In Iowa speech, Gore calls for solidarity

By Nick Kulp

Des Moines — Al Gore praised America for standing behind President Bush in wake of the Sept. 11 tragedy in his first public appearance as the Democratic presidential candidate.

As Americans, all of us stand behind our president, and we will win this war against terrorism, Gore told a large crowd at a Democratic Party fund-raiser in Des Moines Sept. 29. "George W. Bush is my commander in chief," he said.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Senate approved a $40 billion aid package for victims of the Sept. 11 attacks.

As Americans, all of us stand behind our president, and we will win this war against terrorism.

WASHINGTON — The United States attacks terrorist targets in Afghanistan, soldiers will have to deal with not only terrorism but also with casualties of starting, disrupting, and fearful refugees. Military officials elsewhere have found none of the usual comforts — food, shelter, water, medications — will help soothe the humanitarian crisis and avoid killing civilians. Failure in either could spark public opposition against the war on terrorism, not only in the United States but around the world.

That's a tall order for a country ravaged by 22 large-scale attacks in the past 10 years, with approximately $1.2 million réfugiés fleeing every year in other countries. Thousands more Afghans have fled their homes since the Taliban terror attacks in the United States, forcing smaller-scale strikes against support Osama bin Laden and the Taliban militiamen that shelters them.

U.S. to Taliban: No negotiating on bin Laden

By Susan M. Schafer

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Taliban government confirmed Sunday that Osama bin Laden still is in Afghanistan, but the White House firmly rejected an offer to negotiate his fate.

Meeting Attorney General John Ashcroft warned of a "very serious threat" of new terrorism against Americans that may increase if the United States retaliates for the Sept. 11 attacks.

"We believe that there is the likelihood of additional terrorist activity," Ashcroft said on CNN's "The Situation Room." "We believe that others who may be in the country who would have plans." Ashcroft said a plan that was caught before the upcoming hearing for those behind the strikes against the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

The administration has acknowledged for the first time that bin Laden is in Afghanistan and under the control of the Taliban. He said negotiations might be possible if the United States offered evidence linking bin Laden to the attacks.

Residents offered words of encouragement to the fallen firefighter and other families.

"Part of what sustains us as a nation is the strong sense of camaraderie that we've felt with tragedies — stories of courage, bravery and self-sacrifice. That same bond that tied our firefighters, that same bond that held the country together while everyone else ran down.

The Taliban offered a cash reward for a moment during a tribute to fallen firefighters at the firefighter memorial in Coralville Sunday.

District B candidates air it out on the issues

By Katlie Doyle and Mike McWilliam

The Daily Iowan

Twin Iowa City residents on Friday night filled to capacity the City Council chambers, hoping for one of the seats and their influence in Iowa City's most public arena. Connie Champion and Brandon Ross battled for the District B Constable seat.

Connie Champion

Champion began by noting she has been a resident of Iowa City for ten years. "I've lived here, and I've seen the changes that have occurred. I have been here through the worst of times and the best of times."

Champion stated that during the 2019 state budget cuts, many of Iowa City's services were cut, including parking enforcement. "I need to be in a position to enforce those things to ensure that the taxpayers' money is being used for the best possible candidate," Champion said.

Champion also noted that she is currently a restaurant owner and has seen firsthand the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. "I've seen the impact that the pandemic had on the restaurant industry, and I believe it's important to have someone on the City Council who understands the challenges faced by local businesses." Champion added that she believes she is the best candidate to help Iowa City recover from the pandemic.

Giant farms find true cash crop

By Philip Brasher
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Florida real-estate developer, Texas' massive King Ranch and dozens of other giant farms are cashing in on a program created last year to bypass payment limits on federal subsidies for grain, cotton, and other crops.

Marjie Wilder, a Charleston, South Carolina, lawyer, said she worked out a deal in which a client, a developer who owns 130,000 acres of farm and ranch land in eight states, but selected only $1.2 million in benefits to receive from the U.S. government. The client was allowed to leave home at certain times with a GPS receiver, which limits on federal subsidies for grain, cotton, rice, sorghum, barley, and soybeans. The bulk of the money paid out on the 2000 harvest — $290.9 million — went to rice and cotton interests.

The program, which also has three years of financial disclosure that may be available as an option under the Freedom of Information Act. Walder Corp., according to the Associated Press under the Freedom of Information Act.

Officials use GPS to monitor offenders

By Martha Raffaele

SCRANTON, Pa. — The green dot on the city map that Mrs. Christine Thack's computer screen doesn't move for several minutes, and that is exactly what she wants.

"It's almost a must in the agricultural business today to get some government support," Thack said. "I think it's a good deal," said Wilder, who owns a series of office holdings and mobile-home parks in addition to farming interests in Colorado and Texas. The system is that you know where. In addition to signals from the GPS satellites and information from the receiver, Thack's system can track her car's movement.

The GPS system also uses one or two satellites, which is all that's needed to know where the car is. The system can track the car's movement.

Hawkeye fans flocked to Kinnick Stadium by the thousands for the Iowa-Penn State game on Sept. 29, in which the Hawkeyes beat the Nittany Lions, 24-18, improving their record to 3-0.

In keeping with this year's Homecoming theme of "A Story Told in Black and Gold," Iowa fans, among the more than 69,400 attendees, proudly peppered the bleachers with their black and gold Hawkeye gear.

In reaction to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, fans attending the game were asked to come an hour early because of heightened security. They were prohibited from bringing bags and other items such as opened water bottles into Kinnick; fans were not permitted re-entry after leaving during halftime. Game officials and fans honored the victims of the terrorist attacks with one minute of silence before kick-off.

Other Homecoming activities over the weekend included a parade in downtown Iowa City on Sept. 28. Steve Alford, Iowa men's basketball coach, acted as grand marshal. A 25-foot inflatable Herky the Hawkeye was purchased for the parade through the sale of Homecoming buttons; Herky was one of approximately 75 entries. Members of the Iowa City Fire Department headed the parade with a silent tribute to New York City firefighters.

Former S. Vietnam president dies

By Theo Enor
Associated Press

BOSTON — Former South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, who led South Vietnam in the war that tore apart the divided nation until his collapse in 1975, died late on Sept. 29 at Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston, hospital spokesman Jerry Berger said Sunday.

The death was confirmed by Tran Nha Said, who was a relative of Thieu and said Thieu's family had asked that the news be kept secret until relatives could gather in Boston, Nha said.

The family had contacted many members of the Vietnamese expatriate community.

"Most of the expatriates now, with the more than 35 years of history, can see his role in a very positive way, in his contribution to the Vietnamese people," Nha said.

Thieu was the former secretary general of South Vietnam's House of Deputies.

"He was a very intelligent and nice person, but as a husband, his extramarital affairs were associated with the American leaders at the time," Tran said Sunday.

"He had to remain in public and political life, and he was also a good father," Tran said.

Even with the assistance of 400,000 U.S. troops and massive amounts of military aid, Thieu was never able to turn the tide against the North.

When North Vietnamese troops were closing in on the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon, and the war was all but officially lost, "there was still the gathering hope that somehow, perhaps, in some way, the last battle, the last gasp of glory, the last half-decent performance, the last act, would bring the power of the government down for a resumption of tri-partite talks with the North Vietnamese military regime," he said.

"I gave him that position and responsibility," Ky said Sunday in Los Angeles. He said he spoke with Thieu's wife and family by telephone on Sept. 29 after receiving news of Thieu's death.

The two had not seen each other since they fled South Vietnam in 1975, and Ky decided to remain silent. "I don't think it is the right time to make a comment about someone who has just passed away," he said.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said Sunday there was no immediate comment on Thieu's death.

Thieu's legacy is the man who left the fall of South Vietnam unannounced to North Vietnam's cabinet on Sept. 30, 1975, a government spokesman said Sunday.

"People don't know how he went, how he came to live with North Vietnam," Tran said.

But he left power defeated, Ky, who had previously wielded the most influence in the superpower nation that divided the United States, died late late on Sept. 29 in Boston. He was 78.

Mideast truce wobbles as officials continue to bicker

By Greg Myre

Jerusalem — A Mideast truce has remained shaky Sunday, with Israeli troops firing tear gas into the air in Jerusalem's Old City and the Palestinians vowing to continue protests, even during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan, if the cease-fire continues to hold.

Palestinian officials continue to bicker about the cease-fire, which was announced last week by Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas.

The situation intensified Sunday when Israeli troops fired tear gas at Palestinian protesters marching in Jerusalem, an official said.

“Unfortunately, the Palestinian Authority has never stood firmly against violence," Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert said. "We made the decision last week to implement a cease-fire and that's what we're doing."

Raise awareness of domestic violence

"Today marks the beginning of Domestic Violence Awareness Month. The term "domestic violence" is used to refer to situations in which a deliberate physical, sexual, or psychological harm is inflicted by one partner on another within a family or intimate partnership, by an intimate partner with at least one member of the family, or by neighbors or roommates. Domestic violence includes abuse of elders, children, and same-sex partners. Domestic violence also includes the often-overlooked situations of violence against people who live in intimate relationships, whether or not the relationship is sexual in nature. Abuse can occur in the form of physical, emotional, or financial harm. Abuse can be verbal, physical, sexual, emotional, or financial. Abuse is a form of powerlessness and control over another individual. Abuse can also be an attempt to gain control over the person being abused. Abuse is a common form of violence in the United States, and it is estimated that 1 in 4 women and 1 in 7 men will experience physical or sexual abuse in their lifetime. Abuse can be a result of poverty, education, or cultural attitudes. Abuse can lead to serious and permanent injuries, and it can also result in death. Abuse can be prevented by raising awareness, educating individuals, and providing resources and support to those who are affected.

Learning how to see

By A.J. Kampeskov

Sometimes one scene is all it takes for a film to ask emotional viewers into its story. For me, it was the moment in Hearts in Atlantis when 12-year-old Bobby Garfield (Anton Yelchin) ran out to the Ferris wheel at the carnival. Without Bobby's angle, it seems too young, too innocent. Don't read too much into the extroverted little boy who wants to touch the girl, she explains. "It just wasn't ready. Bobby wasn't ready." What's remarkable about this scene is that director David Morse didn't try to manipulate the drama into anything more than it was in its own way, no cheap- shot caught in low light. That's just another comedy in which Bobby's always ready, always ready to lend a helpful but important friendship.

Hearts in Atlantis is a modest, disarming film that resonates on a deeply moving level of shared human experience. Turnovers and penalties nail 3rd Iowa victory
By Melissa Nowakowski
The Daily Iowan

A faultless performance it was, but that doesn't mean the Iowa fans wouldn't take a victory over Penn State — even an ugly one.

The resounding words, but the Hawkeyes' mistakes following their 24-18 win over the Nittany Lions were far fewer than in recent outings. The offense, defensively and especially in the special teams didn't stall and ended up with such a positive outcome.

"If we continue to do that, we will be very succinct receiver Keith Hill said. "I think we're just that much better." Despite being flagged 10 times for 94 yards, Iowa opened the Big Ten season in nervous fashion, improved its record to 4-1 overall and remained unbeaten at 2-0 in conference play.

Penn State's fifth loss in its last six games, stemming back to last season, prevented Paterno from achieving his 250th career win No. 251 as well. The Nittany Lions are 5-6 all time against the Hawkeyes; 1-1 in the last two meetings and have lost to Iowa at home only once in the past four seasons, a 17-14 verdict of Oct. 19, 2002.

"It was a heck of a football game," said Iowa's head coach Kirk Ferentz.

"It was a good football game, but we were a little better, that's all," Paterno replied.

Iowa soccer team continues hot play

By Jeremy Shapiro

The Daily Iowan

Capping off a dominant week for soccer, the Hawkeyes defeated Wisconsin 1-0 Sunday for their first-ever victory over the Badgers. The win came just three days after getting the programs first-ever win over Iowa State.

"The game was a completely new experience. It was a completely new experience," said Iowa head coach Stan Jones.

The Hawkeyes scored in the first half when forward Aliona Mojzis took a pass from Bliss and scored the lone goal of the game. The win raises Iowa's record to 8-0-1.

The Iowa men's golf team competed at the Michigan Invitational this weekend. The team finished in sixth place after the first round, but dropped to 11th place after the second round.

"It's about time we turn it around," said head coach Steve Morgan. "It's about time we turn it around."

Volleyball team extends losing streak

By Tyler Lashbrook

The Iowa women’s volleyball team extended its losing streak to six matches with a 3-2 loss to Michigan State on Saturday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Freshman Katie Danila was the bright spot for Iowa, with 13 kills in the loss. The Hawkeyes’ 12th straight match loss dropped them to 5-5 overall, and the Big Ten conference dropped to 2-3.

Iowa had a total of 37 kills, but Michigan State had 38. Iowa committed 14 errors, but Michigan State had 22.

Michigan State (9-7, 2-3 Big Ten) won the first set 25-20, but Iowa (5-5, 1-4 Big Ten) kept the series level with a 25-22 victory.

Michigan State won the third set 25-18 to go up 2-1, but Iowa tied the match again with a 25-19 win.

Michigan State won the fifth set 25-15, moving the match to a sixth and deciding set.

Iowa held a 15-13 lead in the sixth set, but Michigan State won the set 25-21.

“She was ourxenger,” said Coach Rita Buck Crockett after the match.

Iowa was out-hit .228 to .282.

The Hawkeyes’ next match is set for Friday when they host Minnesota at 7 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Field hockey team yet to win Big Ten game

By Roseanna Smith

The Iowa field hockey team is 0-4 in Big Ten play, not counting the win over Webster University.

Iowa has faced several tough teams in its four games, including Penn State, Ohio State, Michigan, and Michigan State.

The Hawkeyes have played their last two games on the road, which could be a factor in their slow start to conference play.

Iowa was recently defeated by Ohio State, 2-0, in a closely contested game.

“Despite the loss, we learned a lot from this game,” said Iowa head coach Lisa Levin.

Levin said the Hawkeyes will focus on improving their defense in preparation for their next game at home against Penn State.

“The defense was solid, but we need to work on our attack,” Levin said.

Iowa is looking to bounce back against the Nittany Lions and get their first Big Ten win of the season.
