Dinner emphasizes etiquette

UI students learned proper business etiquette for dinner while abroad.

Food summit provides links

Summit panelists want healthy, local foods available in Iowa schools.

County limits guns

The supervisors amended the resolution to exempt vehicles used by law enforcement officers.

Radiology fight may result in termination

University of Iowa officials have launched proceedings that could end in the termination of a radiology professor who filed a discrimination complaint against numerous UI employees.

INDEX

Schools: 40  Community: 40  Sports: 10  Weather: 10

BUY THIS PHOTO

Looking to purchase great work by Daily Iowan photographers? Visit dailyiowan.com/dailyiowan to order prints of our best work.

WEATHER

High: 48  Low: 25

Weather: mostly sunny, windy.

DAILY IOWAN TV

To watch Daily Iowan TV go online at dailyiowan.com or tune into KSTV The flagship channel is on Saturday through Tuesday at 4:30 and 10:30 p.m., with versions at noon and 1:30 a.m. until 4 a.m. the following day.

Catalysts

The Independent Daily Newspaper for the University of Iowa Community Since 1868

THE DAILY IOWAN

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 2011

NEWS PAPER • DAILYIOWAN.COM • TELEVISION

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 2011

NEWS PAPER • DAILYIOWAN.COM • TELEVISION

County limits guns

The supervisors amended the resolution to exempt vehicles used by law enforcement officers.

Radiology fight may result in termination

University of Iowa officials have launched proceedings that could end in the termination of a radiology professor who filed a discrimination complaint against numerous UI employees.

According to documents obtained by The Daily Iowan, UI Associate Provost Tom Enders sent a letter to Malick Frazier Tuesday saying he had violated university policy by subjegating his colleagues to "personal vilification" and "verbal abuse in an Campaigning for IU Student Government officially begins March 28

By ALLIE MASON

It’s that time of year again when a large group of students is hoping to fund a local cause. IU Student Government is starting to gather support for their campaign plans.

Monday, 40 IU undergraduates attended the first of two rummage sale events to raise money for the campaign. Nine of the 19 campus-wide campaign events will hold meetings and Gorehalls throughout March. Campaigning officially begins March 28, voting will begin April 11.

Charlotte Ditcher, who attended with her group, stated she believes the school has enough outside competitions with students to last them the entire semester and that they decide to do it.

"I think it’s a little too late... it’s a good opportunity to provide IU students with something on campus," Ditcher added.

At least 20 IU1 students ran for president on Monday, January 26, in Francis Hall, the director of the Student Government Board. Students will only prepare the campaign and determine what issues to present, but all who run will likely experience some sort of competition for a few years. The top every year, he said.

"Unfortunately, some of their petitions, I don’t know who they actually are still in the running and who is actually going to be placed on the

Metro County residents ‘active’

County residents are more active than most other residents in their county, according to a report released by the United States Census Bureau.

The study, which measured the amount of physical activity among residents, reported 80 percent of Johnson County residents report participating in physical activity in their leisure time. Sixty-eight percent of residents report participating in leisure time.

— By Aline Sullivan

Bill would aid mobile-home renters, buyers

A bill to provide tenant protection and mobile-home buyers with equal rights similar to other renters is being introduced this session.

The bill would provide greater protection for tenants and mobile-home buyers from eviction, repossession, and discrimination by mobile home dealers and lenders.

Wayne Gees, a mobile-home dealer in Bloomington, introduced the bill along with several other mobile home dealers.

— By Kyle Cole

Supervisors OK jail bid

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved a bid to remodel the Johnson County Jail.

Robert Bledsoe, president of Remodel Construction, said the new jail will take less time and money to build than the old one. The old jail was built in 1992 and has been outdated.

— By David Heins

Local Workforce center to close

Workforce Network of Monroe County, the local workforce center, will close its office as of July 1.

The Indiana Department of Workforce Development in Indianapolis will take over the operation of the center.

— By David Heins

“Male with rifle” turns out to be boy with pellet gun

A man was arrested in Bloomington for carrying a gun today. The man was detained by police after a report was made.

— By David Heins

USISG hopefuls begin to stir

By ALLIE MASON

It’s that time again. The USISG hopefuls are out in full force, strategizing and planning for their campaigns. This year, the candidates are divided into two factions: the...
GUNS CONTINUED FROM 1A

“Our current environment has employee access and that’s underwritten,” said Supervisors Rod Sullivan.

The supervisor decided two days after the Iowa City Council passed a similar resolution banning guns on city-owned property and in buildings.

Johnson County (in the District Steven Delaware said he is glad both county and local governments are taking a proactive stance with gun restrictions.

During Tuesday’s discussion, Sullivan said that whatever inconsistencies are in the resolution needs to be controlled by the overall benefit it provide to the people doing the public’s business.”

The resolution prohibits firearms from county-owned buildings and parking lots, parks, and recreation areas. County-owned vehicles were added to the list Thursday, however, supervisors said the amendment enacts county-owned vehicle by law-enforcement officials.

“My concern was that they were not going to allow [guns] in county-owned vehicles,” said Delaware, who spoke during the discussion.

It is not uncommon for law-enforcement officials to raise guns in their vehicles.

But before the vote, the supervisors discussed what they perceived to be hypocrisy in the Jan. 3 legislation.

Supervisor Terrence Neunl said it was “extremely hypocritical” for the state government to exempt the Iowa Capitol from the legislation.

“If you don’t like (the county’s) resolution, talk it out with the new governor and the legislators, and get the Capitol changed, and then I’ll reconsider,” he said.

FOOD CONTINUED FROM 1A

answer questions about local food practices.

Organizers are particularly trying to reach out to school officials, who in recent years have become more interested in local produce. They said officials became particularly interested after seeing Morgan Spurlock’s eye-opening documentary “Super Size Me” (2004).

At the University of Iowa, officials created a student-run garden behind Straep, with produce being used in the MarketPlace. They have also increased their diversity and availability in the MarketPlace by 52 percent, according to IMU Dining.

But the UI isn’t the only school looking to increase its involvement with locally grown producers.

According to an Iowa City School District representative, food-service director Diana Dunca-Goldsmith is planning on attending the summit, and she has worked with various local food groups to establish relationships between the schools and the producers.

“It’s a real win-win,” said Johnice Ouna, a pre-dinner co-founder for flavorful Iowa.

One student who studied abroad

Students in other countries have been...
Keep, augment bottle deposit

Amid the larger clashes over same-sex marriage and a number of other issues, a small but vocal interest group is attempting to cut deficits by keeping the bottle and can deposit intact.

This effort. Effectively implementing the law would build the rest of the modernization of the recycling system are just, repealing the House Bill 74, which establishes the deposit on certain beverage containers is a disaster of the past two years and has a number of it. They are from the state, you may as well cut back on the like of beer or soda, which is something Iowans are in the habit of recycling bottles and cans, and other non-refundable centers. And many apartment and townhouse complexes. And many college students only make the trek to Hy-Vee or the recycling center in order to get their money back. Or college students only make the trek to Hy-Vee or the recycling center in order to get their money back. This is a serious overhaul and improvement.

The redemption is why many Iowans recycle cans and bottles. According to the Iowa Recycling Coalition coordinator Jennifer Jarecki, “No one is going to go through the effort of collecting bottles and cans, if they don’t have access to a recycling site. It’s frustrating.”

“I’m not optimistic about students taking their bottles and cans with them to the university. It’s more likely to be an afterthought.”

Bottle and can deposits are often not worth the effort for many college students, especially those who do not have easy access to a recycling center. It may be easier for them to just throw away the bottles and cans instead of taking the time to bring them to a recycling center.

Additionally, there may be a lack of awareness among college students about the importance of recycling. Many may not realize that their bottles and cans contribute to environmental problems or that there are alternative methods for accessing recycling centers.

In order for the Iowa Recycling Coalition to effectively implement the bottle and can deposit law, there needs to be a greater emphasis on education and outreach. This could include promoting recycling options on college campuses, offering incentives for students who recycle, and educating students about the benefits of recycling.

Without these efforts, it is unlikely that the bottle and can deposit law will have a significant impact on reducing litter and improving recycling rates on college campuses.
Maxim Perkhounkov

Maxim Perkhounkov, 22, is the president of the Hawkeye Chess Club, and he spends most Tuesdays and Thursdays competing in games of speed chess. He also coaches grade-school chess players, though he's only been playing for four years.

While studying in his usual spot in the Tobacco Bowl in high school, Perkhounkov said he often saw chess players in heated games and decided one day he wanted in on the action. “Obviously, I got demolished,” he said.

Now, the Moscow native devotes 20 hours a week to chess and said he's developed an attacking style of play.

“A good thing to have when someone is touching your heart,” Perkhounkov said. “But it does find some irony in being Russian and a chess player. Sometimes, I think he should spend more time doing homework,” said Yelena Perkhounkova, his mother. “But it’s nice that he’s doing something he enjoys.”

He said he's never had any chess heroes, though he cheered on Magnus Carlsen, a young chess prodigy who is ranked No. 1 in the world.

Perkhounkov said he doesn’t plan on devoting his life to chess and joked about becoming a forest ranger. Still, he said, he knows the game will always be with him. “There’s something that draws me to the game,” Perkhounkov said. It’s “like writing or math or anything. If you understand it on some personal, deep level, your love of it never really fades away.”

Maxim Perkhounkov

Maxim Perkhounkov set in a corner of the Wedge on Feb. 10, a green and white chessboard on the table in front of him. The Russian-born University of Iowa senior was focused and engaged in a game of speed chess. His eyes never left the board even though buzz of conversations filled the air around him.

The white plastic pieces waited for Perkhounkov’s next move as his opponent, friend and Kirkwood student James Neal, looked on. “Eventually, somebody will crumble,” Perkhounkov said. “It’s kind of like two pythons trying to squeeze each other to death.”

But the Moscow native calls chess “just another hobby.”

Perkhounkov, 22, is the president of the Hawkeye Chess Club, and he spends most Tuesdays and Thursdays competing in games of speed chess. He also coaches grade-school chess players, though he's only been playing for four years.

While studying in his usual spot in the Tobacco Bowl in high school, Perkhounkov said he often saw chess players in heated games and decided one day he wanted in on the action. “Obviously, I got demolished,” he said.

Now, the Moscow native devotes 20 hours a week to chess and said he's developed an attacking style of play.

“A good thing to have when someone is touching your heart,” Perkhounkov said. “But it does find some irony in being Russian and a chess player. Sometimes, I think he should spend more time doing homework,” said Yelena Perkhounkova, his mother. “But it’s nice that he’s doing something he enjoys.”

He said he's never had any chess heroes, though he cheered on Magnus Carlsen, a young chess prodigy who is ranked No. 1 in the world.

Perkhounkov said he doesn’t plan on devoting his life to chess and joked about becoming a forest ranger. Still, he said, he knows the game will always be with him. “There’s something that draws me to the game,” Perkhounkov said. It’s “like writing or math or anything. If you understand it on some personal, deep level, your love of it never really fades away.”
Grad students reach out to public

One student will use Twitter to discuss brain science at the session.

Graduate student research projects:
- "Tattoo Me, I'm Yours!"
- "What is it that makes us tick?"
- "We're trying to help people understand their topics."

The presentation is one of the requirements for being in the Obermann Center for Advanced Studies, which seeks to provide support for students and faculty members working on intensive or long-term research projects. But Keller said it's important for the graduate students to connect with their peers, "We're trying to emphasize the public's role in the study of the brain."

Several other schools from around Iowa, and one from South Dakota, will attend.

As a third-year master's student in public relations and communications at DePaul University, she once worked as an intern at HBO. "It's an opportunity for us to focus on professional relationships and get some practice, and, I think, to show off our work," she said. "It's all about learning as much as we can and to connect with peers, and other students in the same program and even more people in the field."
Development plan released for S.E. IC

The proposal would include more businesses and green space.

Residents living in the southeastern area of Iowa City can expect improved pedestrian trails, less time wasted in traffic, and a general expansion of services in the area.

The Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission unveiled its Southeast District Plan at a public hearing Thursday night.

The district is the sixth of 10 Iowa City areas with a completed plan for redevelopment.

The Planning and Zoning Commission held the meeting to involve the community in the process of restructuring certain parts of the district.

“The goals and the text of the plan [are] really based on all the public input that we’ve gathered in the past several years,” said Karen Howard, an associate city planner.

One of the most anticipated projects is a rail overpass where the tracks cross First Avenue to relieve traffic congestion.

Federal funds will provide $4 million. Senior planner Robert Miklo said acquisition of the remaining amount was in reach, and the project would begin in the next couple of years.

Commission members have a broad vision for the Southeast District and intend to develop in industrial, commercial, and residential areas, and restriction public transit.

Though the plan is extensive and detailed, planning secretary Wally Falschanik said the proposal is primarily a concept.

“This is all a wish list and a guidance for us as we consider plans for the future,” he said.

Approximately 30 residents attended the meeting.

“We do have a fairly high percentage of people who walk and bike,” said transportation planner John Epp.

The city is making an effort to facilitate pedestrian transportation in several areas, he said, and that would provide healthy byproducts.

“There’s also the environmental benefits and traffic benefits,” Epp said.

City officials began discussing the Southeast District Plan in April 2009; when the Planning and Zoning Commission met with residents, business owners, and property owners in the area.

Commissioner John Yapp.

Some of the Planning and Zoning Commission’s proposed concepts include:

- Transformation of public park and open space
- Voluntary mixed-use commercial area
- Industrial commercial and residential development of the last site

Source: Iowa City website

By RYAN COLE

Residents living in the southeastern area of Iowa City can expect improved pedestrian trails, less time wasted in traffic, and a general expansion of services in the area.

The Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission unveiled its Southeast District Plan at a public hearing Thursday night.

The district is the sixth of 10 Iowa City areas with a completed plan for redevelopment.

The Planning and Zoning Commission held the meeting to involve the community in the process of restructuring certain parts of the district.

“The goals and the text of the plan [are] really based on all the public input that we’ve gathered in the past several years,” said Karen Howard, an associate city planner.

One of the most anticipated projects is a rail overpass where the tracks cross First Avenue to relieve traffic congestion.

Federal funds will provide $4 million. Senior planner Robert Miklo said acquisition of the remaining amount was in reach, and the project would begin in the next couple of years.

Commission members have a broad vision for the Southeast District and intend to develop in industrial, commercial, and residential areas, and restriction public transit.

Though the plan is extensive and detailed, planning secretary Wally Falschanik said the proposal is primarily a concept.

“This is all a wish list and a guidance for us as we consider plans for the future,” he said.

Approximately 30 residents attended the meeting.

“We do have a fairly high percentage of people who walk and bike,” said transportation planner John Epp.

The city is making an effort to facilitate pedestrian transportation in several areas, he said, and that would provide healthy byproducts.

“There’s also the environmental benefits and traffic benefits,” Epp said.

City officials began discussing the Southeast District Plan in April 2009; when the Planning and Zoning Commission met with residents, business owners, and property owners in the area.

Commissioner John Yapp.

Some of the Planning and Zoning Commission’s proposed concepts include:

- Transformation of public park and open space
- Voluntary mixed-use commercial area
- Industrial commercial and residential development of the last site

Source: Iowa City website

By RYAN COLE
BRENT PETERSON

Things I've learned by watching TV dramas:

• Your wife is suffering from subclinical depression, it will just phallically eliminate "EVE" for you.

• The way you really enjoy your reputation in an argument or to distantly turn and walk away after you make your point.

• Anything can sound out of place if there's a music playing at the time.

• If your wife is suffering from subclinical depression, it will just phallically eliminate "EVE" for you.

• Make sure to wear a solid day of work, and you will reap the benefits.

• If your wife is suffering from subclinical depression, it will just phallically eliminate "EVE" for you.

• FOR MORE PUZZLES... if your wife is suffering from subclinical depression, it will just phallically eliminate "EVE" for you.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Friday, February 18, 2011

ULTIMATE LID

PISCES

• Hellogoodbye
• A Knitter’s Home Companion
• Biology Seminar
• Health Management and Policy Update
• Book Babies
• PR Day: Brand You
• Ultimate Mud
• Hot Hot Salsa Night

BRENT PETERSON

OPTICAL ILLUSIONS

12 A.M. - 2 A.M.

Do you think your life is maybe a little lackluster? Wish your life were more like a magazine cover? Wish your life were a little fancier? Then maybe contact us for more.

THINGS TO TRY DURING AN IMPORTANT DISCUSSION, CAUSING JUST TO GET AROUND:

• Speaking of phone calls, then some more often when you just begin an important discussion, causing you to leave said discussion because, you know, it's left unsaid.
• At times when it seems like your emotional tactics are collapsing around you, some supporting facts, for once.
• Will make the most articulate and emotional speech you’ve ever heard, and everyone will instantly hate you better.

DELIVERING ONE-LINES COMES EASY TO PEOPLE IN CRISIS SITUATIONS:

• If you're doing anything shady, and people take on interest in you, they'll have a big change in your side throughout the entire season, when they'll... eventually go away with you.
• That people scatter and stammer over those words after being caught in a compromising situation apparently makes nothing to anyone.

THAT IT'S OK TO USE EMOTIONAL TACTICS TO GET SOMETHING FROM YOU. REFRAIN FROM:

• Contracts, or pending settlements or legal matters. Someone is like-there to use emotional tactics to get something from you. Refrain from:

AQUARIUS

• Sending mixed messages, personally and professionally. Pick a better course of action in the future.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

LIBRA

• The only way to really learn something is to experience it. Even if you're uncomfortable with a situation.
• When you're about to receive will squish a feeling of you having in a second.

VIRGO

• You will never have a date that you overdo it physically.
• You'll wish your life were more like a magazine cover.

GEMINI

• What hasn’t been working for you is a waste of time. Engage in hobbies or interests you find inspiring or that will boost your confidence.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

Taurus

• When you're about to receive will squish a feeling of you having in a second.
• If you overdo it physically.

SCORPIO

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

SAGITTARIUS

• What hasn’t been working for you is a waste of time. Engage in hobbies or interests you find inspiring or that will boost your confidence.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

CAPRICORN

• Getting your jive on is a way to show off your interests in, assets, outlook, and overall stability in your mental and physical health. Someone is the only way to really learn something is to experience it. Even if you're uncomfortable with a situation.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

AQUARIUS

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

PISCES

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Friday, February 18, 2011

ULTIMATE LID

PISCES

• Hellogoodbye
• A Knitter’s Home Companion
• Biology Seminar
• Health Management and Policy Update
• Book Babies
• PR Day: Brand You
• Ultimate Mud
• Hot Hot Salsa Night

BRENT PETERSON

OPTICAL ILLUSIONS

12 A.M. - 2 A.M.

Do you think your life is maybe a little lackluster? Wish your life were more like a magazine cover? Wish your life were a little fancier? Then maybe contact us for more.

THINGS TO TRY DURING AN IMPORTANT DISCUSSION, CAUSING JUST TO GET AROUND:

• Speaking of phone calls, then some more often when you just begin an important discussion, causing you to leave said discussion because, you know, it's left unsaid.
• At times when it seems like your emotional tactics are collapsing around you, some supporting facts, for once.
• Will make the most articulate and emotional speech you’ve ever heard, and everyone will instantly hate you better.

DELIVERING ONE-LINES COMES EASY TO PEOPLE IN CRISIS SITUATIONS:

• If you're doing anything shady, and people take on interest in you, they'll have a big change in your side throughout the entire season, when they'll... eventually go away with you.
• That people scatter and stammer over those words after being caught in a compromising situation apparently makes nothing to anyone.

THAT IT'S OK TO USE EMOTIONAL TACTICS TO GET SOMETHING FROM YOU. REFRAIN FROM:

• Contracts, or pending settlements or legal matters. Someone is like-there to use emotional tactics to get something from you. Refrain from:

AQUARIUS

• Sending mixed messages, personally and professionally. Pick a better course of action in the future.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

LIBRA

• The only way to really learn something is to experience it. Even if you're uncomfortable with a situation.
• When you're about to receive will squish a feeling of you having in a second.

VIRGO

• You will never have a date that you overdo it physically.
• You'll wish your life were more like a magazine cover.

GEMINI

• What hasn’t been working for you is a waste of time. Engage in hobbies or interests you find inspiring or that will boost your confidence.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

Taurus

• When you're about to receive will squish a feeling of you having in a second.
• If you overdo it physically.

SCORPIO

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

SAGITTARIUS

• What hasn’t been working for you is a waste of time. Engage in hobbies or interests you find inspiring or that will boost your confidence.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

CAPRICORN

• Getting your jive on is a way to show off your interests in, assets, outlook, and overall stability in your mental and physical health. Someone is the only way to really learn something is to experience it. Even if you're uncomfortable with a situation.
• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.

AQUARIUS

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

PISCES

• Delivering one-liners as any date on TV. Ever.
• If you overdo it physically.

Iowa preps for Gophers

A pair of top-five clashes early in the meet could be key in Iowa's dual at Minnesota.

The Hawkeyes erased a 13-point lead but couldn't quite overcome Northwestern's torrid 3-point shooting.

The Hawkeyes build their youth in preparation of sending rookies to the Big Tens in the future.

Men's track set to defend ranking

The men's track and field team are ranked in the top 25 for the first time since 1998.

Hawks get set for Big Tens

The Hawkeyes build their youth in preparation of sending rookies to the Big Tens in the future.
Women’s tennis returns

The No. 48 Iowa women’s tennis team will make the road to take on Marquette.

By NICK ZIFKOWSKI

Fresh off a 12-day hiatus from competition, the Iowa women’s tennis team will try to recover for Saturday’s match against Marquette.

The No. 48 Hawkeyes will hit the road to the Golden Eagles in a match that will take place on the Golden Era Experience Court.

“We had intense practice and a lot of fitness,” freshman Jessica Cushen said. “We worked really hard, it wasn’t two weeks off. It was obviously good for the body to recover with the weekend off.”

With no competition or practice over the past week, head coach Katie Doughty said the squad do lots of cardiovascular fitness and practice high-pressure scenarios. The combination of not only time off from the court, but a quick time off from practice; using the time to let their bodies rest and recover and some players also spent their time catching up on future school assignments in order to get ahead.

Another point of emphasis for Dougherty over the past week was reconnecting some players’ attitudes.

“Some players, team will feel scared,” Dougherty said. “We’re making mistakes; it was different for our players. We have worked through it, he has addressed it, and we are moving forward.”

In their last competition, on the road last week in the doubles against Kansas State team. Senior Lynna Pagman-Waichman picked up the only point for Iowa in the match.

The Hawkeyes dropped both singles matches and dropped in the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Rankings, as No. 19 senior Sophia Margolus fell from No. 30.

“My team is not as good as we have been playing with something to lose,” Dougherty said. “We are much better when we are playing for something to gain. Obviously, after that loss, I have to say it was significantly, and I think that it is a good thing for us, because now we are going to have even more passion and even more belief in ourselves.”

Although the 4-3 Golden Eagles ranked No. 16, Marquette can be overwhelming at home. Marquette is 4-1 at home this spring and posted a 3-1 record in the 2010 season.

“The only reason why they are good at home is because their fans are so fireman, the faculty is a little smaller (than Iowa), and the stands are really close.” Margolus said. “They scream and say inappropriate things.”

Iowa under Alexis Bert Deerr returns a shot during her singles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles are a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa topped Marquette, last season in Iowa City, but it may be a different story this year.

The Hawkeyes hit the road.

Afterwards, the squad will travel two hours south to DePaul University in Chicago on Feb. 30.

The unbeaten double tandem of Mofid and junior Jessica Young appeared in their first time together at No. 32. This will have an intriguing battle Sunday as they take on DePaul’s No. 55 ranked team.

They are two big hitters,” Dougherty said. “DePaul is a talented team; they make a lot of adjustments while playing. Sophia and Jess just need to play their game, and the better players will win that day.”

Men’s tennis seeks rebound

The men’s tennis team will face a pair of familiar foes this weekend in Iowa City.

By BEN ROSS

Head coach Matt Houghton said the men’s tennis team has a chance to assure itself of a better record (1-3) to break even this week-end as they face the Northern Illinois (4-1) and Western Michigan (6-2) teams.

The Hawkeyes will be looking to rebound after a 6-3 loss to Marquette at the Recreation Center.

The Hawkeyes have dropped their last three matches against DePaul, Arizona State and Saint Clara, and they want to rebound and play to up to their potential.

“With the men focusing on doubles play this week in practice after going 4-4 in doubles last week in Fayetteville, Ark., we are hoping to get up and crank it up in doubles,” Dougherty said. “The key to these matches is for the blue team and these guys return to the court and in their shots and strokes.”

The men’s team has had good luck with those opponents in the past, defeating them last season in Iowa City in 2010 and traveling to Kansas City, Mo., and winning 4-3 over the Western Missouri team on Feb. 29. The Hawkeyes are set to play placed at 3:30 p.m. and the Friday lone event, but walk-ups will be welcomed.

“We have to have confidence in ourselves and believe we can win, we have to take it to by taking the court with the hostel and belief that we can take the court,” Dougherty said.

The 6-8 sophomore hopes to be in the opening singles competition after jumping over into the week-end’s events. Junior No. 3 singles player Marc Brudz was able to win both his singles matches against Penn State at the Hawkeye Tennis & Recreation Center.

“We need more positive energy,” the Head Coach.

“We want to do lots of cardiovascular fitness and practice high-pressure scenarios. The team needs to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with the Nittany Lions.”

Houghton noted his team’s need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. The team needs to get ahead.

“We are confident coming in on the road,” Houghton said. “Playing ourselves, we are able to compete with and even beat the best teams in the country.”

The Hawkeyes will be facing just two seniors on the team, and he is known to be a leader for what is a relatively young squad. He said he is the only one that players look to when they play and he is the one that players look to when they play.

“I look for other guys to motivate me as well,” the Overland Park, Kan., native said. “I have seen the effects of not motivating guys, and we try to avoid the mentality of coming out and winning.”

She is a senior with two ranked matches against Western Michigan and Marquette.

Iowa senior Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa seniors Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa seniors Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa seniors Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa seniors Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”

Iowa seniors Garret Dunn returns a shot during his doubles match against Penn State in a match against Western Michigan on April 20. The Hawkeyes defeated the Nittany Lions, 7-0.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 6-1, last season in Iowa City, and a team that is eyeing to take on the Golden Eagles.

“We definitely need to bring confidence with the best teams, and we have what it takes to hang with them,” Dougherty said. “We need to eliminate the gap between intensity and the way we are playing with them. We need to get ahead.”
for more sports

Northwestern managed to withstand the Hawkeyes.

One of 11 seniors on the team,

McCaffery’s squad will hit the road next week to face Purdue.

The Ha wkeye defense has been solid and potent but now it’s going to be Brands said. “This is the biggest rivalry we have all season the Hawkeyes have

The weekend off res-

or try to set the tone, so 13 no.

The Hawkeyes will have three races this weekend, as well as in the upcoming Big Ten meet.

The Iowa Open will feature a rivalry that Brands said could be the best in collegiate wrestling.

The Hawkeyes will have three races this weekend, as well as in the upcoming Big Ten meet.

The weekend off res-

The Iowa Open will feature a rivalry that Brands said could be the best in collegiate wrestling.

The weekend off res-

The Hawkeyes will have three races this weekend, as well as in the upcoming Big Ten meet.

The weekend off res-

The Hawkeyes will have three races this weekend, as well as in the upcoming Big Ten meet.

The weekend off res-
In his teams final home meet of the season, men’s gymnastics coach JD Reive faces his alma matter.

By Ryan Murphy
rjmurphy@daily-iowan.com

JD Reive is quick to point out where his loyalty lies. “I was a Cornhusker; I am a Hawkeye,” the first-year Iowa men’s head gymnastics coach said.

Reive is an alumnus of Nebraska, Iowa’s opponent for Saturday’s 7 p.m. meeting in the Field House between the No. 6 Cornhuskers and the No. 10 Hawkeyes.

“I love the Cornhuskers. I mean, if you’re an athlete, either,” Reive said. “It’s a team’s deal, so I feel like we have an obligation to beat them.”

“I love the Cornhuskers. I mean, if you’re an athlete, either,” Reive said. “It’s a team’s deal, so I feel like we have an obligation to beat them.”

Nebraska’s top performer has been Andreas Hefer, who is ranked fourth in the nation in the all-around. The Cornhuskers also boast two other gymnasts — Anthony Ingrafi and Eric Schryver — ranked in the top five in their respective events. The only Hawkeyes ranked in the top 10 of his event is sophomore Anton Gryshayev, who is ranked seventh on the rings. Reive and the floor exercise, which has been the team’s secret weapon, is a key for the Hawkeyes.

“The scores have been really low; and it’s almost our first event, so we need to get that momentum going,” he said.

After a disappointing performance against Minnesota in which the Hawkeyes posted their lowest team score of the season, Reive has spent the past week emphasizing mental preparation for competition.

“Every time we do something that is part of what we compete, they have to be playing the competition scenario in their head,” he said. “The nerves, the fear, the sound, the distraction — all of it, all of it, we’ve got to be as vivid as possible when they visualize what’s happening so that when they get out there, there’s not such a drastic difference from practice to competition.”

He also said his team needs to ignore the scores put up by Nebraska and focus on its own routines.

“We should win, but it’s not really going to be us versus them. There’s a lot of us versus us, and if we put everything together like we have in practice, it’s not even going to be a competition.”
Call us for information on spring subsidies.
CHEBA HUT "TOASTED" SUBS
GRAND OPENING TODAY

50 PEOPLE WILL WIN FREE SUBS* FOR A YEAR!!!
Here’s how to enter!

1. Become a fan and change your profile photo to the CheBA HUT logo.
2. Post a "unique" picture on your wall next to the CheBA HUT Bus and invite all your facebook friends to the GRAND OPENING - Feb 18th.
3. Print a screenshot of your facebook page and bring it to the GRAND OPENING Friday Feb. 18th. The printout is your entry into the contest!

ALL SUBS WILL BE SERVED ON FRISBEEs!
FREE SHWAG GIVEAWAYS ALL DAY LONG!

314 EAST BURLINGTON ST.
WE DELIVER (319) 333-1011
(SUN-THURS 11am-10pm • FRI & SAT 11am-3am)

Search for us on facebook:
CHEBA HUT Iowa City
www.facebook.com/chebahutiowacity