Cutting edge of tattoos

By ROB SCHIFF

If something he wants doesn’t exist, he makes it himself.

With tatts inked up and down his arms, on the sides of his neck, and one hidden between black Dalek-head-shaped scars on his right thigh, the 28-year-old is not only gaining attention in the tattoo world, but also in the business world.

For Rich, the important part isn’t necessarily the particular tattoo a customer wants but rather why he is in the business.

He has built a business on his name and has done so throughout his life when it comes to art form.

The he began tattooing in 2006, where he started apprenticing with Rich. "We are the name of the art form.

He is not a stick-up, they are the artists who they own and only service to others.

Rich has been a part of Rich’s life since his earliest days, when he consistently took art classes above his grade level. He enrolled in a junior-high art class in elementary school, and in his first year at City High, Rich was the only freshman in an advanced sophomore class.

Rich is a self-acclaimed "comic book dick."

A self-described "comic book dick, Rich attributes part of his tattooing ability to his previous work drawing comics for fun. He also has an avid comic collector; he has 64 hours sitting in his home containing an estimated 10,000 comic books.

"The Amazing Spider-Man," one of his favorite characters, perfectly describes what he wants to do when he reacts to it. "I have just been a part of Rich’s life ever since his earliest days. We have been there for each other. The tattoo is a work of art and the person who is tattooing is the artist," Rich said. "I think when I approach a tattoo, I always try to make it look unique, right? It’s exactly what they want.”

In May, Rich became the full owner of a tattoo shop, which is when he changed the name to Richs Link.

"It’s the beginning, I was thinking about the future," Rich said. "When I bought the shop, I thought it was a place to meet and talk, and that’s exactly what I want to do for our customers.

Man faces felony drug charges

Officials arrested a local man after allegedly discovering several pounds of marijuana in his vehicle.

Richard Marcus, 24, of 1511 Center Ave., was arrested Wednesday after a controlled-substance investigation revealed the discovery of aitated substances with a search warrant.

Rich was arrested Thursday for possession and distribution of a controlled substance.

Rich was arrested for the second time in 2013, when he was charged with a first-degree arson.

The certification process for the building cost roughly $10,000.

“[The buildings] are energy conserving because they conserve energy. I think it’s everyone’s social and environmental responsibility to produce buildings that are as considerate of our resources as possible,” he said.

Creating these building designs can also be more expensive than normal construction — around 1 percent to 3 percent more, but these are alsooffset by the low maintenance costs, said Liz Christiansen, the director of the UI Office of Sustainability. Prices have also decreased over the past few years because LEED certified buildings have grown in popularity. “The buildings are becoming the new norm,” she said.

The U.S. Green Building Council developed LEED certification in March 2000 to push for sustainable buildings and procedures through a rating system. Buildings can earn a certified ranking with more than 40 points, silver with more than 50 points, gold with more than 60, and platinum with more than 80.

“The Johnson County Conservation Board’s LEED Gold certification for these two buildings demonstrates tremendous green building leadership,” said Rick Fedrizzi, the president, CEO, and founding chairman of the Green Building Council, in a press release.

LEED buildings are also present on the UI campus, the first being Beckwith Boathouse constructed in 2009. The boathouse also received a gold rating.

Renovations that have earned or are expected to earn a LEED rating at the university include Carver-Hawkeye Arena, Hunt Hall, and the College of Public Health. Christiansen said the buildings help the community because their overall costs are cheaper and they also help the environment. “That’s a public building, and the long-term costs and maintenance costs are lower,” she said. “They are much more environmentally efficient and energy efficient.”

Should Congress work to cut the national debt now or later?

Working to cut the nation’s debt is vital in the wake of the economic crisis.

While many aspects of the U.S. economy have yet to recover, one area that has improved significantly is the unemployment rate. Yet, we also face the unsettling possibil- ity that the current economic gains may be temporary. In such a scenario, new problems must be addressed. It is possible that the recent recovery is not a permanent fix.

In this context, Congress must address the issue of the national debt. The national debt is a burden that, if not properly managed, could lead to a future crisis. The current national debt is approximately $22 trillion, and it is projected to continue to grow.

There is no easy solution to the national debt problem. However, Congress must take action to reduce the debt. A number of proposals have been put forth, including increasing taxes and deficit reduction measures.

It is important that Congress work to reduce the national debt. The long-term consequences of ignoring the debt problem could be severe. The debt may lead to an overall decrease in economic growth, higher interest rates, and reduced spending capabilities. In addition, the national debt is a burden on future generations.

Congress must take action to reduce the national debt. The nation’s economy is too fragile to ignore this issue. If Congress does not act, the consequences will be catastrophic.

Rube, as in Goldberg

BEAU ELLIOT

There is a wonderful and nice, helpful and thoughtful congressman filled with dash, hope and vitality. Would he not be at home, or at least sitting in the same office that Dada Goldberg once inhabited. Dada Goldberg, this is no time to worry about the national debt.

The national debt, of course, is essentially the deficit accumulated over each passing year. The deficit, of course, is the difference between total government spending and the total revenue generated. The national debt, on the other hand, is the cumulative total of all past deficits.

To reduce the national debt, Congress must work to cut spending and increase revenue. Cutting spending could be achieved through reducing entitlement programs, trimming the size of the federal workforce, and ending tax expenditures.

Increasing revenue could be achieved through raising taxes, such as increasing the tax rate on the wealthy, closing tax loopholes, and increasing the corporate tax rate.

It is essential that Congress work to reduce the national debt. The nation’s economy is too fragile to ignore this issue. If Congress does not act, the consequences will be catastrophic.

Fake sharia threat distracts from real problems

It pays to get some edu- cation from a qualified legal scholar. Ignorance rules the Uni- ted States, and it is no different in the state of New York.

Recently, the New York Office of Attorney General, under Attorney General Letitia James, announced that a complaint had been filed against the Islamic Center of New York, also known as the New York Islamic Center, for violating the state’s Charities Law.

The complaint alleges that the center failed to submit required financial statements and failed to file a required annual report. The Attorney General’s office also alleges that the center failed to maintain proper books and records.

The Center of New York is not alone in facing similar complaints. In fact, many mosques in the United States have been subjected to similar scrutiny.

The real threat to American society is not the threat of sharia, but rather the threat of terrorism. The center of New York, or any other center, should be held accountable for its actions.

However, the current focus on the potential threat of sharia is a distraction from the real threat to American society. Perhaps it is time to focus on the real threats to our nation, rather than on the false fears of sharia.

Burbank, as in Goldberg

Exception, except that, by now, it is well known that the Brooklyn-based New York Daily News was a flop he couldn’t flip. It’s false and worse complica- ted by the fact that “first place” is a brand new metric.

The OK Go, 10,000 people, is more of a legend, but there’s a large seg- ment of the population who seem to refuse to compromise on anything. Their objection, in particular, is aimed at giving away the money to those who need it most. (For that matter, a recent Gallup poll showed that 53 percent of Republicans believe that the national debt — a belief that most economists agree is a falsehood — is less than half of what is reported.)

But whatever. This part of the battle, between se- veral Republicans, passed a bill that included the so-called “Peace Tax Fund.” The idea is that Congress would give money to those who opt out of the military.

Oh, in this country, it is the decision to be made.

Later

There’s nothing wrong with a deficit every now and then, especially during a recession or for budgeting purposes. However, deficit reduction could do more harm than good. For example, if Congress were to cut too far, the economy could experience a recession. In addition, deficit reduction could lead to higher interest rates and reduced spending capabilities.

The national debt is a complex issue, and there are many factors to consider. Congress must work to reduce the debt, but it must also consider the potential consequences of its actions.

It is essential that Congress work to reduce the national debt. The nation’s economy is too fragile to ignore this issue. If Congress does not act, the consequences will be catastrophic.

No more razor burn.

Men get over 300 shaves per blade and women get over 1,000 shaves per blade with all brands.

This keeps the blades shiny and new. By storing the razor and spare blades lubricated in the Lubricating Liquid, they are protected from water and exposure to the elements. Your blades will last longer than with any other system. In fact, our blades often last 2-3 years longer than the blades you buy in the drugstore. Imagine using one razor blade per year to shave your legs and face when you are using a razor blade that works better than the blades you buy in the drugstore.

The REVOLT Lubricating Liquid comes in 4 oz, 19.99 and a 2 oz bottle for $9.99. The Shaving Solution comes in 4 oz, 1 bottle for $9.99 and 2 oz, 2 bottles for $19.99. For $29.99 you can save over $100 per year in the cost of razor blades and shaving cream and get over 300 shaves per blade. Who would have thought that you could have solved this 100 year old problem for less than $3.00 per year? If everyone used products, 99% of the razor blades currently used every year would no longer be needed. Maybe its why Gillette and Schick have not tried to solve these problems. In addition, over 50 billion gallons of every water will no longer go down the drain and have to be recycled. Shaving cream is a major pollutant that will become a thing of the past. All of these metal bits accumulate no longer be in your environment.

Run has selected one of the urban legends. People believe a blade that has proven it’s worth to 100 shaves has been invented and patented. It is believed that a razor blade company has patented and hidden it to keep their razor blades business. Run has patented and patented a process that will provide 300 or 1,000 shaves for all blades. Many of the other razor blades companies are now using the process. Run has put together all of the companies and friends to provide a smooth, comfortable shave that is very cost effective.

No more razor burn without using water, razor blade shaving cosmetics become nonexistent. The commercial with Tiger Woods, Roger Federer, and Derrick Jeter shaving with mountains of shaving cream is laughable. They are promoting the wrong way to shave for killing blade life. The shaving cream pads into the blades and the cartridge from the inside out. The commercial with the Fusion blade wearing the star changing color to let you know that after five shaves you have a new blade to buy. Run’s products let you get hundreds of shaves with a razor strip that has no color left. For a cleaner shave, remove the water from your blades. It is designed for only two to four shaves. There are designed to last ten to twenty shaves. They are also selling expensive razor blades that are being drowned with shaving cream and water. Run's products will make to work looking smoother for people in shaving, bothered for years. The environment and military is an important overview where clean water is not available. They only use water, but the dense of shaving and clean up with the elimination of infection, are critical in these areas.

Run now gets 369 shaves from one $2.50 Gillette Mach III blade. That is less than $0.17 per day. One blade lasts one year or one. Call Run at 319-219-6000. He will pay to talk to you, if you can get through. If you would like to talk and ask him, you can fill him at this store - Game Day Iowa – 2001 Corridor Way, Coralville, Iowa 52241. The “Shaving Revolution” has just begun. With over 300 million people in the US over the age of 14 use their shave, the revolution

Like most of us, Run still loves to shave. He however, solved the problems with blade cost, razor irritation, and protecting the environment. As a result in his “Shaving Revolution”, the impact upon our environment will become profound. It is our goal to save 52 razor blades, 10 carons of shaving cream, and 200 gallons of water per year. In addition, it will eliminate over a million shaving cream pads. If each of us at 50 or 6 razor blades, 10 carons of shaving cream, and 2 gallons of water per person per year, it will be a difference one person, one shave at a time. We all can reduce our footprint in the world and have more clean water.

The AP reported that Christie has received an average grade of B+ from some Republicans to run. He is considered a likely candidate, given the AP's positioning on the issue. If he feels compelled that he can make a difference, he may endorse a candidate.

"Anytime Christie makes a move, it's going to cause some consternation in the room," Wolf said. "I'm not aware of anyone who has endorsed him yet."
Basabe leads All-Stars

Melsahn Basabe, Roy Devon Marble, and Matt Gatenes highlighted Iowa’s contributions to the Prime Time All-Star team.

By SAM ODEWINGE

The Prime Time League season has come and gone, and the Mid-Iowa Argus-Courier took a look back at the year to see how the season unfolded.

The season was full of upsets and drama, and the Daily Iowan breaks down the scores to decide the annual list of Prime Time All-Stars.

MVP: Melsahn Basabe

Basabe was a force on the low block.

His size and speed caused problems for most defenders, and the 2011 Big Ten All-Freshman team member made himself even more dangerous when he added a consistent midrange jumper to his repertoire.

He played with a ton of passion, which was evident throughout the regular season, scoring a monsters, 24-point, 11-6 rebound double-double.

Anthony James (Iowa)

James was one of Prime Time’s top players and a throwback to the Atlanta Hawks.

He was a bulldozer on defense, a team leader, and a guy who had his man down at all times.

When a second baseman is in the league with an ankle injury, he’s a guy who is going to find teammates.

Roy Devon Marble (Iowa)

Marble showed four in North Liberty’s full season as catcher.

After a subpar freshman year, he was outstanding in the Prime Time League.

“Everything was great,” he said. “I was really good, but I thought it would be a good idea to go in and play in the first round, and I was able to do thought I thought I was a little bit more of a hitter than a catcher, so I just went out there and played hard.

Harley was the second baseman to give the Hawks a 2-2 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

That was all cool,” Kipnis said after hitting a 3-run rocket to Kosuke Honda in the fourth inning.

As Kipnis thought as he came to bat in the ninth and are close, we can still hit a home run, if we have the bases loaded.

Walden then blew his seventh save of the season with an ankle injury.

In 2011, he posted an 1.202 OPS, according to MaxPreps.com.

Northern Iowa point guard K.K. Armstrong’s triple-double lifts her team to a 99-68 victory in the semifinals of the Game Time League playoffs.

Great players play their best when it matters, and there were three great players on one team during Monday night’s Game Time League semifinal.

Kelly Kesi, K.K. Armstrong, and Melissa Dixon took over on both ends of the court during the second half and led a 33-10 run over the final 11:28 to cruise to an easy 99-68 win and advance to the championship game.

Dixon scored 7-straight points to start the run and ended with a game-high 26 points.

“We played really aggressively,” she said. “My defense helped with that run (and) everyone was moving the ball around so well that it helped me to get shots.”

The Iowa freshman wasn’t the only player on Cullen/Falbo who turned in a great playoff performance. Armstrong posted a triple-double with 23 points, 10 rebounds, and 11 assists. The Northern Iowa point guard, who pushed the ball at every opportunity, said her defensive play and quickness allowed her to take advantage of the opportunity.

Iowa forward Kelly Kesi also played well, scoring 21 points and grabbing 11 rebounds. “It was a good team effort tonight,” she said. “My teammates were doing well, and they were passing the ball great.”

Vinton/McCurry’s was playing without Iowa guard Kamille Woolin, who averaged 22.3 points per game during the regular season. She received an injury in her right knee for worn cartilage, which she said caused her to miss a week. Woolin is the regular season. 2) Jake Rudock, quarterback

And while the website repeatedly mentions Cooper’s lack of height, it also raves about his power and leverage. “Cooper displays the ability to be able to quickly … maneuver his way to the end zone,” a scout said on Cooper’s player profile. “The Iowa freshman has the potential to be a dominant player in the future.”
