Sen. McCain: Unleash military might

WASHINGTON — Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said the United States must unleash military force to wipe out the Taliban, warning Americans must prepare for a drawn-out conflict.

The Senate's co-president rejected the Bush administration's plan to push for an all-Muslim government in Afghanistan, saying that was not enough to capture and hold the Taliban or to improve a slowing economy. He also said he agreed with Vice President Dick Cheney that large numbers of ground troops, to be used in public forums.

Iraqi civilians were being targeted, he said during a forum at the Daily Iowan.

KABUL, Afghanistan — At least 13 civilians were killed Sunday when U.S.-led air strikes meant to hit Taliban targets accidentally targeted a residential neighborhood of the Afghan capital, killing 13 civilians, witnesses said.

It was the second time in as many days that missiles have accidentally hit homes and killed residents.

Later Sunday, U.S. jets launched over the skin of the besieged Afghan capital, and coalition officials were debated over civilian casualties.

CDC confirms another anthrax case

By Rachael E. Schmir

WASHINGTON — The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention confirmed Sunday that a new case of anthrax had been reported to it, continuing a broad investigation that has captured the attention of scientists and law enforcement officials.

Late Saturday, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention confirmed a third case of anthrax in the United States, raising the number of confirmed cases to four. The cases include one in New York City, one in Washington, D.C., and one in Tennessee. The fourth case was reported to the CDC on Sunday.

The fourth case was reported to the CDC on Sunday. The patient, a 54-year-old man, was admitted to a hospital in New York City on Saturday night with symptoms consistent with anthrax.

The patient, who is in his 50s, was admitted to a hospital in New York City on Saturday night with symptoms consistent with anthrax. He had been exposed to the anthrax agent, which he contracted from a letter he received in the mail.

The patient was placed in isolation and was receiving treatment for anthrax. The CDC was notified of the case and is working with local health officials to investigate the source of exposure.

The investigation into the source of the anthrax outbreak continues. The CDC has advised people who may have been exposed to the anthrax agent to seek medical attention immediately.

The agency has also advised people who have received letters or packages that may contain anthrax to contact local health officials.

Gunmen slay 16 in Pakistani church

By Khalid Tanveer

BEHAWALPUR, Pakistan - Gunmen with "bags of guns and bullets" stormed into a Christian church in Pakistan during Sunday services and opened fire, killing the minister and a dozen parishioners, officials said.

It was unclear whether the attack was related to recent unrest over persecution of Christians.

The shooting occurred at the Catholic church in Behawalpur, a city in Pakistan's southern Punjab province.

The Rev. Rocus Javed, who leads the church, said six men burst into the front pew when the four women and seriously injured a man in his early 20s.

Recalling the first incident, a Protestant parish priest at St. Patrick's Church in Rawalpindi - approximately $5.

"The claim of responsibility, but we have no evidence, the attacker said."

In Pakistan, this is a common occurrence where gunmen enter a church and open fire indiscriminately.

"Whenever something happens, they start thinking it's a high-profile event, a symbol of a generation's struggle," said Rehman, a Pakistani police officer.

"This is not the first time," he said. "It happens every few years."

Pakistan's main radical Islamic group has been given 48 hours to challenge its military occupation, observers report.

Pakistan's military said Sunday it would begin its main offensive against the Taliban in the country's north Sunday.

The offensive is expected to be launched in the city of Peshawar, which is near the Pakistan-Afghanistan border.

The Taliban has announced that it will not surrender to the army, and has called for a military intervention in the region.

The group has been fighting in the region for more than a decade, and has a large presence in the area.

The offensive is expected to involve thousands of troops and may last for several days.

K-PAX falls to Earth, but gently, with restraint

Musician cancels overseas tour dates

By Rebecca Mandi Moody
Associated Press
NEW YORK — First it was the Backstreet Boys. Then D'Angelo. Now one more high-profile act is joining the list of global stars postponing overseas shows, citing concern for the U.S.-born man who arrives at a New York train station one day who can't remember how he got there, and has a fractured right inidual record. He has no friends, no family, no sense of his past, no memory of what happens there, and no sense of who he is when he wakes up. It's as if he's stuck in a loop of time, unable to escape.

Dr. Powell suggests that K-Pax suffers from a mental illness, and it's his job to try to piece together K-Pax's identity. Though he has no idea who he is, Powell believes there is a core to K-Pax's being that is real and that he can explore. The only thing he knows for certain is that it has a lot more to do with the United States.

"There aren't many people who are interested in going to America, right now," he said.

Dr. Powell takes K-Pax to see a therapist, and K-Pax begins to remember bits and pieces of his life. It's as if he's waking up to a new reality, and he starts to understand that he's not just a random person who wandered into Powell's office. He's someone with a story, someone with a past.

K-PAX, a Warner Bros. title, stars Jeff Bridges as the perpetually calm Prot, who is able to help Powell and his colleagues understand K-PAX's identity. The film also stars John Cusack as the perpetual train station. K-PAX is a story about the power of love, which also provides a simple, somber, satisfying plot for audiences to follow.

"I'm just happy to be here," Bridges said in an interview after the screening. "It's a great role, and I think K-PAX is a great film."

K-PAX is rated PG-13 and is set for a June 1 release.

In the meantime, the film's producers are planning a European tour to promote the movie. The producers have canceled seven dates on the tour, including ones in London and Paris. The film is also currently showing in select theaters, and it will open in theaters nationwide on June 1.

"We're doing everything we can to make sure that K-PAX is successful in as many countries as possible," said Bridges.

K-PAX is a film that is both heartwarming and thought-provoking, and it's a story that will stay with audiences long after the credits roll. The film's message, that we should all treat each other with kindness and understanding, will resonate with audiences around the world.

Lamenting the Midst of war casualties

Over the last few weeks, I have given up with both anger and sadness of the new strain of warfare. It seems that the world is not willing to sacrifice for the lives of our soldiers. A third soldier was killed when a vehicle rolled over in Qoatar. So far, no soldiers have exceeded 600 words. The United States should not be the only major country that is on the front lines of this war.

In all fairness, there are quite a few differences between the Vietnam War and the War on Terrorism. In Vietnam, we were fighting against a socialist government, while in Iraq, the United States is fighting an organization that is internationally recognized as the perpetration of terrorist attacks. The positives and negatives of communism are not directly comparable. However, in a similar context, if it is in the interest of all countries involved to prevent another terrorist attack, the United States and Vietnam have some similarities.

The Vietnamese and the Americans fought wars of liberation against foreign aggressors, as well as the struggle for freedom of the people to control their own destinies. The Vietnamese and the Americans fought against an enemy who knows no justice and who destroys entire cultures in order to create their vision of society.

But there is also a significant difference between the two wars. In Vietnam, the United States supported a government that was not directly democratically elected, while in Iraq, the United States is fighting against a government that was forcibly imposed on the Iraqi people.

In conclusion, the United States should have a policy of non-intervention in foreign affairs, especially in countries where the United States is not engaged in a war of self-defense.

The attacks must continue

Time and time again, I hear from various Downtown and Iowa City leaders and locals that the United States should not be involved in the Vietnam War. However, I believe that the United States should be involved in the Vietnam War.

The United States has a moral obligation to prevent the spread of communism in the world. The United States should support the People's Republic of Vietnam in its struggle to defend itself against the aggression of the United States.

Vietnam is a small country that has been under constant attack from the United States. The United States has used military force to try to destroy the People's Republic of Vietnam, but the people of Vietnam have shown great determination and bravery in their battle against the United States.

In conclusion, the United States has a moral obligation to support the People's Republic of Vietnam in its struggle against the United States.

Reacting to anthrax scare, U.S. piles up mistakes

By Matt Connors

As the anthrax scare continues to cast a shadow over the country, federal and local authorities are facing increasing criticism for their handling of the crisis.

In New York City, postal workers were instructed to start destroying anthrax samples immediately, even before the source of the contamination was identified. This decision was met with widespread concern, as it raised questions about the reliability and accuracy of the tests being conducted.

Meanwhile, in Washington D.C., federal officials were criticized for their handling of a case involving a suspected anthrax-laden letter. The investigation was hampered by a lack of communication and coordination among different agencies, leading to delays in identifying the suspect.

The anthrax scare has also raised concerns about the government's preparedness for bioterrorism, with many experts calling for a reevaluation of current policies and procedures.

In the wake of these mistakes, there is a growing sense of urgency to improve the nation's response to future threats. However, many are calling for a more comprehensive approach that includes better planning, coordination, and resources.

Skiing in Iowa

Mark Thome, a former U.S. ski team member, has returned to his native state to compete in a skiing competition. The event is being held in Iowa City, and it is expected to attract several top skiers from around the country.

In recent years, skiing has become more popular in Iowa, with several ski resorts opening up in the area. The competition is a testament to the growing interest in the sport in the state, and it is expected to draw a large crowd.

Federal guidelines to cover bioterrorism

By Tim Malloy

The federal government has issued new guidelines for the handling of bioterrorism incidents. The guidelines cover a range of areas, including the handling of samples, the selection of personnel, and the communication of information.

One of the key aspects of the new guidelines is the emphasis on the importance of training and preparation. The guidelines call for regular training exercises and drills to ensure that personnel are prepared to handle any potential bioterrorism incidents.

The guidelines also stress the importance of communication and coordination among different agencies. They call for regular meetings and briefings to ensure that all parties are aware of the latest developments and are prepared to respond.

The federal guidelines are intended to provide a framework for states and local authorities to follow. They are intended to help ensure that any potential bioterrorism incidents are handled in a coordinated and effective manner.

CHICAGO — The Iowa women's basketball team may have taken home last year's Big Ten trophy, but it still has a lot to prove this season.

"People respected us last year, but now look at what we lost," senior Todd McCann to wide receiver Chris Oliver sailed long withing open. It didn't happen this season, things just didn't happen late for Iowa, as it suffered another narrow defeat at the hands of No. 13 Illinois. Iowa, down by 10 with 7:30 left in the game, fought hard to cut the deficit to 4, but that's as close as it would get.

"We've got to keep running." For now, all preseason openers are final and up to Iowa to make sure it's all or nothing for the third time this season.

"Michigan has a lot of veteran players.""We were without Jake Albracht last year, "People respect us last year, but now look at what we lost."

"People respected us last year, but now look at what we lost," said Albracht. "We thought there would be no respect this year, but maybe we have to do it again this season," McCann said.

"Michigan will be good," McCann said. "We're as good as we can be, 9-9. We're not going to look at what's happened in the past, we're going to look at what's happening.""It's not going to be easy.""We're going to have to prove ourselves again.""We're going to have to prove ourselves again, we're not going to be able to rely on last year's success.""We're going to have to work hard to get back to where we were last year.""We're not going to settle for anything less than a Big Ten title.""We're going to have to work hard to get back to where we were last year."

Rams lose first game of season

ST. LOUIS (AP) — One of Kurt Warner’s worst working days forced the NFL’s best unbeaten team to the very edge.

The St. Louis Rams quarterback had a season-low passer rating, helping the New Orleans Saints to their 19-season-high fifth straight win with a 41-31 victory Sunday.

It was Warner’s first loss at home after 26 victories.

John Capsur was 27 of 37 and field goal with 1 second left dropped the Rams to 4-1. Joe Flacco then hit two touchdowns and Bradley McDuff kept the Rams from experiencing their first loss of the season.

Bill is still that point in time. At first glance, the Wolverines seem to have the better team. But in reality, the Wolverines have been rather fortunate to have had the experience of playing against the Hawkeyes.

However, the Wolverines have had some lucky breaks. They have been able to play against a team that is not in the top four in the conference this year.

The Hawkeyes lost their previous game to Wisconsin, and they will be looking to get back on track in this game.

"That was a big game for us," said Michigan coach Dan Monson. "We made some mistakes in the game, but we managed to come back and win."

Hawkeyes lose 2-1 heartbreaker at home

By Noreen Smith

If ever there was a day when the game didn't tall who the field hockey team's way, it was Oct. 20.

The game against No. 6 Michigan State was a chance for an advanced rivalry to be rekindled, and a chance for the Hawkeyes to move into conference and an opportunity to take the undefeated record at Grant Field into the conference.

They also wanted to send Pizza Girl their thanks after the game, but I won't spoil the fun.

Unfortunately, Hawkeye's valiant efforts in the dying minutes of the game ended up on the baseline with no time on the clock, but the feed from the 50 yard line was out of bounds.

Leister with six minutes of the game remaining said, "I think it will be hard for them to sleep tonight," Grisham said. "We're not a team that plays well under pressure."

In the second half, when Bridgeport scored one point, Leister said that it was a "good day for the Hawkeyes" as they went on to win.
