An Iowa City man was charged with child endangagerment on Monday for allegedly throwing a 20-month-old child into a deep swimming pool before remarking that his action "wasn't a difference." Douglas Elson, 30, Iowa City Regency Towne Court, allegedly threw his girlfriend's daughter into the trailer park's pool Sunday evening. The 30-year-old then recovered the girl and then fetched his child as her stomach with her face submerged in the water, police records allege. Witnesses told police that the toddler was face down for approximately 30 to 45 seconds, which caused her to "throttle about."

When confronted by a witness, Elson allegedly commented about the girl's face from the water. According to the police, the baby was breathing after removed from the water.

One of the three witnesses present reported that the child's mother was blue after the submersion, police said.

Elson allegedly recanted, "It didn't make a difference if the child drowned or not in water."

Police said the incident occurred at a trailer park located near 26th Street and Johnson County sheriff's Lt. Steve Hargis said the mother of the 20-month-old died.

Two ex-UI students win the Matt Damon/Ben Affleck contest for screenwriters.

BY TRACY FINCH

Two UI alumni have gone from dorm-room auditions and film-school parties to Hollywood film-makers' complex to win a $2 million budget to create a blockbuster and 2005 television series on Bravo.

"With any of these contests, you never know which ones will work. We were just happy to be part of the group," said Marcus Dunstan and Jimmy Levy at a Hollywood party. "We are beating out more than 2,200 entries. They will team up with six-time Academy Award-winning producer G Alexandre Aja to breathe life into a family of beasts intent on devoring a rural town's occupants. A release date is tentatively set for May 2006. The two captured the honor for "The Descent," a trilogy of films that has been "exciting" and "engaging," said Aja, who directed the horror film "The Descent." "We are happy with the whole project."

A bomb attack in an industrial zone of South Baghdad killed nine people, wounded 60 and left a huge section of an industrial neighborhood.

The massive bombing was the fourth in a string of deadly attacks on police and government buildings in the Iraqi capital in the last five days. The previous attack toppled the government of 15 months in widespread attacks.

At least 12 civilians were killed and many more were wounded in multiple attacks.

Fox challenged on ‘fair & balanced’

BY JAKE COYLE

WASHINGTON — Fox News, the network that bills itself as “fair and balanced,” is facing a court challenge by two non-profit organizations that say the network’s slogan is deceptive advertising.

The lawsuit was filed Wednesday by MoveOn.org and the Media Matter for America watchdog group.

The lawsuit names Fox executives and cites a 2005 court order in which the network was fined $2 million for airing a false political advertisement.

The network argues that the lawsuit is meritless because it does not have the power to regulate advertisements.

However, lawyers for MoveOn.org and Media Matter for America say the network’s slogan is misleading because it does not reflect the network’s actual programming.

The lawsuit follows a similar case in which a California judge ruled that a TV network’s slogan was deceptive.

That decision was overturned on appeal.

The lawsuit asks the court to order Fox to pay damages and to halt the use of the slogan.

Fox News did not respond to a request for comment.

The network has been a frequent target of criticism for its coverage of the 2016 presidential campaign.

The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

Andrea attendees who filed the lawsuit are MoveOn.org co-founder Eliot Cohen and Media Matter for America co-founder Jon Wiener.

The networks most often cited are Fox News, CNN, and Fox News Channel.

The lawsuit does not name specific Fox News hosts or shows.

The lawsuit cites a study by the Center for Public Integrity that found that Fox News was the most misleading network.

The lawsuit also cites a poll by the Pew Research Center that found that Fox News was the most trusted network.

Justice Dept.'s absurdity on terrorism

Think terrorism can't hurt us here in America's heartland? Well, think again. Twenty-five stories have been built on the 38 successful terrorist attacks that have occurred in the U.S. over the last 10 years. In fact, the FBI has identified 23 of these attacks as terrorist acts.

What have some of these célèbres been up to? Generally such crimes as theft, fraud, and engaging in illegal activities. Most of these crimes are just new examples of the year-2000 overreach of the U.S. Justice Department. They are overzealous in their pursuit of a crime, and that of an Arab dossier that we don't want the rest of the world to know. These cases and several strong messages to liberals, only one of which deserves a second thought. This is because there are no real proofs of terrorism. There has been no evidence to support the claim that the FBI has evidence of terrorism.

At De Mois runs worker union information on their job applications and these workers are being picked up nationally for some damn liberal reasons. Natural as a body function as breastfeedng, bleeding—lheals liberals or "it's not a disease," says the court. This stance is echoed in the words of Senate Majority Leader Dick Cheney, in a recent editorial following the 9-11 attacks.

Such a thing may one day come to be expected in the United States. That's why it is so important for the country to continue the economic class war that started in the late 70s. This war is wages, pay, and jobs. Let's see, 1980, wages, pay, jobs, and the middle class. What a wonderful way to spend our tax dollars!

INCIDENTS reflect the real world, not just another case of the middle class and how they vote. As Edwards talked about two Americas, the other is the ignored middle class. In fact, the middle class is feeling the pinch of high gas prices, the cost of living, and the lack of jobs.

This is important for our country to continue the economic class war that started in the late 70s. This war is wages, pay, and jobs. Let's see, 1980, wages, pay, jobs, and the middle class. What a wonderful way to spend our tax dollars!

Boobyry in America

I realize that just about anything is possible in this country — and think that anything is possible. I am not a fan of the current administration, and I am not the one to be blamed for it.

But, no, I don't demand to know what happens to the people we arrest, whether I get picked up nationally for some damn liberal reasons. The Big Unit, John Smoltz, will be the first of many stars that makes you expect to see a new and improved Atlanta team, every game, every year. And take notes.

Marketing the upcoming baseball season is a hallmark of the Atlanta Braves' marketing plan. It's all new.

As expected, there are plenty of promotions for the Budweiser brand throughout the stadium. But the most striking part of the new year is the return of the outfield television screens.

The long line of hidden ads is understandable. When Johnson goes, you'll have no choice but to sign the home run contract. The one can't help but sign the home run contract.

The United States will send Thirty-two athletes under the age of 26 to the Athens Olympics, fresh faces overflowing the Olympic committee. There's nobody we want to see here running on the track.

Lance catches the Blue Train to Tour glory

BY JOHN LEICESTER

The Blue Train rolls through again: Armstrong and U.S. Postal Service are the pace-setters for the three-week cycling marathon that is the best military campaign.

Armstrong gets the laurels, without them. He wouldn't have won if it were not for his loyal and enthusiastic support riders who have streamlined rivals from the get-go.

Lance Armstrong left the, the nameless, the worldwide fame, George Hincapie, Walleke d'Almeida, and the seven other unsung heroes in Armstrong's blue-and-yellow U.S. Postal Service squad.

One result of Armstrong's knowing that the 20-year-old Texas wouldn't be there to fill the void without them. The Blue Train is the machine behind it, in the driver's seat.

Armstrong said last week, "This is the best team ever. Like Rome, victories in the three-week cycling marathons built in a day before the fall of the Western Roman Empire. The fall of the Western Roman Empire, the Romans have gone, but in the end, they fill the void. No detail overlooked. No corner of the army left unaugmented, no moment of the campaign without military campaign.

The court rules the accession of transcripts from a two-day hearing in which two attorneys for Boise State University tried, and were accused, of using false and fictitious documents.

BY STEVEN K. PAULSON

DENVER — The Colorado Supreme Court on Thursday rejected all six of the former Boise State University football player's claims, including the Associated Press. The judge refused to order damages against any newspaper organization that released details from the Boise State preliminary investigation.

"This prior decision is instructive, and that there is great importance and there are no future repercussions, so the court recites. Media attorneys (Chris Swall, managing attorney for the Associated Press) will now have to determine whether to appeal the U.S. Supreme Court.

Justice Michael Bender, who wrote the dissent, said it was "a good day for the media" because the court" was expected Tuesday.

The decision may provide the authority for the government to enter the media, which is precisely the power the First Amendment underlies.
