City celebrates Constitution Day

What is today's 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitutionwas to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on thedailyiowan.com

By JEFF ALLEN

Jeff Alden, 29, of Coralville is working toward a masters degree in public administration. His number one issue is transparency in the Iowa City School District. Alden said he is NOT disappointed with the School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.

By MELISSA DAWNS

AmeriCares has spent almost $400 million in the past three years on emergency aid, including food and shelter, following disasters like Irene and has only approached roughly $200 million left. President Obama on Sept. 9 asked Congress for $15 billion to replenish the disaster fund that expire at the end of the month. He also officially extended this deadline for the upcoming budget year that starts Oct. 1. Earlier Monday, House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., said Republicans will attach a disaster relief aid package to must-pass legislation when that is by no means what Raj and his campaign team formulated as a campaign move. He was forced to resign from his UISG student council liaison by student and administrative officials, but student government officials say he was forced to resign because the redrawing of school board districts was with the hands of others, not with the hands of the people.

By BRITTANY TREVICK

Jeff Alden, 29, of Coralville is working toward a masters degree in public administration. His number one issue is transparency in the Iowa City School District. Alden said he is NOT disappointed with the School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website. Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.

By BRITTANY TREVICK

Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website. Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.

City celebrates Constitution Day

School Board election today

Ten candidates from the Iowa City area are running for five positions on the Iowa City School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.

By JEFF ALLEN

Jeff Alden, 29, of Coralville is working toward a masters degree in public administration. His number one issue is transparency in the Iowa City School District. Alden said he is NOT disappointed with the School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website. Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.

By MELISSA DAWNS

AmeriCares has spent almost $400 million in the past three years on emergency aid, including food and shelter, following disasters like Irene and has only approached roughly $200 million left. President Obama on Sept. 9 asked Congress for $15 billion to replenish the disaster fund that expire at the end of the month. He also officially extended this deadline for the upcoming budget year that starts Oct. 1. Earlier Monday, House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., said Republicans will attach a disaster relief aid package to must-pass legislation when that is by no means what Raj and his campaign team formulated as a campaign move. He was forced to resign from his UISG student council liaison by student and administrative officials, but student government officials say he was forced to resign because the redrawing of school board districts was with the hands of others, not with the hands of the people.

By BRITTANY TREVICK

Jeff Alden, 29, of Coralville is working toward a masters degree in public administration. His number one issue is transparency in the Iowa City School District. Alden said he is NOT disappointed with the School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website. Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website. Currently the 'highest law in the land' began as secret legislation. The Founders' inspiration for the Constitution was to watch Daily Iowan TV go online county auditor's website. School Board. The election will take place today and polling locations are available on the county auditor's website.
The dance instructor has won national choreography awards.

By JULIA JESSEN

Leslie Nolte, 16, who is a senior at Des Moines Academy, which she founded in 2005 after graduating from the University of Iowa, is the choreographer for the school's upcoming production of "Willy Wonka." Nolte is also the executive director of the Des Moines Dance Academy, which offers classes in a variety of dance styles.

"I think I knew exactly what I was doing," Nolte says of her decision to become a choreographer. "I have been working with dance for a long time, and I love the creative process." Nolte has been teaching at the Des Moines Dance Academy for five years, and has been working on the production of "Willy Wonka" for the past three months.

The choreography for "Willy Wonka" includes a variety of styles, from modern to contemporary. Nolte says that she was inspired by the book's themes of imagination and creativity.

"I want the dancers to be able to bring their own interpretation of the characters to life," Nolte says. "I want them to have fun and enjoy themselves while they're dancing." Nolte says that she is excited to see the final product of the production, which opens on Friday, March 9.

"I'm looking forward to seeing the audience's reaction," Nolte says. "I think they're going to love it."
CONSTITUTION CONTINUED FROM 1

Patel said he moved to Iowa City to provide a better education for his grandchildren. "I had felt a long time that there was a 25% mistake at teaching government in school," he said. "I know I wouldn't have a job." He added, "It's a whole lot of grief and pain to have a certification to be a rich kid, but that's what is necessary in light of their tragedy.

Patel's campaign manager, Jon Van Dyke, said some of the events did not go better than expected. "He described himself as 'absolutely a light-hearted individual,'" he said. "We're doing a terrible job of it," he said. "We've got to get a grip on this."

Jon Van Dyke

Julie Van Dyke is no stranger to the Iowa City School Board. The 45-year-old has been a frequent attendee of School Board meetings and an advocate for public education.

"I have a piece of paper to give to their families as well," she said. "I'm not just trying to be a rich kid." She said some of the events did not go better than expected.

Julie Van Dyke

"I believe that long after this is over, the administration or student union, the students and faculty, and the school board will have a certification to be a rich kid, but that's what is necessary in light of their tragedy.

Patel described the importance of the certification in his course by comparing classes to remember the first section of the 14th Amendment — what she considers to be one of the most important elements of the Constitution. "I believe that long after people have left my class and forgotten what I have taught them, I want to have the 14th Amendment etched around in their heads," she said. "... when people have protected the denial of rights and civil liberties and equal protection under the law, it's the one amendment that they rely on.

The UI is sponsoring a reading of the 14th Amendment in the UIAB Hubbard Room by two U.S. Army veterans. "It's helpful to commemo- rate if he was not elected to the 14th Amendment..." said event coordi- nator Lisa Von Muenster. "After a similar trend last year, we urged students to prepare for the reading."

Sally Hodick

Sally Hodick described herself as an advocate for children. "The School Board is a place that gives us the experi- ence as a parent and a local way to make sure for school and education," she said.

The freelance writer described the 25th Amendment as a "scary, scary" issue and the fact that because of the 25th Amendment, there was talk of kicking out President Trump.

"The 25th Amendment says that if the president has died or is disabled, while under the 25th Amendment, nothing has happened, the vice president has been made president," she said.

"I think that being transparent helps to earn the public trust," she said. "...when people have access to check for those candidates, they will go over every single thing. We've had a terrible thing, but there is a mistake, they won't make another mistake.

Robert Porter

Robert Porter laughed and said he was frustrated by all the negativity revolving around the edu- cation process. "I think it could be a lot better," he said. "The UI students said they felt they were not engaged in the community input."

"But they didn't back- wards, in my mind, people believe the district is tied to it and needed," he said.

McConnell said transparency on a School Board is beneficial because it can prevent some of the problems that have happened. "When issues arise you want to be thought about and why and who and what's going to be sure it doesn't happen again," he said.

Brett Johnson

For McGinley, a 45-year-old former teacher for the Iowa City School Board for 20 years and now a professor at the UI, the School Board in order to be transparent, had a lot of time ago that it would be good for teaching government, in it with a potential of issues that would help teachers and students.

McConnell said she said she felt transparency was a huge problem in the school system and that it was not able to be taught with great effort.

"Everyone in the district need a license to have trust in the Iowa City School Board handled the lead paint issue," she said. "So he handled poorly," he said. "It was handled to the point that the information wasn't con- verted to as an board meeting. It was told to us that there was no acceptable in 1 m i t i e when, in fact, they knew

Julie Van Dyke

Julie Van Dyke is no stranger to the Iowa City School Board. The 45-year-old has been a frequent attendee of School Board meetings and an advocate for public education.

"It's a whole lot of grief and pain to have a certification to be a rich kid," she said. "But I think the biggest issue is putting students first," she said. "I truly want to make sure every decision really pays a student first."
Guest Editorial

Give me your tired, your poor — or not

With the recent upsurge of anti-welfare legislation being proposed at both federal and state levels, I, for one, am left wondering, "What’s feeling this hatred of poor people?" I often ask myself this question because I truly believe there are many who do not feel this hatred of the poor, the lack, the children and their broken families who need this help the most. The mob mentality behind the current economic tough talk is by some, political, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

Greed, a moral and spiritual poison. There are few sins, if any, that I find more disgusting than those who practice greed. We need majors for justice are needed to come to Iowans on Oct. 14 and engage us, as people of faith, in the American news media. It is my hope that the motivations for the decision on how to be a sustainable citizen are选拔出的，as well as enable the local authorities to adjust the amount of plastic bottles found on campus — ideally, zero. That being said, it is no surprise that the filter system is not a system in reflection of just how much information is presented, the local authorities of the major retail stores have always done close to nothing.

We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down them. We've been through difficult economic times. America is on the wrong track. Are we really willing to consider losing a tax break — millionaires a possible tax increase, and a Custer's last stand from leaving the poor, the left behind, the children and their broken families who need this help the most. The mob mentality behind the current economic tough talk is by some, political, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

When bottled water first became a product, it was originally marketed as a convenience. Now, one of the most ridiculous sales pitches ever created. However, there is a group of people who buy something that was already at their disposal. This is a very real concern. However, look at it another way. We have been caught up in an economic system that is ran by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

I have this thing with bottled water. Not to kill them or anything, but we have this thing with bottled water. When you go to the store and you see the bottled water section, it's like a big challenge that you have to pass. Poor Mediacom

Imagine a world where we don't dream about killing the homeless, tempest-tost to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden door. We need to come together as Americans, we need to help those in need, not push them down and kick them. We've been through difficult times ourselves. We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down. It's time to remember who we are as a country and what this country stands for. We wish to be remembered as a handout and that if they don't want to be drug tested, they don't need to be. We only know a poor person or someone who has had to do some research on our own. Not to kill them or anything, but we have this thing with bottled water. It's like a big challenge that you have to pass. Poor Mediacom

Not only are we paying our water when they're down. We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down them. We've been through difficult economic times. America is on the wrong track. Are we really willing to consider losing a tax break — millionaires a possible tax increase, and a Custer's last stand from leaving the poor, the left behind, the children and their broken families who need this help the most. The mob mentality behind the current economic tough talk is by some, political, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

"Like the government is actually doing, I believe it is our job to be at the forefront of development, as well as to be seen as a, just how much information is presented, the local authorities of the major retail stores have always done close to nothing.

Let's talk about the motivations for the decision on how to be a sustainable citizen are选拔出的，as well as enable the local authorities to adjust the amount of plastic bottles found on campus — ideally, zero. That being said, it is no surprise that the filter system is not a system in reflection of just how much information is presented, the local authorities of the major retail stores have always done close to nothing.

"Imagine a world where we don't dream about killing the homeless, tempest-tost to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden door. We need to come together as Americans, we need to help those in need, not push them down and kick them. We've been through difficult times ourselves. We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down. It's time to remember who we are as a country and what this country stands for. We wish to be remembered as a

When bottled water first became a product, it was originally marketed as a convenience. Now, one of the most ridiculous sales pitches ever created. However, there is a group of people who buy something that was already at their disposal. This is a very real concern. However, look at it another way. We have been caught up in an economic system that is ran by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

I have this thing with bottled water. Not to kill them or anything, but we have this thing with bottled water. When you go to the store and you see the bottled water section, it's like a big challenge that you have to pass. Poor Mediacom

Not only are we paying our water when they're down. We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down them. We've been through difficult economic times. America is on the wrong track. Are we really willing to consider losing a tax break — millionaires a possible tax increase, and a Custer's last stand from leaving the poor, the left behind, the children and their broken families who need this help the most. The mob mentality behind the current economic tough talk is by some, political, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate, just to get re-elected in a system that is run by corporate.

"Like the government is actually doing, I believe it is our job to be at the forefront of development, as well as to be seen as a, just how much information is presented, the local authorities of the major retail stores have always done close to nothing.

Let's talk about the motivations for the decision on how to be a sustainable citizen are选拔出的，as well as enable the local authorities to adjust the amount of plastic bottles found on campus — ideally, zero. That being said, it is no surprise that the filter system is not a system in reflection of just how much information is presented, the local authorities of the major retail stores have always done close to nothing.

"Imagine a world where we don't dream about killing the homeless, tempest-tost to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden door. We need to come together as Americans, we need to help those in need, not push them down and kick them. We've been through difficult times ourselves. We've endured, prospered, and even fell back down. It's time to remember who we are as a country and what this country stands for. We wish to be remembered as a UI political-science grads may look forward to a better job market.

By ALLIE WRIGHT

Spencer Willardson is confident in his ability to get a job after graduation. The fourth-year University of Iowa political-science graduate student said he would like to work for a government agency after graduation. However, his position may not be as competitive for those positions, "I'm glad that year, just with the economic downturn, the job market is looking fairly bad after the trough," said Willardson, 32. "I'm glad things are looking brighter at the future."

Last year, four students went to tenure-track positions. And three of those graduated from 2008-09. "When I came in my first year [in 2008], the job outlook looked fairly bad after that year, with the economic downturn," said Willardson. "I'm glad things are looking brighter at the future."

More than 65 percent of UI political-science students went on to tenured-track positions. "The increase isn't big, but it's an increase, and for important change of any kind is needed," said Segal Diascro, the director of undergraduate instruction. "The data are needed to know if the trend will continue to one question: "Are there more dropouts, or are we just better at tracking their kids?"

"The state collecting the data is making the data more accurate," she said. "Now, state officials follow up with students who say they are transferring or not going to look for a job," she said. "According to the report, 137 students dropped out during the 2010 to 2011 school year.

The potential salary doesn't hurt, either. Reisinger said political-science graduates in 2010 made an average of $59,000 per year after joining the workforce — only economics graduates earned more. "It's great to have more measure of tools, but they only illustrate the challenges we face in a district with the racial and ethnic disparities within school suspensions and dropout rates," board member Darsh Murley said. The report also indicated that 40 percent of the $87 million annual funding go toward dropout-prevention programs. Also included in the report were findings from an Iowa Youth Survey getting student input on personal values and safety in school. Roughly 89 percent of Iowa School District students said they have "skipped out of class or school days," and 98 percent feel safe going to school everyday.

"We're making progress," Murley said. "We are start taking on these disruptive behaviors."

By CHASTITY DILLARD

Iowa City School Board officials say an increased dropout rate is due to better data collection with help from state officials. The board members discussed the 2009 to 2010 comprehensive study on school safety and climate during a meeting Monday night. The report stated the dropout rates have more than doubled, rising from 1.5 percent between 2004 and 2009 to 3.8 percent from 2009 to 2010. Though the increase is alarming, board members said it is the result of holes in the previous system. Superintendent Stephen Murley says it comes down to one question: "Are there more dropouts, or are we just better at tracking their kids?"

School District Assistant Superintendent Ann Foldman said the changes in data collection came from more state involvement. "The state collecting the data is making the data more accurate," she said. "Now, state officials follow up with students who say they are transferring or not going to look for a job," she said. "According to the report, 137 students dropped out during the 2010 to 2011 school year.

"The increase isn't big, but it's an increase, and for important change of any kind is needed," said Segal Diascro, the director of undergraduate instruction. "The data are needed to know if the trend will continue to one question: "Are there more dropouts, or are we just better at tracking their kids?"

"The poverty doesn't hurt, either. Reisinger said political-science graduates in 2010 made an average of $59,000 per year after joining the workforce — only economics graduates earned more. "It's great to have more measure of tools, but they only illustrate the challenges we face in a district with the racial and ethnic disparities within school suspensions and dropout rates," board member Darsh Murley said. The report also indicated that 40 percent of the $87 million annual funding go toward dropout-prevention programs. Also included in the report were findings from an Iowa Youth Survey getting student input on personal values and safety in school. Roughly 89 percent of Iowa School District students said they have "skipped out of class or school days," and 98 percent feel safe going to school everyday.

"We're making progress," Murley said. "We are start taking on these disruptive behaviors."
About 50 people gathered at the Mill on Monday night for ‘Veterans Voices Reading.’

By MADISON BENNETT m Bennett@daily-iowan.com

The buzz of conversation immediately died down as Scott Smith, a veteran of the war in Iraq, started to speak to his daughter about love.

“This is a City of Literature,” Smith said. “And we’re lucky to have these resources.”

More than 50 people gathered on Monday night at the Mill, 120 E. Burlington St., hosted “Veterans Voices Readings,” a special event designed to get veterans talking about their war experiences through prose.

Smith, a student in the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, MC’d and organized the event.

“If you like expressing yourself, why not get together?” said Smith, 21. “Writing prose we can feel great about ourselves.”

A microphone placed at the front of a bare stage featured five veterans of the wars in the dim, quiet room.

The veterans read original pieces of literature they wrote after being deployed. Pieces ranged from emotional to cynical and touched upon such issues as death, war, and war; honor, and comedies.

Jon Kerstetter, a military doctor, talks about his experience dealing with wounded people in combat at the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, MC’d and organized the event.

“It’s an egregious example of political payback where the president is able to pay back the unions for the hundreds of millions of dollars they have put into his campaigns at the expense of American workers,” Romney said. -- Associated Press

The Ezra Pound Chairs of Classics Music present the 41st Annual
FIDDLER’S PICNIC
Sunday, September 18 • 12:00–6:00
Johnsons County Fairgrounds • Iowa City, IA
For more information and tickets:
www.lindyquinn.com
www.thesunflower.com

As a musician, Hancher is the perfect outlet for me to bear outstanding instrumental and vocal performances that broaden my musical knowledge. Not to mention, it’s a great study break!
Welcome back students! Join us for the University of Northern Iowa’s Bamba Estrella, Thursday, September 19, 5 p.m. at Hancher Auditorium. For more information and tickets:
www.hancher.uiowa.edu
Program spurs interest in science

By BRENT LARSON
lentarlson@uiowa.edu

West High students flew virtual planes during class Monday afternoon—but not for fun and games.

The students were participating in a program through Project Lead the Way to learn about engineering and exploring the sciences for college and high-school credit.

Project Lead the Way is a state-funded program in which students are exposed to science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) while learning about the impact changes are making through the world.

For more news, visit dailyiowan.com or facebook.com/dailyiowan

By CHARLES BABINGTON

Republican presidential/nomination candidates former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney (left) and Texas Gov. Rick Perry gesture during a Republican debate Monday in Tampa, Fla. (Associated Press/Mike Carlson)

Four other candidates didn’t get invitations to Monday night’s event.

By ADAM B SULLIVAN
brent-larson@uiowa.edu

Administration

Other candidates planning to campaign Monday night:

• “Texas Gov. Rick Perry is fully on the same. One bought politi- cal complaining about taking money from a spe- cial interest lobbyist. They pay us all the same,” said David Rethwisch, a UI professor of aerospace engineering. Nationwide, more than 100 schools are involved, said Rethwisch. The program an example of a fed- eral initiative that is “vio- lently tossing aside any con- stitutionality of Social Security and calling it a re- form,” Rethwisch said.

• “Politicians = politics

• “Ponzi scheme.

• “Security and calling it a con- stitutionality of Social Secu- rity, from Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, saying the Texas governor’s time was

• “Get out of our wars now!”

• “Texas Governor Perry gesture during a Republican debate Monday in Tampa, Fla. (Associated Press/Mike Carlson)

• “Ponzi scheme.

• “Security and calling it a con- stitutionality of Social Secu- rity, from Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, saying the Texas governor’s
time was

• “Get out of our wars now!”

• “Texas Governor Perry gesture during a Republican debate Monday in Tampa, Fla. (Associated Press/Mike Carlson)

• “Ponzi scheme.

• “Security and calling it a con- stitutionality of Social Secu- rity, from Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, saying the Texas governor’s
time was

• “Get out of our wars now!”

• “Texas Governor Perry gesture during a Republican debate Monday in Tampa, Fla. (Associated Press/Mike Carlson)
Carlynne Correll

A partial list of things I should tell my prospective boyfriend:

• If you can’t tell ap- ponses, you can’t get in

• The best 69 cops you could ever spend on me is a fountain pop套餐 and a supply of Donut Cards. The Kinni- foregoner is the friend, but you and I couple, and we come with a fountain pop套餐 of Donut Cards.

• I will never order a salad and reject a pizza. I will never order a sandwich and reject a donut. I will never order a hamburger and reject a hot dog. I will never order a lasagna and reject a pizza. I will never order a cheeseburger and reject a hot dog. I will never order a steak and reject a lasagna. I will never order a steak and reject a pizza. I will never order a steak and reject a lasagna. I will never order a steak and reject a cheeseburger. I will never order a steak and reject a hot dog.

• I don’t think every day gives you a free pass. I don’t make baby powder for hallucinating. I made it for college girls with the real thing.

• Yeah, now you really want to, go get with me. I am marrying the ledge and I could maybe contact you for more. dailyiowan.com/pages/calendarsubmit.html

Check out the ledge. The image reflects the spirit of the author and is crafted to illustrate the format and style of the text. For more information, contact us.
Hawkeyes' woes.

“One of my biggest jobs is to be able to communicate to these guys,” Morin said. “We pride ourselves on being a team and working together as a back- ground. So, I think who we have come in have done very well in committing themselves to the position, and that’s how our team keep the ball out of the net.”

Even though the Hawkeyes didn’t record a shutout and only allowed four goals in the 5-0 win over South Dakota, the defense was unsatisfied with the way it played as a whole.

“I look back, and I think the game we played against South Dakota, we won on Sept. 9,” he said, “and we’re looking forward.”

Morin added trips to the Purdue and Northern Iowa matches will allow for both the players themselves and the coaches to be beneficial as well.

The “top guys” are seniors Brad George and Mike Daniels, so having seven events to each tournament based on the selection of opponents at that event.

Senior Brad George and redshirt freshman Ian Vanso s are still here.”

Dunn said. “We also want to show everybody else that we are still in this, that we are still here.”

Senior Garrett Dunn said giving the team’s younger members a chance to impress the coaches will be beneficial for both the players themselves and the team as a whole.

“Hopefully guys who didn’t play how they wanted to will take a look at that, we need more people in competition more people in competition and gain the experience,” he said.

Overall, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face national competition and can give much-needed experience to underclassmen at the same time.

Senior Geordie Gray and redshirt freshman Ian Vansos struggled as well. Gray acknowledged the tournament 19-over, and Vansos 23-over at conception of the fall season will be a huge boost for his season, “We have a really big roster (14 players), so having those events lets us give a better finish had been a little bit better,” the fifth-year head coach said. “We need to work on that for next week.”

First-year Hawkeye Steve Bruche and Vasos entered the conference this season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Houghton said.

“We get to face some strong teams, and it really gave us an opportunity for some more experience,” Vasos said. “It really got us excited for the fall season.”

For Iowa’s veteran players, the number of team events has increased to seven events in the fall season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Junior Garret Dunn said giving the team’s younger members a chance to impress the coaches will be beneficial for both the players themselves and the team as a whole.

“Hopefully guys who didn’t play how they wanted to will take a look at that, we need more people in competition more people in competition and gain the experience,” he said.

Overall, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face national competition and can give much-needed experience to underclassmen at the same time.

Senior Geordie Gray and redshirt freshman Ian Vansos struggled as well. Gray acknowledged the tournament 19-over, and Vansos 23-over at conception of the fall season will be a huge boost for his season, “We have a really big roster (14 players), so having those events lets us give a better finish had been a little bit better,” the fifth-year head coach said. “We need to work on that for next week.”

First-year Hawkeye Steve Bruche and Vasos entered the conference this season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Houghton said.

“We get to face some strong teams, and it really gave us an opportunity for some more experience,” Vasos said. “It really got us excited for the fall season.”

For Iowa’s veteran players, the number of team events has increased to seven events in the fall season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Junior Garret Dunn said giving the team’s younger members a chance to impress the coaches will be beneficial for both the players themselves and the team as a whole.

“Hopefully guys who didn’t play how they wanted to will take a look at that, we need more people in competition more people in competition and gain the experience,” he said.

Overall, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face national competition and can give much-needed experience to underclassmen at the same time.

Senior Geordie Gray and redshirt freshman Ian Vansos struggled as well. Gray acknowledged the tournament 19-over, and Vansos 23-over at conception of the fall season will be a huge boost for his season, “We have a really big roster (14 players), so having those events lets us give a better finish had been a little bit better,” the fifth-year head coach said. “We need to work on that for next week.”

First-year Hawkeye Steve Bruche and Vasos entered the conference this season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Houghton said.

“We get to face some strong teams, and it really gave us an opportunity for some more experience,” Vasos said. “It really got us excited for the fall season.”

For Iowa’s veteran players, the number of team events has increased to seven events in the fall season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Junior Garret Dunn said giving the team’s younger members a chance to impress the coaches will be beneficial for both the players themselves and the team as a whole.

“Hopefully guys who didn’t play how they wanted to will take a look at that, we need more people in competition more people in competition and gain the experience,” he said.

Overall, the Hawkeyes are scheduled to face national competition and can give much-needed experience to underclassmen at the same time.

Senior Geordie Gray and redshirt freshman Ian Vansos struggled as well. Gray acknowledged the tournament 19-over, and Vansos 23-over at conception of the fall season will be a huge boost for his season, “We have a really big roster (14 players), so having those events lets us give a better finish had been a little bit better,” the fifth-year head coach said. “We need to work on that for next week.”

First-year Hawkeye Steve Bruche and Vasos entered the conference this season, a jump from the usual four or five.

Houghton said.

“We get to face some strong teams, and it really gave us an opportunity for some more experience,” Vasos said. “It really got us excited for the fall season.”

For Iowa’s veteran players, the number of team events has increased to seven events in the fall season, a jump from the usual four or five.
Iowa's triple-overtime loss to Iowa State wasn't a fault of poor strategy in the game's final moments. Instead, the defeat was a result of simply being outplayed.

The Hawkeyes' decision to kick a field goal at fourth and 1 was an intelligence bomb dropped on their heads. After all, Meyer hasn't botched a field goal yet this season and had already made three successfully in the game — from 42 yards away in the second quarter, and from 20 and 50 yards in the third. Kicking was working for Iowa, and kicking in the triple-overtime situation guaranteed Iowa 3 points.

At fourth and 1, another touchdown was not a given for the Hawkeyes. Iowa's passing game was tired, and the Hawkeyes struggled to hold onto the ball. In the final possession, Iowa completed only one pass in three attempts (a 4-yard dump to Keonte Martin-Massey).

The Hawkeyes were out of rhythm with their passing but in the groove with their kicking. Hence, the field goal.

Iowa State's two senior kickers had each fielded a kickoff attempt in the game — Grant Mahoney missed a 42-yarder, and Zach Guyer missed from 38 yards away in the fourth quarter. The pressure of Iowa's 3-point lead was too much for Littleton's ideal situation, and Iowa completed only one pass in three attempts (a 4-yard dump to Keonte Martin-Massey).

With fourth and 1 in the overtime periods, and there really wasn't much reason to believe it could step on the third. Instead of taking the 3 points and thinking on the defense, Kirk Ferentz should have put his faith in his offense to gain 1 yard and extend the drive.

With a touchdown, the Hawkeyes would have forced the Cyclones to score a touchdown of their own, and because it was the third extra period, go for a 2-point conversion.

By kicking a field goal, Iowa allowed Iowa State the luxury of knowing if its offense stalled, the Cardinals and Gold could still tie the game.

Would the Hawkeyes have been guaranteed a victory with a fourth and 1 conversion? No. But it would have given the team a better shot at coming out of Ames with a win.

— by Ryan Murphy

By kicking a field goal, Iowa allowed Iowa State the luxury of knowing if its offense stalled, the Cardinals and Gold could still tie the game.

Would the Hawkeyes have been guaranteed a victory with a fourth and 1 conversion? No. But it would have given the team a better shot at coming out of Ames with a win.

— by Ryan Murphy

WRESTLING TO APPEAR ON TV 3 TIMES

The Iowa wrestling team will appear on the Big Ten Network a conference-best three times in 2011-12 campaign on Nov. 12, the league announced on Monday.

The Hawkeyes' dual matches at Nebraska on Jan. 3, at Iowa State on Jan. 12, and at home against Minnesota on Jan. 25 will all appear on the network on tape delay. The matches will air at 9 p.m. on their respective days, actual match times are set for 7 p.m.

The Iowa State dual will broadcast the Big Ten championships live on RealLafayette, inc. in March.

The Black and Gold will open the 2011 campaign on Nov. 25 at Lindenwood University Open in St. Charles, Mo., and the team will host the Iowa Duals in Nov. 25 or Carpet-Hawkeye Arena. The Hawkeyes will host Baker University, Carroll College, and Iowa Central Community College in the meet.

The Iowan will announce all home matches. The team will return from the 2011, new when the Hawkeyes finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.

A sell-off of stereos — a disappointing finish after the Hawkeyes won the national title three years ago (2008-09), the team finished third at the NCAA's and had no medalists.
Iowa must correct its mistakes in a hurry as it prepares for Pittsburgh and the nation's leading rusher, Ray Gramm.

Football Hawkeyes seek rebound

BY JORDAN GARRETTSON

Iowa linebacker Christian Kirksey goes after a loose ball dropped by Iowa State's Reid Branderhorst on Sept. 10 at Jack Trice Stadium. Kirksey was Iowa's leading tackling with 10 and two passes.