UI Orientation Services continued its attempt to significantly cut down on the amount of paper used during orientation. Students also received a ZCard — a smaller, yet closer key to life on campus. Sexton said the USB has information stored on it that links to the new first-year orientation online experience website. The USB choice is an attempt to significantly cut down on the amount of paper used during orientation.

Sexton said students received a streamlined packet of information and a rubber US Bank benefit rather than a hard copy of the Black and Gold Handbook.

City moves against fire

The fire has consumed approximately 150,000 gallons of oil-based runoff.

The Iowa City Fire Department and the city are working diligently to extinguish the fire, officials said, and hope to have it under control by the next morning.

"The process to knock it all back up to the surface area is well underway," said Iowa City Fire Administrative assistant Adam Meloney, and each shift will be approximately 12 hours. "We’re mindful of the safety and the process of the wind." Meloney said the operation started late Thursday and a team consisting of one officer and three firefighters from the 11th and 15th Districts will be on the scene until around 2 a.m., when they’ll begin the process of extinguishing the fire. Meloney said the operation started late Thursday and a team consisting of one officer and three firefighters from the 11th and 15th Districts will be on the scene until around 2 a.m., when they’ll begin the process of extinguishing the fire.

One University of Iowa official said the standardization of procedures and letters would ultimately lead to more confident officers. "When we get into a one-on-one form the 11th and 15th Districts, the fire officials have a detailed and personalized understanding of the process," said Battalion Chief Greg Jones. "Since the fire broke out, fire officials have had at least one person on one side of the fire or the other. "We’re there for a variety of reasons, not just for public safety," Jones said. The Iowa City Fire Department is working to contain the fire, and the department has been working to make sure the crew is safe. More than 1,000 undergraduate students at the UI received loans during the 2010-11 academic year. This is the largest number of students who have received loans in the past decade. A proposed new bill in Congress would allow students to create a universal financial aid award letter, but some experts say too much paperwork could undermine the effectiveness of the awards. According to the University of Iowa, the award letter would allow students to understand how the award letter is calculated and what it means for them. Experts say the letter should be easy to understand and provide a variety of financial aid options.

"We’re committed to this," UI Financial Aid Office officials annually review and evaluate student and parent feedback on award notices and make changes accordingly. Officials from the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators have released a set of recommendations in response to the letter, and they are making suggestions to Congress to improve the process before moving forward. (Association) members had come up with over-the-counter standardization of award letters. The members would like to see a standardization of award letters, but the members have said they are not prepared to discuss a variety of financial aid options.

“I actually really liked the Orientation,” said Michael Robinson, and incoming student from Cary, Ill. “I think they kept everybody hands-on with what we were doing.”

Michael Barron, the director of UI Admissions, said the class of 2016 will have roughly 4,500 students. Between 80 and 85 percent of students are expected to be in-state, 45 percent out-of-state, and 9 percent from foreign countries.

“The numbers will fluctuate throughout the summer due to changing student circumstances,” he wrote in an email. “… [but] this is very similar to last year’s entering class.”

Hawkeye guides led students around campus during Explore Iowa, and several said they enjoyed sharing the students’ enthusiasm.

“My favorite part is watching the first-year Hawkeyes guide all of the adenalin and craziness,” said Hanna Wright, a returning Hawkeye guide. “It’s a fun dynamic to see, and the students are really excited.”

Alaa Elsheikh returned for her second year as a Hawkeye guide as an inside greeter.

“I got to separate the parents from the students for the program,” she said. “There was some anxiety, and some parents cried, but overall, it was great.”

Both Edwards, who accompanied her daughter Kelly to Orientation, said she found the program informative and enjoyable.

“I think it’s been a fabulous experience,” she said. “She is one of my first to go, so it has been a great opportunity.”

Art in State Building Program may go

With talk of tuition hikes and funding leveling off, Iowans and unprecedented budgets, the University of Northern Iowa, the Iowa Board of Regents, and the state Board of Regents’s university presidents are spending their money wisely. It will be spent on upcoming artwork in three newly constructed state building projects.

However, because of allowable limits under the State Board of Regents’ program, the budget for artwork cannot exceed $1 million, must be arranged with the Opinions editor at least three days prior to publication, and may be edited for length and style.

They may be edited for length and style.

The Arts Program was established by the Iowa Legislature to provide funding for fine and performing arts projects, according to the Operations Manual for University of Iowa regent properties.

The purpose of the program is to provide opportunities for fine and performing arts in newly constructed building projects.

The program is designed to foster a greater appreciation of the fine and performing arts, to provide opportunities for students and the public to experience the arts, and to provide opportunities for students to engage in creative expression and critical thinking.

Chill, motorists

BISODELID

Hot air vs. cold air

As someone who believes that reasonable people can avoid legislation through honest negotiations, I would make a great representative. For example, that I must file a lawsuit against the University of Iowa and the state Board of Regents.

My intent is to bring about a campaign of awareness that the university and the state Board of Regents must consider the need for a more reasonable approach to their budget decisions.

This issue stems from the fact that the university and the state Board of Regents have spent a considerable amount of money on student fees in recent months.

I am not making an argument for or against a rule change, but in the UI student government's current fee structure, I would like to see a reduction.

The fee structure is not only an issue that affects student tuitions, but it also affects the quality of education that students receive.

In conclusion, I believe that it is important for the university and the state Board of Regents to consider the implications of their fee structure and to work towards a more reasonable approach to their budget decisions.

Why I am suing the UI: To protect my son's health

As a parent, I have a responsibility to protect my child's health and well-being. In this case, I am taking legal action against the University of Iowa (UI) because I believe that the university is not taking adequate steps to protect the health of its students.

UI's State Board of Regents' system has failed

I am demanding a regents' hearing because UI's state Board of Regents' system has failed to protect the health of UI's students.

I have been a parent for many years and I know what it is like to have a child with a life-threatening health condition. I want to ensure that UI's students are given the same level of care and protection.

The Iowa soccer staff created an environment in which the current players and recruits could give guidance to future athletes such as Ksil, who was one of the many who wish to someday play for the Hawkeyes. Many of the campers have come back to the UI camp old and new, not only for the summer sessions but also for the winter, collecting knowledge, T-shirts, and black and yellow soccer balls.

The Iowa City West Trojans use an offensive burst in the fifth inning to defeat Linn-Mar in game one on Monday.

By VICTORIA KIPP
victoria-kipp@uiowa.edu

The Iowa City West High and the Linn-Mar Lions went head-to-head Monday, with the Trojans coming out on top with a score of 2-1. The key to the Trojans’ success was a combination of individual work in the batter’s box and teamwork on defense.

The Trojans (10-2) ended the game with 5 hits, Linn-Mar had 4. The Trojans had a batting average of .280 and committed no errors. The Lions committed two in the fifth that contributed to the loss.

Although the Trojans won the game, it did not come without a fight. The teams were evenly matched throughout the game. West didn’t pull ahead until the fifth inning.

The Trojans played strong defense. West left fielder Nick Grimmer caught three fly-ball outs, which helped to keep the Lions from knocking in any more runs. Offense, even with Shelly throwing so many strikes and sending several back to the dugout. In the end, the pitcher’s strike count started to drop and the Trojan players were able to capitalize on the fatigue to win.
