Citizens decrie I.C. police tactics

Local residents express concern over police “knock and talks”

By Megan L. Eckhardt

An Iowa City resident told the Iowa City City Council that police come to his door and ask him to do something illegal. Richard Zimmerman was one of many local residents who met with city officials about “knock and talks”—one of the requirements for local police to receive a grant from the Johnson County Multi-Agency Drug Task Force. Iowa City police have received the grant for 10 years, and they have included it in their budget for the upcoming fiscal year. Zimmerman was asked to gather feedback on its proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

Washington - a Moscow-based FBI agent was arrested Tuesday after being questioned by agents in Moscow on suspicion of spying for Russian intelligence services for more than 15 years, bringing the total number of undercover agents in Moscow of 30 in recent years. The FBI said it has received information about the most treacherous actions imaginable.

- Robert Philip Hansen, 58, of Atlanta, was the third FBI agent ever accused of working against the U.S.

- The FBI said the allegations were based on reports from informants and surveillance.

- The FBI said the agent was a man who had worked for the FBI for 30 years and was a lure for Russian intelligence services.

- Hansen, a 35-year-old FBI agent, was arrested Sunday at his home in suburban Alexandria, Virginia after dropping a package of documents for his Russian contacts, including agents who worked for the FBI. He was found dead in his apartment on Monday.

- Hansen was a member of the KBG, the KGB's predecessor.

leak of good things for the con- vention, but it has also contributed a negative aspect of the city. "This is not a city that we want to live in," she said. "We can't possibly imagine growing and becoming a city that we want to live in."

Mayor Eric Lehmann said that he didn't know why the situation remained because it was an important issue to him and he was concerned about the overall needs of the community. He added that it has been a problem for a long time and that the residents have a right to expect better from their government.

Dana, a resident, said that she felt disappointed by the lack of action and that she believed the council should have taken more immediate action to address the issues.

Robert, a member of the community, said that he was concerned about the safety of the residents and that he believed the council should do more to protect the city from future problems.

The meeting ended with a call to action for the residents to take more responsibility for their community and to work together to make it a safer and more pleasant place to live.

A week ago, a federal appeals court said the music industry almost certainly will win its lawsuit against Napster.

A testimonial panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Napster to stop millions of users from swapping copyrighted music without charge and without restriction. Napster, whose lawyers have said such action would be virtually impossible, vowed to appeal.

The company has argued it is not in the business of sub- scripts are copyrighted material.

But the appeals court said there was "evidence of an un­ authorized downloading and uploading of plaintiffs' copyrighted works - as many as 10,000 files per second by defendants' users." Napster's popularity exploded in 1999

Putin proposes missile defense

In response to the U.S. plan, Russia lobby European to develop a joint, mobile defense system.

By Vladimir Zakharov
Associated Press

MOSCOW - Russian President Vladimir Putin lobbed his first salvo in a protracted and sensitive struggle with the United States, announcing that Russia would build a new mobile missile-defense system.

A U.S. system ranges from $80 billion to $90 billion. Details of the Russian alternative are being worked out. Putin and his NATO counterparts on Tuesday were asked by the United States to give serious consideration to Moscow's European missile-defense proposal and said Moscow continued to view Russia's abstract expansion as a clear danger.

The plan, said Russian military officials, aims to create a joint group of experts to analyze possible missile threats. If such threats are considered serious, Russia and European states would jointly deploy anti-missile defences as a last resort.

Barak back out of Israeli coalition

The caretaker leader reversed his decision again and says he won't serve in Ariel Sharon's government.

JERUSALEM - A document obtained late Tuesday, caretaker Prime Minister Ehud Barak informed his successor Ariel Sharon that he will not serve as defense minister, an official said.

Less than a week ago, Barak advocated Sharon's offer to serve in the defense post, setting off a procedure expected by mid-March to create a new unity government. Barak reversed his position, however, after meeting separately with Sharon and Prof. Rehavam Ze'evi on Feb. 5.

The Associated Press could not confirm whether a letter was written to Sharon. But Barak's letter to Ze'evi, obtained by the AP, said Barak is not backing out of his commitment to serve as defense minister, an official said.

The document confirmed reports of Ze'evi's meeting with Barak.

Fastball shines in night's easy light

A 1998 class of 1500 at the University of Iowa was surprised to find out they were on the list. The university had received a $100 million dollar gift from an unknown donor. The University of Iowa basketball team was facing the University of Michigan, who had been ranked number one in the country all season. The game was held in the new H.J. Heinz Field, which opened earlier that year.

The game was a huge success, with over 60,000 fans in attendance. The Hawkeyes won with a score of 75-63, which was the highest-scoring game in the history of the University of Iowa basketball team.

The players and coaches were all thrilled with the win, and the University of Iowa community was proud of their team. The game was broadcast on ESPN and was watched by millions of people around the world.

Despite the success, some of the players were disappointed with the outcome. One player said, "I thought we were going to win. We played well, but we just couldn't close the deal." Another player added, "We had the opportunity to win, but we just couldn't hold on." Overall, it was a great night for the University of Iowa basketball team.
Hogan's status unclear

As the gray inky moon rose in the sky, Jeff Earnhardt was convinced the jury was out on him. He didn't have enough practice to win tonight, he said. He was too tired to think about what was happening on the track. His father, the one who had taught him how to drive, was also there tonight.

The race was at Talladega, and the track was wide. It was a day for the track to show what it could do. And it was a day for Earnhardt to show what he could do.

He was driving his car, and he was going fast. But he was also going slow. He was trying to figure out what was going on. He was trying to figure out how he could make it through the finish line without getting hit.

Then he saw it. A dark cloud. And he knew he was in trouble. He knew he was going to crash. He knew he was going to die.

But then he didn't. He made it through the finish line. And he lived. And he won.

The other drivers saw it. They were happy for him. They were sad for him. They were scared for him. They were angry for him.

Sheffield demanding a trade or more money

The Dodgers are trying to trade the outfielder.

By Ken Peters

Los Angeles - The Los Angeles Dodgers, baseball's Team Turner, will not be in new owners.

Gray Sheffield, who is owed more than $100 million as baseball's highest, is trying to deal the unpopular outfielder, who claims he's been disrespected.

The six-time All-Star was a new contract, a trade to the New York Yankees, New York Mets or Atlanta.

Los Angeles general manager Kevin Malone already had been shopping the left-handed pitcher, offering him to the Mets for either Mike Piazza or Kirk Radomski.

Sheffield, who is a free agent, told the New York Times that he has an offer from three clubs, but the Mets offered $11 million.

Sheffield's agent, Chuck Klein, told the Associated Press that he will drive to Las Vegas to try to trade him.

"I'd like to see him here," said Klein, who works for the Mets. "He's one of the best in the league. You don't want him hitting against you. You want him to be in your lineup."

Sheffield, who has surgery to correct a bursa sac in his left hand, passed hours earlier.

His therapist, who claims he's been treated for a broken finger, said: "He's told me he's been treated for a broken finger."

Sheffield hit .255 with 43 homers and 110 RBIs, and amassed 300 runs and drove in 101 runs with a season.

He is owed $9.5 million in each of the next two seasons, $11 million in 2004. There's a bonus of $4 million for 2004.

Sheffield's agent informed the Dodgers of his wishes to be traded or to receive bonuses, which a long-sought contract extension that would be made with his own contract to the Dodgers.

He refused the extension, which he now realizes, he will not get back from the Dodgers.

Brian O'Neill, director of community relations, added that Sheffield's demands were all about treating him.

Baltimore's Belle passes physical

Jeff Bagwell was more telling that the physical he passed last week.

Albert Belle closed out with the Baltimore Orioles yesterday, but his athletic rights by his doctors to Hill to practice until Tuesday afternoon.

Belle is serving out a probate of the first two of the three remaining games until his hearing.

The club said that he's been told to stay clear of illegal substances.

Belle hit 3 home runs, 15 RBIs and 12 doubles in 30 games in September with an average of .270.

"He told me to stay away from any illegal substances," Belle said.

Jim Riggleman said that he's not sure Belle will be included in the lineup when the Orioles begin exhibition games.

Baltimore's Tony Tarasco hit a two-run inside-the-park home run, his first since the World Series.

The Orioles will begin a new season Monday.

"He told me to stay away from any illegal substances," Belle said.

"I'm told, but we talked about it for another couple days," Williams said.

"He told me not to go to the ballpark to watch baseball games."

Afterward, the executive vice president of baseball operations for the commissioner's office, is expected to make an announcement to Commissioner Bud Selig.

Sheffield's saga continues

Brian O'Neill, Chicago's general manager, is expected to offer to sell the Blue Jays for $28.4 million.

The Blue Jays have not yet made an offer for Sheffield.

According to Toronto's general manager, Brian Cashman, the Blue Jays had offered to sell the Blue Jays for $28.4 million.

The Blue Jays are offering an extension of the 14-year-old contract for $20 million from 2004.

Sheffield is the one player that would make $28.4 million to buy out the Blue Jays.

"It doesn't make sense for me to sign for the Blue Jays to buy out the Blue Jays," Williams said.

"We don't want to sign for the Blue Jays to buy out the Blue Jays," Williams said.

Beijing security tight for Olympic inspection

Officials were worried that protests would ruin their chances of hosting the 2008 Olympics.

By Christopher Johnson

BEIJING - Guards checked bags and IDs at Tiananmen Square, and police patrolled the vast plaza to prevent any demonstrations as the start of an Olympic inspection tour nears.

Chinese officials were worried that more than half of the International Olympic Committee members - who in July will choose an Olympic host city from among five candidates - have never visited China. They are expected to tour the inspection committee's findings in assessing their chances.

Egged on by a perky cheering crowd of thousands, the students were seen parading in formation, waving colorful fake flags, blowing whistles and blowing party horns. The last of the 17-member Olympic inspection tour arrived Tuesday morning, two days before the start of a four-day inspection tour.

The inspection of Beijing's sports facilities, infrastructure and plans for hosting the Games in July 2008 will show whether the international prestige it would bring the communist nation.
