarter, winced as he threw a pass to Dee Brown early in the third quarter. He left with what the Raptors called a bruised shoulder, was examined by team doctors and didn't return.

X-rays were negative, but Carter had trouble raising his arm after the game. He was to be reevaluated late Sunday night.

Carter has been on a tear of late, winning the slam-dunk contest at the NBA All-Star game and being selected to the U.S. Olympic team.

Parallel bars hurt Hawkeyes

The Hawkeyes went into the final rotation with the lead but were only 2 ahead of fourth-place Penn State. Smashed between them were California and Michigan.

Parallel bars, not one of Iowa's better events, isn't an event where high scores are consistently given out. Pommel horse, Penn State's last event, is the Nittany Lions' best event, and one on which scores are generally higher.

Iowa started off solidly. The first four Hawkeyes had good parallel bar sets, and the race came down to each team's final two routines. Iowa faltered. Penn State's Brandon Stefaniak did not, hitting a 9.950 to give his team a 39.075 for the event. The clutch performance capped the Nittany Lions' rise from sixth at the Big Ten championships two weeks ago to national champions Friday evening, and was the school's first title since 1976.

"I'm still in a little bit of shock right now," Penn State coach Randy Jepson said. "We didn't let up on one routine until the night was over."

Iowa started the night on a "high." After nearly breaking the high bar school record again, Iowa carried its momentum through five rotations.

A season-high of 38.550 on floor, followed by a school record of 39.225 on pommel horse, gave Iowa the lead by over a point heading into still rings.

A steady performance on rings coupled with another season-high, 38.00, on vault kept Iowa in the lead. A lead they would lose in the final event.

"High bar, floor and pommel are our three best events," Iowa coach Tom Dunn said. "I knew if we were going to have a chance we would have to be ahead at that point, and we were. We put ourselves in the position where we had a good chance. We just couldn't quite put it down."

Neither could Michigan. The defending champions struggled in several events and opened the door for the other teams. It was hard for Iowa not to get caught up in the moment of a possible championship.

"I'm so proud of our team. That's what you live for," junior Kevin Agnew said. "You train all your life for, literally, that moment. We trained all year and it, literally, came down to one routine. That's really unbelievable. I was just so happy to be in that moment."

Before the season Dunn said Iowa's goal was to peak at the NCAA championships. Goal achieved.

"We're real happy," Dunn said. "It was our best meet of the year. We peaked at the right time, and it's hard to imagine doing much better."

Cleaves wants redemption at this year's Final Four believes people are getting the wrong impression about his team.

"People think it's just running and jacking up 3-point shots," Donovan said. "We put a tremendous emphasis on guarding the 3-point line. Basically, every team in the country, when they go to practice, is going to practice their half-court offense. We try to be as disruptive as possible and take teams out of what they practice on a regular basis."

One of the keys to breaking Florida's press will be senior point guard Mateen Cleaves.

"You never have a chance to relax," he said.

"The main thing for the game is you can't change your attitude."

Florida's subs have scored 175 points in the tournament, 132 more than Michigan State's.

"I do think we need to get more scoring out of our bench and I think we have the potential," Izzo said. "As far as wearing us down, I think we'll utilize our bench enough so it doesn't."

Donovan won't change a thing.

"We're going to play our guys like we normally have and I don't know if we'll be able to wear Michigan State down," he said. "We have to just try and play our style."

Michigan State is trying to become the first Big Ten team to win the national championship since Michigan in 1989.

The Spartans are in the Final Four for the second straight year. They lost to Duke in the semifinals last season.

"That was cool but we went home empty-handed," Cleaves said. "It's great to get here but you'll always be remembered as a national champion."

Donovan, one of six men to play and coach in a Final Four, will try to join even more select company.

Only Bob Knight and Dean Smith have played in a Final Four and coached a national champion. At 34, Donovan would be the third-youngest coach to win it all behind Indiana's Branch McCracken in 1940 and Wisconsin's Harold Foster in 1941.

"I haven't focused on the fact we're 40 minutes from a national championship," Donovan said. "Probably more that we're playing Michigan State and what we have to do to beat them."

Rowers take advantage of gloomy day

■ The Iowa women's rowing team won five races Saturday.

By Lisa Colonno
The Daily Iowan

Saturday's gray sky, sprinkles and cool temperatures made for a gloomy day, but it was perfect for the Iowa women's rowing team.

The No. 16 Iowa women's rowing team hosted Kansas, Kansas State and Tennessee in a double dual at Lake MacBride. The Hawkeyes won five of the nine races they entered, and with little or no wind, Iowa could not have asked for better water or weather.

"I was so happy that the water was great," coach Mandi Kowal said. "Giving athletes a chance to do that on flat water is a real gift. I'm also happy with how the majority of the group handled good competition."

Iowa first competed against Kansas in the morning. The Jayhawks won the first three races of the day. Their second novice eight-plus, varsity four-plus, and novice eight-plus boats all came away with wins. The Hawkeyes did have a close run in the novice eight-plus race. Kansas defeated Iowa by one second with a time of 7:37.1, while Iowa posted a time of 7:38.1.

Iowa came away with victories in the following two races, with the second varsity eight-plus and varsity eight-plus boats defeating the Jayhawks. The varsity eight-plus boat won its race by nearly 10 seconds. Iowa crossed the finish line in 7:07.3 and Kansas followed at 7:15.5.

After the Kansas dual, the teams took a two-hour break before starting their second dual meets in the afternoon.

"It was great to race twice," Lisa Deimerly said. "After the first race we could evaluate (what we did in the first race) and set goals (for the second race)."

Iowa next competed against Kansas State and came out strong, taking first place in the second varsity four-plus race. The novice eight-plus team had another close match, but dropped its second race of the day. Iowa posted a time of 7:36.2 and Kansas State finished in 7:34.6.

"Kansas State went undefeated (last season) and the novice first eight boat lost (to them) by 1.5 seconds, not far behind at all," Kowal said. "Twice (Saturday) they were neck and neck with two crews."

The Hawkeyes' second varsity eight-plus boat finished the 2,200-meter course in first-place with a time of 7:05.5 for its second win of the day. Kansas State came in second with a time of 7:35.7.

Iowa's varsity eight-plus boat also came away with its second victory of the day with a time of 7:10.9, nearly 20 seconds ahead

Hawkeye softball becomes road-worthy

■ The Iowa softball team swept four games from Minnesota and Wisconsin this weekend.

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

Before the season, Iowa softball coach Gayle Blevins said the key to a successful season was winning on the road.

The No. 15 Hawkeyes (24-7) got off on the right foot this weekend, beginning their Big Ten road season 4-0 by sweeping series against Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Bashor
Has eight home runs

"That's big," Blevins said on opening the Big Ten season undefeated. "You have to take advantage of all the opportunities you have. I'm real proud of how our team came out. These were real good wins."

Sunday, Iowa closed out its road trip with a 2-0 win against the Badgers.

The Hawkeyes again were led by Jessica Bashor. The freshman drove in Erin Doud for the game-winning RBI in the bottom of the first. Iowa scored again in the third off Liz Dennis' line-drive up the middle.

That's all Kristi Hanks needed. The sophomore struck out 11 and

You have to take advantage of all the opportunities you have. I'm real proud of how our team came out.

— Gayle Blevins,
Iowa softball coach improved to 10-4 on the year.

In Saturday's matchup against Wisconsin, Bashor again had the game-winning RBI. With two outs and no one aboard in the top of the sixth, she sent the ball over the centerfield fence for her eighth home run on the year. She now moves into third in Iowa's record books for most home runs in a season.

Kelly Zeilstra recorded her ninth shutout on the year and improved to 13-3.

Before heading to Madison, Wis., Iowa took care of defending Big Ten Tournament champion Minnesota in powerful fashion.

Friday, Iowa recorded 15 hits in the opening game of the doubleheader, an eight-inning, 6-3, win. In the second game, a 3-2 win, The Hawkeyes exploded for a season-high 16 hits. Bashor and sophomore Amber Morrow went 6-7 and 5-5 in both games, respectively.

The Hawkeyes stay on the road this week, going to take on Missouri Valley conference member Illinois State on Wednesday. The contest will be held in Normal, Ill and begins at 4 p.m.

Hawkeyes take a road pair from Buckeyes

■ The Iowa baseball team surprised by splitting a weekend series at Ohio State.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team walked into a lion's den last weekend in Columbus, Ohio to take on the defending Big Ten champions, the Ohio State Buckeyes.

And for once, they weren't the hunted, but the hunters.

The Hawkeyes (8-18, 3-5 Big Ten) used a complete effort to split their weekend series with Ohio State, keyed by the first-ever doubleheader sweep of the Buckeyes in Bill Davis Stadium.

The Hawkeyes became the first team ever to sweep a doubleheader from the Buckeyes in the four-year history of the stadium.

Sunday was as dim as Saturday was sparkling.

The day began with a half-hour rain delay, and the Buckeyes made it clear who was boss, scoring three first-inning runs off of starter Matt Gruber, who was pounded for five runs and five hits in one-plus inning of work.

The Buckeyes added four more runs in the second frame, chasing Gruber and giving Iowa a 7-0 hole to crawl out of in enemy territory. It would be too much for the Hawkeye bats to overcome, as OSU pitcher Nate Smith silenced Saturday's booming bats with seven innings of four-hit work.

Andy Jansen's fourth-inning home run was Iowa's only tally.

Gruber's ERA nearly tripled, from 1.16 to 3.38.

Saturday's doubleheader saw the Hawkeyes put together their best performances of the season thus far. In game one, Ryan Prahm, Steve Sharpe, and Reed Pawelk combined on a five-hitter, and Brad Carlson had two RBIs to deal the Buckeyes a 4-2 defeat.

The offense exploded in the day's second game, a 10-4 win. Carlson and center fielder Brian Bucklin led the way. Carlson went three-for-three, matching his game one total with two more RBIs, and Bucklin had two hits and two RBIs.

Friday night, the Hawkeyes battled the defending Big Ten champs to a 2-1 loss. Iowa freshman Matt Hasz pitched a complete game, giving up only three hits. Unfortunately, they all came in the fifth inning, where the Buckeyes scored their two runs.

Gymnasts want whole team at regionals

■ The best is yet to come, the Iowa women's gymnastics team hopes.

By Molly Thomas
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's gymnastics team is hungry for more.

Though four gymnasts' performance at the NCAA regionals on Saturday ended the season for the Hawkeyes, the team is already looking forward to qualifying for regionals next year.

Freshman Heather DeAtley competed on vault, junior Angie Hungerford competed on bars, and sophomore Corynne Cooper and senior Julie Matolo competed in all-around. Though they put forth solid performances, none of the individuals scored high enough to place in the meet and advance to the NCAA Championships.

"With all things considered the meet went okay," coach Mike Lorenzen said. "It was really hard for the girls to compete without their team behind them. Overall, I think that they really enjoyed the experience."

DeAtley scored a 9.700 in regional competition by performing what Lorenzen called her best vault of the year. A wobbly landing left Hungerford with a 9.650 bar score.

In the all-around competition, Matolo started off rough with a fall on beam and continued onto floor where she suffered another fall on her second pass. She finished the meet off successfully with a solid vault and bar routine.

"It was a good way for Julie to finish off her career," Lorenzen said. "She doesn't have any regrets."

Cooper also had a solid all-around competition, finishing with a score of 38.100. She started off with a shaky floor routine, but finished the last three events with a strong effort.

"It just wasn't my time this weekend," Cooper said. "My time will come soon enough."

Hungerford said that though the experience was incredible, it would be even better with the entire team involved. She found the chaos of competing as an individual to be overwhelming.

Young runners step up at UCLA

■ Some newer Hawkeyes delivered for the men's track team last weekend.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

Before last weekend's meet at UCLA, Iowa track coach Larry Wiczorek said he needed some of his younger guys to step up.

His wishes were somewhat granted Saturday as he saw a few new Hawkeyes make some great strides in Los Angeles, Ca.

"We had a lot of good performances," said Wiczorek. "We had some younger guys stepping up, but we still need a little more."

Junior Nick Nordheim was the lone Hawkeye winner of an event, taking home the title in the 3,000 meters with a time of 8:38:29. Earning second places were DeRocco Reed in the 110-meter high hurdles, Andy Morris in the steeplechase and the 4x400-meter relay team. Earning third place finishes were Adam Thomas in the 1,500 meters, Merrill Coleman in the 100 meters, Scott Williamson in the 400-meter hurdles, Arno van der Westhuizen in the hammer throw, Dan Ralph in the javelin and Jeremy Allen in the discus.

Iowa finished fourth in the meet, which included Wyoming and Cal State Northridge, and UCLA.

"It was a great trip to compete in Southern California against one of the best programs in the country," said Wiczorek.

Hawkeyes dominate at Mizzou

■ The Iowa women's track team excelled at the Missouri Relays last weekend.

By Robert Yarborough
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track and field team made history last weekend at the inaugural Missouri Relays in Columbia, Mo.

The team placed 15 athletes in the top five, set a new school record and won all relay events Saturday at the competition. There were no team scores in the contest, but the Hawkeyes dominated much of the competition.

Iowa placed first in the 4X100 relay with a season best time of 47.05, and Jesse Strand set a new school record in the outdoor pole vault when she cleared a 11-6 to place second in the competition. The Rockford, Ill. native shattered the previous record of 10-10.

"This competition was real important for us in terms of preparation," Iowa coach James Grant said. "We want to continue to excel from the performance we had in New Mexico (two weeks ago)."

Iowa dominated the 100 meter hurdles, sweeping the top two slots. Paula Ruen placed first with a time of 13.95, followed by Colleen Prendergast with a 14.08. Stacey-Leigh Bynoe was the only other individual champion, capturing first in the 400 meter dash with a time of 55.87.

"The track was really slow, but I think overall the team was really pleased with the overall performance," freshman Kristin Knight said. "The competition was not really all that tough, but everyone did their job."

Hawkeyes make strides in losses

The men's tennis team's weekend can't be measured by scores alone.

By Lisa Colonna
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team made some great strides this weekend, although the scores do not reflect the progress.

In the team's first homestand since February 27, the Hawkeyes hosted Indiana (10-5, 2-2 Big Ten) and Purdue (7-7, 2-2 Big Ten) on the Klotz Tennis Courts over the weekend.

No. 35 Indiana downed Iowa, 6-1, Saturday and No. 40 Purdue defeated Iowa, 6-1, Sunday.

Although the scores were the same, Iowa (5-9, 1-3 Big Ten) lost in straight-set matches to the Hoosiers, while four of six singles matches went into three sets against the Boilermakers.

Iowa's Nos. 3-6 singles matches all went into three sets Sunday.

"There was a world of difference between the matches," coach Steve Houghton said. "(Sunday) a lot of the matches could have gone either way. We lost four, three-set matches and Stuart (Waters') match at No. 2 almost went into three sets."

Tyler Cleveland had Iowa's two lone victories on the weekend. Cleveland bettered his individual record at No. 1 to 13-1 this spring. He defeated Indiana's Milan Rakvica, 6-2, 6-2, and Purdue's Jason Marshall, 7-5, 6-4.

Sunday's match against Marshall was a rematch of sorts. Marshall defeated Cleveland in the 1999 Big Ten Singles Championships.

"He crushed me the first time we played," Cleveland said of the 1999 meeting. "So, I was a little nervous at the beginning when I was getting a feel for him (Sunday). I used some varied (techniques) to get him off his match."

Sunday's match against Purdue also marked the return of Eric Kozlowski to the Iowa singles lineup. Kozlowski had sat out the most of the spring season due to a stress fracture in his foot.

He played in the No. 6 position, losing in three sets to Laith Al-Agba, 6-1, 2-6, 5-7.

"It's great to be playing again and being able to compete," Kozlowski said. "I did not have the best start, but I'm getting back into it."

The losses this weekend put Iowa at 1-3 in the Big Ten. With six Big Ten duals remaining, the Hawkeyes are sizing up their remaining competition and discovering each week how they compare.

"(This weekend) was proof of how good the Big Ten is," Houghton said. "I've been coaching for 20 years and these are the best Big Ten teams yet. (They are) tough each time out."

"We took a step forward (Sunday), but the score doesn't show it. If we (continue) to play like this we'll have some success (in the future)."

Iowa will compete at Wisconsin Friday, and will host Minnesota Sunday morning at 10:30.

DI sports writer Lisa Colonna can be reached at lcolonna@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu.

Kite wins first Senior title in playoff

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Tom Kite made a 1-foot birdie putt on the sixth hole of a playoff with Tom Watson to win the Tradition, the Senior PGA Tour's first major of the season.

Larry Nelson also finished regulation Sunday at 8-under-par 280, but bogeyed the second playoff hole, leaving Kite and Watson, two of the four famous first-year players on the tour, to duel it out for another four holes.

Watson shot a 4-under 68, but had the most ground to make up. He opened the tournament with a 76, but shot a remarkable 66 on Friday when storms delayed play for four hours.

Nelson shot a 69 in the final round, and Kite, still trying to get comfortable with his putter, struggled to a 72.

The victory closed a gap for Kite, who won the 1992 U.S. Open and 20 other titles on the regular tour. He was the only one of three famed senior rookies who had yet to win. He also had seen only modest financial success, with one top-10 finish in his first four tournaments. But the $240,000 first prize sent Kite's earnings to $311,426 — enough to jump from 49th to fifth on the money list.

Watson won one of two events he entered after turning 50 last fall, and Lanny Wadkins won the first one he entered this year.

Bruce Fleisher, who has won twice already this year, was fourth at 282, and Joe Inman followed at 283.

Age only a number to Kwan

Michelle Kwan is disproving the notion that figure skaters fade with age.

By Colleen Barry
Associated Press

NICE, France — Michelle Kwan is figure skating's world champion of even years: 1996, 1998, 2000. And each time, she's been at a distinctly new stage in her development.

She was only 15 when she won her first world title, prompting talk that the younger jumping bean skaters risked robbing the sport of its grace. When she won at 17, she had made the transition through adolescence, retaining her athleticism while projecting new maturity.

Her most recent title — and in her words the most satisfying — came Saturday. Kwan admits having had trouble adjusting to college, and not skating as much as she would have liked in the fall.

But she buckled down over the winter, adding tougher jumps. Kwan's short and long programs were the most technically difficult of her career — and she needed nothing less to advance from third in the short program to win the title.

"I never felt like that! I never felt as fast," Kwan said coming off the ice.

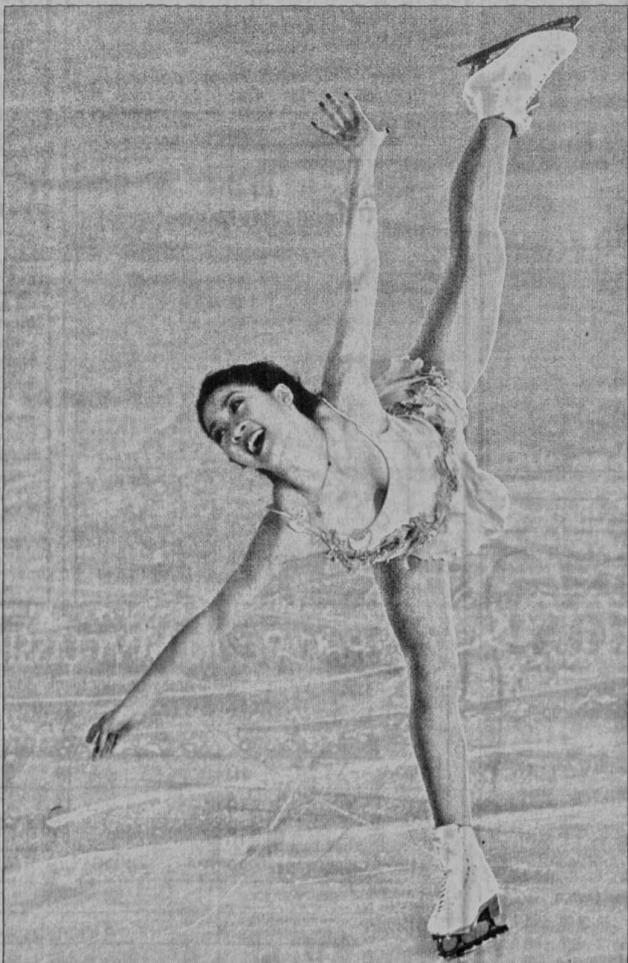

Not so long ago, a female skater's championship season seemed as brief and fragile as a butterfly's life span.

The impression was enhanced by Tara Lipinski's rapid rise to the world title and Olympic gold at 15, followed immediately by her dash to the more lucrative and less demanding world of show skating.

But Kwan and the Russians who shared the podium with her Saturday night, silver medalist Irina Slutskaya and bronze medalist Maria Butyrskaya, are bringing longevity to the sport and challenging notions about women and figure skating.

"I don't think age has anything to do with it," said veteran coach Richard Callaghan, who trained Lipinski through her titles. "It's your mind and how you decide to keep your body."

Slutskaya, 21, dropped from international view entirely last year after failing to place at the Russian nationals and losing her chance to compete at the Europeans or worlds. She put on weight and appeared to have slipped from the elite ranks for good.

But Slutskaya came back strong and slimmer this year, winning the Russian title, then the Europeans. She even raised the ante in the women's jumps when she beat Kwan at the Grand Prix final in January with a triple lutz-triple loop combination and a 6.0 for technical merit.

And at 27, Butyrskaya once would have seemed impossibly old. But she won the title in 1999, the oldest woman to be a world champion.

Perhaps the most artistic and expressive skater in the sport, demonstrated in her softly skated short program, Butyrskaya has nonetheless often folded under pressure.

Mickelson, rain beat Nicklaus

Phil Mickelson won a one-hole playoff to beat Gary Nicklaus in the BellSouth Classic Sunday.

DULUTH, Ga. — Streaks and sentimental victories don't stand a chance against Phil Mickelson. Seven weeks ago, Mickelson stood up to another comeback by Tiger Woods and ended the longest PGA Tour winning streak in 55 years. In the rain-shortened BellSouth Classic, he offered no apologies for ending the dream week of Gary Nicklaus.

Mickelson needed only two shots on a soggy Sunday, a 9-iron to 18 feet and the putt for birdie to win on the first playoff hole and deny Nicklaus a chance to be known for something more than just his last name.

"It would have been very nice for him to have been able to break through and get his first tournament win," Mickelson said. "I didn't want it to be at my expense. So I don't feel bad about that at all."

The final round was canceled when heavy rain turned bunkers into beaches and left most of the sloppy TPC at Sugarloaf unplayable.

The skies cleared just long enough for Mickelson and Nicklaus, tied at 11-under 205 after 54 holes, to go to the par-3 16th hole for a sudden-death playoff.

It didn't last long. Mickelson went first, and hit a high draw safely to the green, the ball spinning back even with the pin. Nicklaus followed with an 8-iron that covered the flag, but was hit just heavy enough to find the bunker.

He paid dearly for such a minuscule miss. The ball came to rest just 4 inches from a lip that was 10 inches high, but looked more like Mount Everest from his view.

"Not much I could do from that position," Nicklaus said.

He opened the blade and tried to pop it over the lip, but it caught the top of the bunker wall and spun back into the sand. His third short just missed the hole but rolled 8 feet by, and Mickelson made his putt to end whatever suspense was left.

Mickelson earned $504,000 — each shot worth $252,000. It also made the drive east on Interstate 20 a little sweeter for Mickelson, who has won twice in his last six tournaments and goes to the Masters with a load of confidence.

"What I want to do is be able to bring the play that I had this week into next week," he said. "I think Augusta provides a great opportunity for me to win my first major."

Nicklaus stared solemnly at the soggy grass as Mickelson mugged for the cameras with his 9-month-old daughter. Still, he found consolation in defeat.

He earned $302,400, which should be enough to keep his card for next year. And he proved something to himself, even if he didn't get a full round to state his case as a solid player who just happens to be the 31-year-old son of Jack Nicklaus.

"I proved to myself that I can win out here," Nicklaus said. "I was one shot away from winning the tournament, one hole against one of the best players in the world. It just lets me know that there are good things coming down the road."

Besides, Nicklaus acknowledged that the worst that could have happened in the playoff was that he finished second.

"A lot worse could have happened if I had to go out and play 18," he said.

Then again, sudden death leaves no room for error or bad breaks, and Nicklaus got a little of both.

Sampras edges Kuerten in four-set thriller at Ericsson

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. — Pete Sampras earned his first tournament title of the year Sunday, thrilling a boisterous crowd by beating Brazilian Gustavo Kuerten in a dramatic four-set marathon to win the Ericsson Open.

Sampras squandered six match points before winning 6-1, 6-7 (2), 7-6 (5), 7-6 (8) in 3 hours, 18 minutes. Looking weary, Sampras took a 6-2 lead in the final tiebreaker but then made four consecutive errors to make the score 6-6. He held another match point at 7-6 but double-faulted, and hit a backhand return long at 8-7.

Sampras went ahead again, 9-8, then came to the net behind his serve. Kuerten's forehand passing shot clipped the net cord and sailed long. Sampras raised both arms in jubilation as Kuerten angrily swiped at the ground with his racket, mangling it.

The sellout crowd of 14,145 was evenly divided in its loyalty, with many fans waving Brazilian flags and singing Kuerten's nickname, Guga. But chants of "Let's go Pete" dominated during the final tiebreaker.

"I was choking there at the end, feeling my nerves," Sampras said.
