Randall Terry intends to oust President Obama as a Democratic candidate.

By MELISSA DAWKINS
melissa-dawkins@uiowa.edu

One Democratic caucus candidate and longtime anti-abortion activist, Everett Strasser-Abortion is an important topic this election season.

Randall Terry, a 2012 Democratic caucus candidate and longtime anti-abortion activist, Everett Strasser, intends to oust President Obama as a Democratic candidate on Thursday.

The state Board of Regents met in UNI's Maucker Union in Cedar Falls on Thursday. The regents discussed tuition increases between 3 and 4 percent for the 2012-13 school year. (The Daily Iowan/Jacklyn Couppee)

The state Board of Regents reviewed a 4 percent state appropriation increase.

By SOYA GRIGE soyagrie@uiowa.edu

CEDAR FALLS—Some Iowa Legislators have mixed views on whether to help alleviate the burden of tuition increases on students.

The state Board of Regents discussed tuition increases between 3 and 4 percent for the 2012-13 year in Cedar Falls on Thursday. The varying figure for in-state and out-of-state students are all lower than the increase 5 and 6 percent that occurred during the 2011-12 year. The regents said they accepted the increase but called for support from state legislators.

While several state legislators say they need to increase their efforts.

"Too much of a shift has been on the students, and we need to move the

UI Student Financial Aid, and the calculator will likely be annual.

Officials believe the calculator will provide an accurate assessment of
The Irish dark comedy The Critique of Irishness will open tonight at the Riviere Theatre. (Cathedral Photo)

The Daily Iowan

Volume 143

Issue 90

February 12, 2021

NEWS REPORTS

Phone: 361-699-1000  Fax: 361-699-1041

CONTRIBUTORS

Staff

Editor: Shane Schoen
Managing Editor: J. D. Holt
Copy Editor: Jennifer Folkers
Art Director: Dan McGraw
Features Editor: Shaela Clark
Sports Editor: Jordan Wagner
Copy Editor: Nicole Ford
Assistant Editor: Emilia Echeverria
Copy Editor: Emily Bender
Copy Editor: Bethany Echeverria

PUBLISHING STAFF

Office: 219 N. Gilbert St.
Telephone: 361-699-1000
Fax: 361-699-1041
E-mail: daily-iowan@uiowa.edu
Web site: www.daily-iowan.com

ADVERTISERS

Advertising Manager: Peter Bechtel
Marketing Director: Elyse Roche
Sales Manager: Emily Bender
Promotion Manager: Bethany Echeverria

TOP STORIES

1. Occupy Iowa City: Neighbors call protest ‘disrespectful’
2. Kirkcove strengthens his case for Iowa
3. Occupy Iowa City’s statement of principles
4. Want to meet the newell students?
5. Obama’s plan aims to ease student-loan burden

---

Regents OK UI estate sale

The state Board of Regents approved a proposal to sell the 184.8-acre farmstead located in Warren County — the site of the Black Hawk Farmstead — to a private buyer for about $750,000.

Proponents of the sale see it as a way to preserve the historic property. In 2007, Iowa’s Board of Regents first considered the sale of the property to the state’s agricultural education program.

Regents approve UI projects

The regents unanimously approved a $3.5 million renovation to a nearly 110-year-old campus residence in the Student Services Complex.

---

BLOTTER

William David, 21, 464 E. Iowa St., was charged Monday with public intoxication, public nuisances and public nuisance.

James L. Ingram, 55, 509 E. Iowa St., was charged Thursday with public intoxication and keeping a controlled substance.

Glenn W. Johnson, 22, 1111 N. Gilbert St., was charged Monday with public intoxication.

Melvin Lee Jones, 53, 944 N. Gilbert St., was charged Thursday with public intoxication.

---

METRO

Regents approve UI projects

The regents unanimously approved a $3.5 million renovation to a nearly 110-year-old campus residence in the Student Services Complex.

---

JANUARY 19

ATIMET)

Iowa City, 213 N. Gilbert St.
Auctioneer: Jennifer Folkers
Auctioneer: Dan McGraw
Auctioneer: Nicole Ford
Auctioneer: Emily Bender
Auctioneer: Bethany Echeverria

TOP STORIES

1. Occupy Iowa City: Neighbors call protest ‘disrespectful’
2. Kirkcove strengthens his case for Iowa
3. Occupy Iowa City’s statement of principles
4. Want to meet the newell students?
5. Obama’s plan aims to ease student-loan burden

---

Big savings on over 150 excellent Mathematics titles

Sale ends Dec. 31, 2021

Iowa Book Inc.

Springer yellow sale

Big savings on over 150 excellent Mathematics titles

Sale ends Dec. 31, 2021

Iowa Book Inc.
He said his main agenda is to attract support from Obama. “I can’t defeat Obama in the Democratic primary, Terry told. “But if I can cause his defeat in the general election.”

Richard Parker, a professor of Public Policy at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, said Terry is not a traditional candidate.

“I think he’s a protest candidate,” he said. By campaigning, Terry said his message has the potential to reach more Americans.

“As the nation’s economy improves… the message that we bring will resonate with more and more people,” he said.

More and more people, “he said, “will want to be a part of this country’s story.”

“I think he’s a viable candidate,” he said. By campaigning, Terry said he has a specific strategy to spread his message to the electorate.

“He’s not a viable candidate,” he said. “Aborted babies… Graphic, horrifying images.”

“One thing he has been efficient at is not something I was happy with,” Quirmback said. “It’s not something I was happy with.”

“But my position is that we should put together a plan to do things like TV stations that just won’t run those messages.”

Supporting a decrease in supervision on foreign aid and opposing a raise in the national debt ceiling, Terry said he believes he is the one for the job.

“I do intend to become president of the United States if the people of the state of Iowa say that I should be,” he said. “We’re committed to this for the long haul.”

TERRY

CONTINUED FROM 1

REGENTS

CONTINUED FROM 1

Terry said he has a specific strategy to spread his message to the electorate.

“He’s not a viable candidate,” he said. “Aborted babies… Graphic, horrifying images.”

“One thing he has been efficient at is not something I was happy with,” Quirmback said. “It’s not something I was happy with.”

“But my position is that we should put together a plan to do things like TV stations that just won’t run those messages.”

Supporting a decrease in supervision on foreign aid and opposing a raise in the national debt ceiling, Terry said he believes he is the one for the job.

“I do intend to become president of the United States if the people of the state of Iowa say that I should be,” he said. “We’re committed to this for the long haul.”

TERRY

CONTINUED FROM 1

REGENTS

CONTINUED FROM 1

Terry said he has a specific strategy to spread his message to the electorate.

“He’s not a viable candidate,” he said. “Aborted babies… Graphic, horrifying images.”

“One thing he has been efficient at is not something I was happy with,” Quirmback said. “It’s not something I was happy with.”

“But my position is that we should put together a plan to do things like TV stations that just won’t run those messages.”

Supporting a decrease in supervision on foreign aid and opposing a raise in the national debt ceiling, Terry said he believes he is the one for the job.

“I do intend to become president of the United States if the people of the state of Iowa say that I should be,” he said. “We’re committed to this for the long haul.”

TERRY
Should the Paul-McCain bandwagon be lifted past 10 p.m.?

By Steve M. Case

Yes

The 7 p.m. Clock

Poll Position revealed the results of its national smoking poll. Apparently, 52 percent of Americans have never heard of McCain or Paul. I wonder what the percentage would look like if only the two or three around the state who have had might vote. OK, I understand the no-smoking-in-the-Polkadot-Mall campaign and the need to keep the heads of children around their children, but children love the downtown shopping center in downtown Iowa City, and that's precisely the place that they will be found under the noonie shopping up a Midway. So, I vote no. Strip your shopping through these ranks of a smoker. Almost everyone can agree on that. But there are plenty of them. Most people confront smokers because they are concerned about their own health. Those are people who are. If you have asthma and go out of your way to get in the fuming presence of a smoker, you're an idiot. Have your friend do it, for Paul.

Paul or Kucinich

In response to published opinion, I am writing a letter in favor of America that may appear below were originally posted on my website, www.johnkucinich.org. I am astonished at how lightfooted voters are to forget. I am amazed at how people under their own principles of and for whatever time, I am surprised by how much we are as we shut down the democratic process.

No

The casual smoking of the Paul-McCain bandwagon becomes a part of downtown life in Iowa City. The past week, one could not escape the advertisements and arguments for and against the ban on smoking in public places. The question is how and where.

In any event, there is a minority in a majority. That is, the first time a majority of Americans were surveyed in 2001 by Gallup, the majority of Americans are now supporting the ban. It offers a financial incentive (albeit still small) for Iowa City to become one of 20 states that will join other places in a good idea. If Iowa is serious about increasing student advancement. If Iowa is serious about making the best thinking of liberalism.

I am astonished at how lightfooted voters are to forget. I am amazed at how people under their own principles of and for whatever time, I am surprised by how much we are as we shut down the democratic process.

Bipartisan lawsuit in federal court

These nonpareils are Ben Stein, of course, and Dennis Haysbert, the lead the development of the Next Strate, in the interest of the defense.

It would involve two men that may appear below were originally posted on my website, www.johnkucinich.org. I am astonished at how lightfooted voters are to forget. I am amazed at how people under their own principles of and for whatever time, I am surprised by how much we are as we shut down the democratic process.

I am astonished at how lightfooted voters are to forget. I am amazed at how people under their own principles of and for whatever time, I am surprised by how much we are as we shut down the democratic process.
Haze, trench coats, & mirage

A new play written by a UI Playwrights’ Workshop writer will début in the Theatre Building.

By JULIA JESSEN

Private eye. Badass. Whiskey. These are some of the words that describe Christopher Marlowe’s character in Christopher Marlowe’s Chloroform Dreams.

A play unlike most — it inhabits the dark underbelly of a film noir world.

The production will take the stage at 8 p.m. Friday through Oct. 30 in the Theatre Building’s Theatre B.

“This is a very dangerous piece of writing by a UI student in the University of Iowa Playwrights’ Workshop who wrote the play,” said Kristin Clippard, who directed Chloroform Dreams.

She applauded the play, saying he had a heavy film noir atmosphere in a drug-infested, dark, dreamy world.

“It’s a lim and imaginative way of looking at a journey and addiction in the dark world of film noir,” said Hawkins.

Directing the play, she said, required a lot of experimenting to make the world seem less realistic and more impressionistic.

“We played a lot with using fedoras, and cigars, and ties, and just all sorts of things to really create the film noir, the dark world of film noir,” she said.

June 13, 2011

At the same time, Boehner emphasized, “I don’t think it’s a reasonable number,” he said. “This is the same number that was in the president’s budget, the same number that — that they — I don’t know that they found any Democrat in the House and Senate to vote for.”

“I don’t think it’s a reasonable number,” he said. Boehner also chided Democrats for recommending $50 billion in savings from Medicare over the next decade, well below what Republicans are seeking.

“Let’s understand over the next 10 years, we’re going to spend $10 trillion in Medicare. I just think there’s a lot more room there to help find common ground,” he said.

At the same time, Boehner emphasized, “I am committed to getting to an outcome” that clears passage in the Senate to vote for.

In all, the changes would reduce deficits by an estimated $200 billion over a decade, a fraction of the committee’s minimum goal of $1.2 trillion in savings.

A final decision by the panel on legislation to reduce deficit is still a few weeks off, and given the political difficulties involved, there is no certainty that the six Republicans and six Democrats will be able to agree.

The two sides announced earlier this week, and each side swiftly found fault with the others’ proposals.

“As audiences will enjoy the play because they will see something far from reality,” Sherman said.

“They can expect haze, a kind of collage and mash-up,” she said. “And it’s weird.”

“A final decision by the panel on legislation to reduce deficit is still a few weeks off, and given the political difficulties involved, there is no certainty that the six Republicans and six Democrats will be able to agree.”

“This is the same number that was in the president’s budget, the same number that — that they — I don’t know that they found any Democrat in the House and Senate to vote for.”

“I don’t think it’s a reasonable number,” he said. Boehner also chided Democrats for recommending $50 billion in savings from Medicare over the next decade, well below what Republicans are seeking.

“Let’s understand over the next 10 years, we’re going to spend $10 trillion in Medicare. I just think there’s a lot more room there to help find common ground,” he said.

At the same time, Boehner emphasized, “I am committed to getting to an outcome” that clears passage in the Senate to vote for.

In all, the changes would reduce deficits by an estimated $200 billion over a decade, a fraction of the committee’s minimum goal of $1.2 trillion in savings.

A final decision by the panel on legislation to reduce deficit is still a few weeks off, and given the political difficulties involved, there is no certainty that the six Republicans and six Democrats will be able to agree.

The two sides announced earlier this week, and each side swiftly found fault with the others’ proposals.

“As audiences will enjoy the play because they will see something far from reality,” Sherman said.

“They can expect haze, a kind of collage and mash-up,” she said. “And it’s weird.”

Dems will not sign on as supporter

Speaker Boehner, R-Ohio, noting that he was speaking for a majority of Democrats on the panel — and tacit confirmation that at least two of the party’s members had not signed on as supporters.

While the Republican and Democratic panel members remain far apart on budget plans, the relatively few items in common was a potentially controversial recommendation to change the calculation for annual cost-of-living increases in federal programs as well as the year-to-year adjustments in income-tax brackets.

“I don’t think it’s a reasonable number,” he said. Boehner also chided Democrats for recommending $50 billion in savings from Medicare over the next decade, well below what Republicans are seeking.

“Let’s understand over the next 10 years, we’re going to spend $10 trillion in Medicare. I just think there’s a lot more room there to help find common ground,” he said.

At the same time, Boehner emphasized, “I am committed to getting to an outcome” that clears passage in the Senate to vote for.

In all, the changes would reduce deficits by an estimated $200 billion over a decade, a fraction of the committee’s minimum goal of $1.2 trillion in savings.

A final decision by the panel on legislation to reduce deficit is still a few weeks off, and given the political difficulties involved, there is no certainty that the six Republicans and six Democrats will be able to agree.

The two sides announced earlier this week, and each side swiftly found fault with the others’ proposals.

“As audiences will enjoy the play because they will see something far from reality,” Sherman said.

“They can expect haze, a kind of collage and mash-up,” she said. “And it’s weird.”

Dems will not sign on as supporter

Speaker Boehner, R-Ohio, noting that he was speaking for a majority of Democrats on the panel — and tacit confirmation that at least two of the party’s members had not signed on as supporters.

While the Republican and Democratic panel members remain far apart on budget plans, the relatively few items in common was a potentially controversial recommendation to change the calculation for annual cost-of-living increases in federal programs as well as the year-to-year adjustments in income-tax brackets.

“I don’t think it’s a reasonable number,” he said. Boehner also chided Democrats for recommending $50 billion in savings from Medicare over the next decade, well below what Republicans are seeking.

“Let’s understand over the next 10 years, we’re going to spend $10 trillion in Medicare. I just think there’s a lot more room there to help find common ground,” he said.

At the same time, Boehner emphasized, “I am committed to getting to an outcome” that clears passage in the Senate to vote for.

In all, the changes would reduce deficits by an estimated $200 billion over a decade, a fraction of the committee’s minimum goal of $1.2 trillion in savings.

A final decision by the panel on legislation to reduce deficit is still a few weeks off, and given the political difficulties involved, there is no certainty that the six Republicans and six Democrats will be able to agree.

The two sides announced earlier this week, and each side swiftly found fault with the others’ proposals.

“As audiences will enjoy the play because they will see something far from reality,” Sherman said.

“They can expect haze, a kind of collage and mash-up,” she said. “And it’s weird.”

Dems will not sign on as supporter

Speaker Boehner, R-Ohio, noting that he was speaking for a majority of Democrats on the panel — and tacit confirmation that at least two of the party’s members had not signed on as supporters.

While the Republican and Democratic panel members remain far apart on budget plans, the relatively few items in common was a potentially controversial recommendation to change the calculation for annual cost-of-living increases in federal programs as well as the year-to-year adjustments in income-tax brackets.
By DORA GROTE
dora-grote@uiowa.edu

CEDAR FALLS — Health-care issues such as potential budget cuts have prompted University of Iowa officials to create the UI Health Care Board of Advisers, officials said.

“The national issues on the health-care front are likely to or could affect the university,” said UI President Sally Mason. “It is simply our way of getting more information on some of the tough issues.”

The state Board of Regents unanimously approved a UI request to establish the Health Care Advisory Board on Thursday.

The board will advise Mason and the UI Vice President for Medical Affairs Jean Robillard on performance improvement, policy issues, and planning activities.

“UI Health Care is a highly complex and a diverse organization,” Mason said. “[The board] would be the occasional need to have outside eyes.”

Mason said the new board would only advise, the regents having the final say.

“The key here is that the structure is already set up to be advisory,” said UI spokesman Tom Moore. “The authority to govern the University Hospitals and Clinics still lies with the Board of Regents.”

Mason said that on the 13-member board, seven people will be from within the university and six from positions outside the UI.

Regent President Craig Lange appointed Regents Robert Downer and Nicole Carroll to the board.

“The individuals on the board are high, well-known, well-respected, and well thought of,” Lange said.

There will be a minimum of five subcommittees focusing on specific elements of UI Health Care including finance and strategy, audit and compliance, quality, safety and service, human resources, and workforce development.

Moore said the advisory board would keep the president fully informed with the changes in health care, and would bring in other angles to help with health-care issues.

Regent Katie Mulholland agreed the new board will be helpful.

“I think this would be a wonderful committee,” she said. “Make it really public and open.”

Mason said it is common among hospitals similar to the UI’s to have an advisory board.
Rodham Clinton blasts Haqqani

By DONNA CASSATA

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said bluntly Thursday that U.S. officials are "faced with a dilemma." She described how the attempt at a peace deal with Pakistan is "frustrating" and "utterly futile.

"This was done in part because I think the Pakistans hope to be able to move the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee.

She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.

General John Allen, commander of NATO's International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan, said Thursday that U.S. outposts are interested in Peace talks with the Taliban.

"The Obama administration has reached a point," Allen said, "where we are asking Pakistan to do more in the fight against the Haqqani network or a little bit of both?"

By the time she was done, Pakistan "moved the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee. She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.

"It's both," Rodham Clinton said bluntly Thursday that U.S. officials are "faced with a dilemma." She described how the attempt at a peace deal with Pakistan is "frustrating" and "utterly futile.

"This was done in part because I think the Pakistans hope to be able to move the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee. She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.

"It's both," Rodham Clinton said bluntly Thursday that U.S. officials are "faced with a dilemma." She described how the attempt at a peace deal with Pakistan is "frustrating" and "utterly futile.

"This was done in part because I think the Pakistans hope to be able to move the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee. She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.

"It's both," Rodham Clinton said bluntly Thursday that U.S. officials are "faced with a dilemma." She described how the attempt at a peace deal with Pakistan is "frustrating" and "utterly futile.

"This was done in part because I think the Pakistans hope to be able to move the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee. She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.

"It's both," Rodham Clinton said bluntly Thursday that U.S. officials are "faced with a dilemma." She described how the attempt at a peace deal with Pakistan is "frustrating" and "utterly futile.

"This was done in part because I think the Pakistans hope to be able to move the Haqqani network toward some kind of peace negotiation, and the answer was an attack on our embassy," she told the committee. She said Pakistan's intelligence agency asked U.S. officials to meet with a representative of the Haqqani network. She recently met with the network, she confirmed, the summer meeting, first reported by the Associated Press.
brown depressed and thought I'd never have a life again. But I was wrong. I got help, and now I'm doing better. Everyone should be aware of this and help others who are struggling.

A professor at the University of Iowa recently conducted a study on the effects of exercise on mental health. The results showed that regular physical activity can reduce symptoms of depression and anxiety. So if you're feeling down, try taking a walk or joining a gym. It can make a big difference.

In conclusion, depression is a real problem that affects many people. But with the right support and treatment, it is possible to overcome. So if you're feeling struggling, please reach out for help. You are not alone.

The author's name is John Smith and the source is a psychology textbook. The information is based on scientific research and expert opinion.
The newest addition to the sport is the decorated football equipment. Black and Gold are used to the game, at halftime, and it took its place in the Head of the Rock in Rockford, Ill. The truck that Jeff Riggan’s family calls home has been around since 1983, when Mike Riggan’s father, Mike, bought it. He soon became obsessed with the truck beyond, and he drives it around. His family supports the Black and Gold as much as he does. "It’s a great benefit to our program," said Jeff Riggan’s son, Ryan. "[Getting off the truck] makes me feel like I and a lot of fans definitely feel like we are in a position to elongate our season." The Hawkeyes rode a five-game winning streak into its final game, including victories against then-No. 18 Indiana, No. 17 Ohio State, and No. 7 Michigan State. Ball State (3-4) may seem overmatched, but the Hawkeyes were able to knock out their season. They lost 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that," Riggan said. "We have the possibility of turning our record around." Barnett said. "We were 3-4, and we could be 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that."

Gresham said today's matchup is essential in helping the Hawkeyes prepare for the conference tournament, which begins on Nov. 15. "We have to be ready to go, that we’ve got a chance to make the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We have a target on our back, we have to show them that we’re going for it." The Hawkeyes would flip their script from last sea- son with a win against the Cardinals, Iowa finished 3-14 in 2010. "It’s really vital," Gresham said. "This Ball State game is really vital to our development, to our record, and to putting ourselves in a position to eliminate our season." The matchup elsewhere in the Big Ten this week will be crucial in terms of what seed Iowa will earn for the conferences tournament, which will start on Nov. 3 in University Park, Pennsylvania. The Hawkeyes are 11-2 field hockey team has a game scheduled today against non-conference rival for Ball State. But all eyes will be on the Big Ten championship last year and the regular-season finals. "We’ve had these back to backFileSize 13x11 flushed head coach Tracey Gresham said.

Field hockey closes regular season

By NICK SIAKARIS

Iowa (11-7) and Ball State (2-10) will face off today at 1 p.m. at the Iowa Tennis and Recreation Complex. "Ever since then, we have entered the stage of determination and really getting prepared to perform. We have to be sure we are ready before, and now the last five games have been really critical in being just as vital because there can’t be any let-downs," Riggan said. "The Hawkeyes rode a five-game winning streak into its final game, including victories against then-No. 18 Indiana, No. 17 Ohio State, and No. 7 Michigan State. Ball State (3-4) may seem overmatched, but the Hawkeyes were able to knock out their season. They lost 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that," Riggan said. "We have the possibility of turning our record around." Barnett said. "We were 3-4, and we could be 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that."

Gresham said today's matchup is essential in helping the Hawkeyes prepare for the conference tournament, which begins on Nov. 15. "We have to be ready to go, that we’ve got a chance to make the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We have a target on our back, we have to show them that we’re going for it." The Hawkeyes would flip their script from last sea- son with a win against the Cardinals, Iowa finished 3-14 in 2010. "It’s really vital," Gresham said. "This Ball State game is really vital to our development, to our record, and to putting ourselves in a position to eliminate our season." The matchup elsewhere in the Big Ten this week will be crucial in terms of what seed Iowa will earn for the conferences tournament, which will start on Nov. 3 in University Park, Pennsylvania. The Hawkeyes are 11-2 field hockey team has a game scheduled today against non-conference rival for Ball State. But all eyes will be on the Big Ten championship last year and the regular-season finals. "We’ve had these back to backFileSize 13x11 flushed head coach Tracey Gresham said.

Field hockey closes regular season

By NICK SIAKARIS

Iowa (11-7) and Ball State (2-10) will face off today at 1 p.m. at the Iowa Tennis and Recreation Complex. "Ever since then, we have entered the stage of determination and really getting prepared to perform. We have to be sure we are ready before, and now the last five games have been really critical in being just as vital because there can’t be any let-downs," Riggan said. "The Hawkeyes rode a five-game winning streak into its final game, including victories against then-No. 18 Indiana, No. 17 Ohio State, and No. 7 Michigan State. Ball State (3-4) may seem overmatched, but the Hawkeyes were able to knock out their season. They lost 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that," Riggan said. "We have the possibility of turning our record around." Barnett said. "We were 3-4, and we could be 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that."

Gresham said today's matchup is essential in helping the Hawkeyes prepare for the conference tournament, which begins on Nov. 15. "We have to be ready to go, that we’ve got a chance to make the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We have a target on our back, we have to show them that we’re going for it." The Hawkeyes would flip their script from last sea-son with a win against the Cardinals, Iowa finished 3-14 in 2010. "It’s really vital," Gresham said. "This Ball State game is really vital to our development, to our record, and to putting ourselves in a position to eliminate our season." The matchup elsewhere in the Big Ten this week will be crucial in terms of what seed Iowa will earn for the conferences tournament, which will start on Nov. 3 in University Park, Pennsylvania. The Hawkeyes are 11-2 field hockey team has a game scheduled today against non-conference rival for Ball State. But all eyes will be on the Big Ten championship last year and the regular-season finals. "We’ve had these back to backFileSize 13x11 flushed head coach Tracey Gresham said.

Field hockey closes regular season

By NICK SIAKARIS

Iowa (11-7) and Ball State (2-10) will face off today at 1 p.m. at the Iowa Tennis and Recreation Complex. "Ever since then, we have entered the stage of determination and really getting prepared to perform. We have to be sure we are ready before, and now the last five games have been really critical in being just as vital because there can’t be any let-downs," Riggan said. "The Hawkeyes rode a five-game winning streak into its final game, including victories against then-No. 18 Indiana, No. 17 Ohio State, and No. 7 Michigan State. Ball State (3-4) may seem overmatched, but the Hawkeyes were able to knock out their season. They lost 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that," Riggan said. "We have the possibility of turning our record around." Barnett said. "We were 3-4, and we could be 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that."

Gresham said today's matchup is essential in helping the Hawkeyes prepare for the conference tournament, which begins on Nov. 15. "We have to be ready to go, that we’ve got a chance to make the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We have a target on our back, we have to show them that we’re going for it." The Hawkeyes would flip their script from last sea-son with a win against the Cardinals, Iowa finished 3-14 in 2010. "It’s really vital," Gresham said. "This Ball State game is really vital to our development, to our record, and to putting ourselves in a position to eliminate our season." The matchup elsewhere in the Big Ten this week will be crucial in terms of what seed Iowa will earn for the conferences tournament, which will start on Nov. 3 in University Park, Pennsylvania. The Hawkeyes are 11-2 field hockey team has a game scheduled today against non-conference rival for Ball State. But all eyes will be on the Big Ten championship last year and the regular-season finals. "We’ve had these back to backFileSize 13x11 flushed head coach Tracey Gresham said.

Field hockey closes regular season

By NICK SIAKARIS

Iowa (11-7) and Ball State (2-10) will face off today at 1 p.m. at the Iowa Tennis and Recreation Complex. "Ever since then, we have entered the stage of determination and really getting prepared to perform. We have to be sure we are ready before, and now the last five games have been really critical in being just as vital because there can’t be any let-downs," Riggan said. "The Hawkeyes rode a five-game winning streak into its final game, including victories against then-No. 18 Indiana, No. 17 Ohio State, and No. 7 Michigan State. Ball State (3-4) may seem overmatched, but the Hawkeyes were able to knock out their season. They lost 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that," Riggan said. "We have the possibility of turning our record around." Barnett said. "We were 3-4, and we could be 14-3, that would be pretty incredible if we could do that."

Gresham said today's matchup is essential in helping the Hawkeyes prepare for the conference tournament, which begins on Nov. 15. "We have to be ready to go, that we’ve got a chance to make the NCAA Tournament," he said. "We have a target on our back, we have to show them that we’re going for it." The Hawkeyes would flip their script from last sea-son with a win against the Cardinals, Iowa finished 3-14 in 2010. "It’s really vital," Gresham said. "This Ball State game is really vital to our development, to our record, and to putting ourselves in a position to eliminate our season." The matchup elsewhere in the Big Ten this week will be crucial in terms of what seed Iowa will earn for the conferences tournament, which will start on Nov. 3 in University Park, Pennsylvania. The Hawkeyes are 11-2 field hockey team has a game scheduled today against non-conference rival for Ball State. But all eyes will be on the Big Ten championship last year and the regular-season finals. "We’ve had these back to backFileSize 13x11 flushed head coach Tracey Gresham said.
HELP WANTED

NOW HIRING

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS
Call the Classified Department at (319) 335-5785.

HELP WANTED

NOW HIRING

REM Senior Community Services

ASSISTANT MANAGER

Must have a strong interest in helping older adults. Must have a valid driver’s license and a good driving record. Must be able to lift 50 pounds. Must have 2-3 years of related work. Salary range: $12-15 per hour.

RENTAL RE辟S

www.midwestone.com

ASSISTANT Property Manager

Salary: $35,000

COMMUNITY HOMECARE

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

Home Health Aide

For an application, EOE.

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

Check www.midwestone.com for current opening.

HELP WANTED

COMMUNITY HOMECARE

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

LTC HOME HEALTH HILAIRE

REWARDING, PROFESSIONAL

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

HOME HEALTH AIDE

For an application, EOE.

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

Home Health Aide

For an application, EOE.

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

HOME HEALTH AIDE

For an application, EOE.

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

HOME HEALTH AIDE

For an application, EOE.

DAILY IOWAN CLASSIFIEDS

HOME HEALTH AIDE

For an application, EOE.
The Riggins will break in the fifth in a series of semis they have used to transport Iowa's football equipment for 26 years.

By RYAN MURPHY
ryan-e-murphy@uiowa.edu

One of the host men’s tennis fall seasons in recent memory is coming to an end, and the Hawkeyes now have an opportunity never before given to an Iowa tennis team.

The event, which will begin today at 9 a.m. and run through Oct. 31, will be held at the Hawkeye Tennis & Recreation Center.

Iowa head coach Steve Houghton, in his 31st year at the helm of the Hawk- eye men’s tennis team, said getting to stay home — the A flight is made up of 64 players placed in the top two teams — will give the Hawkeyes a chance to close out a successful fall season in front of a home crowd.

“We want to end [the fall season] on a good note, and where the team and the university that has to do the traveling — the guys are tired of traveling,” he said. “For once, it’s not going to be a road trip; the guys are excited about the opportunity to play in front of a home crowd.

“We’re going to have some good opponents, and hopefully, we’ll get a lot of fans there,” he said. “It will be a great way to end my career in the fall.”

Senior Chris Speir, who has a full singles record of 10-2, and the atmosphere will give the Hawkeyes a chance to make a state- ment.

“We want to end [the fall season] on a good note, and where the team and the university that are capable of doing a good job out here,” he said.

Doubles play will be held today; the A Flight is made up of 16 teams, led by Indi- ana’s Stephen Vagl and Josh MacTaggart, ranked 25th in the nation. Singles matches will take place Saturday through Oct. 31, with 64 players placed in the A Flight. The top seed is MacTaggart, the nation’s No. 55 player and the reigning Big Ten Player of the Week. Vagl and Marc Brucha are seeded third, and Vagl is seeded 15th.

Nebraska and defending conference champion Ohio State will not participate — Houghton didn’t say why — but players from each of the Big Ten teams will play.

All 13 healthy Iowa players will have an opportunity to play in a sin- gle-competition performance. The last Iowa player to win the sin- gle-competition title at the conference indoor event was Christian Burnich, who claimed the title in 2008.

Houghton pointed at his team, which he said has “a lot of fans out there,” and the atmosphere will give the Hawkeyes a chance to make a state- ment.

“We want to end [the fall season] on a good note, and where the team and the university that are capable of doing a good job out here,” he said.

Doubles play will be held today; the A Flight is made up of 16 teams, led by Indi- ana’s Stephen Vagl and Josh MacTaggart, ranked 25th in the nation. Singles matches will take place Saturday through Oct. 31, with 64 players placed in the A Flight. The top seed is MacTaggart, the nation’s No. 55 player and the reigning Big Ten Player of the Year.

By RYAN MURPHY
ryan-e-murphy@uiowa.edu

The Riggins will break in the fifth in a series of semis they have used to transport Iowa’s football equipment for 26 years.

Hawks say they’re confident they can shut down Michigan State as they progress in their development.

By TORK MASON
tork-mason@uiowa.edu

Hawks say they’re confident they can shut down Michigan State as they progress in their development.