“I think with our population at Kirkwood, a lot of families don’t feel connected to the school,” he said. “And this is a chance to get out, visit with them, and show them that we have their kid’s best interest at heart.”

Efficient lighting will be installed in all new construction projects, Mased said, including the new Campus Wellness and Welcome Center. “The majority of our existing buildings have efficient lighting,” he noted.

Van Allen Hall, Pappajohn Business Building, Seaman Center and Eckersall Medical Research Building will also receive more than $1 million in lighting improvements in the next two years, said John Zhou, an energy engineer with utilities and energy management. Mased and Zhou said they have evaluated 19 other buildings for possible upgrades in occupancy sensors, lighting, and ventilation, which will be done by no later than November 2011. Utilities and energy management employees will check the upgrades periodically for any problems with them before calling floor staff, Zhou said. “(This improvements) are very reliable,” he said.

Mased said it is important the lights, including the ones in the library, are not placed in awkward or unnecessary locations. The comfort level of people in a room is another factor in the new lighting system, which will use occupancy sensors to detect the number of people and adjust the lighting to it. “When you enter the room, the lights will come on,” Mased said. These sensors will also benefit custodians.

Gary Groat, the facilities management coordinator for the UI Libraries, said custodians normally need to turn on more than 3,000 breaker switches to turn the lights on. “(It’s) not the best way to do things, but unfortunately that’s the way the building’s designed,” he said.

With the new sensors, former breaker switchers will be needed, he said. With the lights on 340 days per year, 20 hours a day, the sensors would allow the new lights to shut off when not needed. Great noted the library typically closes between 2 and 2:30 a.m. during the year, when custodians enter the building around 5 or 6 a.m.

“They’re only on a few hours each day,” he said.

Many University of Iowa students may view this issue as a missed opportunity to engage in dialogue about race. Racial discrimination, implicit or explicit, is a real problem on campus. The fact that Hill does not understand the significance of this issue is reflected in her comments that we are “too afraid to talk about race.”

This response provides important context, but does little to address the concerns raised. We need to move beyond the outdated notion that discussing race will lead to controversy and conflict. We must be willing to engage in meaningful conversations to address these complex issues.

On an editorial note, the Daily Iowan has chosen to publish a letter that is unprofessional and disrespectful. It is important for the newspaper to uphold high standards of editorial content and to avoid publishing letters that are off-topic or contain offensive language.

While the band shows it has musical talent and is capable of writing a tune, it's still more calculated than inspired. The band is at its best when it's allowed to be accessible and less considered. For example, the most well-written song that proves the guys in Menomena, who make a noteworthy plot.

Who will win Prime Time title?

Vinton/Hawkeye — by Jessie Smith

No. 1 Vinton/Hawkeye (15-0)

Winning championships is one sport about as close to easy, and Vinton/Hawkeye is off to another fast start to the season. It’s the second year in a row the Hawks are in the No. 1 spot.

No. 2 Washington (14-1)

Winning championships is Vinton/Hawkeye’s biggest claim — no pun intended. You know him as the guy who destroyed your March Madness bracket with his dagger over No. 1-seeded Kentucky. The former Northern Iowa guard earned an ESPY Award and a Sports Illustrated cover for his unstoppable, and he has continued to perform in the Prime Time League.

In the opening round of the Prime Time League, Washington posted a 13-0 victory.

A win is the first step to a championship tonight in the 12th Prime Time season, which continued to perform in the Prime Time League.

Prime Time’s better player this year, No. 1 Prime Time’s better player this year, the former Northern Iowa guard earned an ESPY Award and a Sports Illustrated cover for his unstoppable, and he has continued to perform in the Prime Time League.

The two teams met for the third time, and the trio has formed the best of the best.

No. 3 Pelling/Goodfellow (9-3)

I’m tempted to suggest not attending the Prime Time Championship game tonight in the 12th Prime Time season, which continued to perform in the Prime Time League.

A win is the first step to a championship tonight in the 12th Prime Time season, which continued to perform in the Prime Time League.

With the help of Spanish pro Dan Madsen, the team has proven to be consistent. They entered the playoffs as the second-highest scoring team in the league, and they finished third in the polls.

No. 4 Colorado Rockies (5-4)

The Rockies went on to win the championship against No. 1 pick Freeman Crogs and holding 6-7 league-leading scorer Madsen. Basebau had six points under his average. May has established himself as the best all-around player in the league.

And Madsen has stepped in as the perfect balancing act to May’s aggressiveness and back-to-back winning.

No. 5 Chad Durbin (4-6)

The Phillies took the lead, but the former Wayne State guard was a defensive mastermind. He held Carl Payne to eight second-half points on 2-for-13 shooting in Sunday’s semifinal, and he will likely be called off the bench to help guard Eric May in the championship.

A throw in a typical in the making such as Northern Iowa freshman Cupp Bank, and Vinton/Hawkeye is unstoppable. The Northern Iowa pick finished sixth in the league, and his consistency is a big reason Vinton/Hawkeye will win the championship.

Balanced teams face off

Both coaches have defensive concerns heading into the Prime Time League championship match.

By BRAD HAHN

Two reasons.

Different in their styles of play, yet similar in their philosophy of ball-sharing and tough defense, Vinton Merchants/Hawkeye Tilt & Satillation (6-2) will meet L.L. Pelling/Goodfellow Printers (6-1) in the Prime Time League Championship at 6 p.m. today in the North Liberty Community Center.

“They made a lot of 3s last time we played,” Pelling/Goodfellow coach Ray Swetalla said, remembering the 84-64 loss on June 27. “Back then, we had no idea that (Chip) Rank was as good as he is.”

As Swetalla prepares his team for the championship game, he will have to find a defensive plan for Pelling/Goodfellow to contain a balanced team with numerous players capable of firing long-range daggers and creating opportunities for teammates.

“We have to keep Ali (Farokhmanesh) from going nuts,” Swetalla said.

Throughout the season, the ex-Panther has proven himself an elite setup man, tallying 44 assists — second only to Iowa’s Cully Payne.

Swetalla said one of the keys to stopping Vinton/Hawkeye’s offensive assault lies in limiting Farokhmanesh’s ability to create offense for his teammates.

Unfortunately for Pelling/Goodfellow, successfully guarding the surface is the only thing standing in the way. Farokhmanesh, Vinton/Hawkeye’s rafter also features Rank — who averaged 23.5 points per game — and ex-Rawhawks Darryl Means.

Wary of Vinton/Hawkeye’s depth of talent but not intimidated, Swetalla’s squad is stocked with athletes who can rebound, drive, and shoot.

McCready works out with Bulls

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven-time All-Star Tracy McCray worked out for the Chicago Bulls on Monday with hopes Chicago might be the team he turned down a decade earlier.

A former first-round pick, McCray has a rare combination of scoring and rebounding ability. He has put in the work to get back healthy.

The Bulls wouldn’t have brought McCray in for a workout if they didn’t feel he was healthy enough to be a productive player when he comes off the bench, but there are questions surrounding his health.

The former scoring champion also has had back surgery on his left knee in February 2009 and again in July 2010.

McCray underwent surgery on his left knee in 2009 and 2010.

McCrady, averaging 25 points per game, is concerned about his condition, another issue he said he’d accept a more limited role.

On Tuesday, he showed what he brings to the table in the past week. McCray scored 151 points and shot 50 percent from the floor in 35 games last season, an NBA record.

Three-piece band,ucher

CHICAGO (AP) — Kenny, Bebe’ and Breyon, the three-piece band known as the Neptunes, performed on the Windy City block party stage earlier this month at one of the nation’s most upscale events.

The three Indianapolis natives known as the Neptunes were among the performers who filled the blocks of the Windy City block party.

With a few weeks until the Hawkeye’s kick off the 2010 college football season, The Daily Iowan examines four potential key games for Iowa.

Although the Cardinals won only two games last season, they entered the season ranked No. 17 in the Big East. It’s a mark to watch out for.
