Knight moves in the library

The universities involved will link their labs in order to share research on brain injuries and concussions.

By Anna Egeland
anna-egeland@uiowa.edu

Barbara Meurk Allen, executive director of the Brain Injury Association of Iowa, said it is important to understand the effects of repetitive mild injuries to the brain.

"After a mild brain injury, the brain is vulnerable … it needs time, sometimes days, sometimes weeks, to recover," he said.

Each year, more than 3.8 million sport- and recreation-related concussions occur in the United States, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Lauer said this translates into more than 75,000 sport- and recreation-related concussions in Iowa annually.

"We have a lot of common values, so [the partnership] made a lot of sense," Kenny said. "Since concussions research is important because protecting the health of student-athletes is important for the university and athletic department, this was a way to bring the two together."
Donation aids MS battle

Iowa Eagles donated more than $144,000 to the University of Iowa Hospitals & Clinics in the fight against multiple sclerosis.

BY JOE HETTICH

The Iowa Eagles give $144,000 to UIHC in battle against multiple sclerosis.

The Iowa Eagles gave more than $144,000 to the University of Iowa Hospitals & Clinics in the battle against multiple sclerosis.

The award was the result of a nationwide campaign called "Cancer Warrior: Fight for Tomorrow," in which the Eagles were named one of the top fundraising teams.

The campaign, which ran from October to December, aimed to raise money for cancer research.

The Eagles' donation was made in honor of their former head coach, who died of cancer earlier this year.

"It's a great honor to be able to make this donation to help those who are affected by cancer," said Eagles head coach Tom Staley. "We're grateful for the support of our fans and our community."
Brown has not been arrested, and his whereabouts were unknown when police called, he may have fled to avoid arrest.

The reported shooting occurred at about 12:06 a.m. Thursday on the 2400 block of North Street. Officers found Lindsey lying in the middle of the road near a gunshot wound. He was transported to the University of Iowa Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

The UI released a Hawk Alert at around 3:00 a.m. on June 21 alerting students of the shooting, stating “the shooting occurred in the area of Moline and Morris Ave. Responding officers are look- ing for armed subject. If you see any area, remain indoors, don’t contact sus- picious people, do not follow the gunman and said it sounded like he came from one area.”

The Iowa City Police, University Heights police, North Liberty police, Coralville Police, the State Patrol, and the Johnson County Sheriff’s Office were all on scene the night of the shooting.

Approximately half a block of Pentz Place was taped off by police. According to an Iowa City police release, Brown was identified in a photo lineup as the shooter. He is said to be white, average build, 5 feet 10 inches, with blond hair and blue eyes. Police are seeking the public’s help in apprehending Brown.

The UI administration and students are behind us to do the right thing,” he said. The UI isn’t the only col-

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Monday, June 25, 2012 -

Coral West Heath Center
2769 Heartland Drive, Suite 205
Coralville, IA 52241

For an appointment, call 319-887-2900

Michael Gonzadoz, MD
Carol Ann Ten, MD

Dr. Michael Gonzadoz and Carol Ann Ten are experienced, board certified internal medicine physicians. They specialize in internal medicine for both men and women of all ages and older for individuals living with chronic disease.

For more information, visit www.mercycitywest.com

Meet Our Physicians

Mercy Internal Medicine
2769 Heartland Drive, Suite 205
Coral West Heath Center
Coralville, IA 52241

Getting Iowa City news straight to your phone
Scan this code and press “send.” Or txt “follow thedailyiowan” to 40404.

Fatal shooting

3:30 a.m. June 21, Iowa City
Police officers responded to reported shooting

12:36 a.m. June 21, University of Iowa release

1 a.m. University of Iowa release

Approximately 5:56 p.m. June 21, arrest obtained by Brazilian Brown

Hawk Alert

Warrant for Brown, who has been charged with first-degree murder, was issued as of Sunday afternoon.

Brown is described as a black male, 5’10”-5’11”, medium build, black hair and blue eyes. However, his current address is unknown. Brown has previous addresses in Iowa City, Calumet City, Ill., and Har-

As of Sunday evening, the UI has been charged with a warrant for Brown, who has been charged with first-degree murder, was issued as of Sunday afternoon.

Brown is described as a black male, 5’10”-5’11”, medium build, black hair and blue eyes. However, his current address is unknown. Brown has previous addresses in Iowa City, Calumet City, Ill., and Har-
Iowa's Department of Natural Resources, which has played a key role leading the state to this point, is run by Jack Williams, whose office was located in Des Moines since 1937. It started with a modest budget of $15,000 per year and ended up spending $150 million on state parks and forests. In 1948, the Iowa Department of Natural Resources was created to take over the responsibilities of the previous agencies. The department has been responsible for managing state parks, forests, and wildlife resources, as well as enforcement of laws related to hunting, fishing, and other outdoor activities. The department has also played a role in the conservation of wetlands and the protection of endangered species. Today, the Iowa Department of Natural Resources is one of the largest state agencies in the country, with a budget of over $600 million and a workforce of over 2,000 employees.
SPORTS

From Woodbury's strong game in the paint. Oglesby had an impressive game going 6-of-9 from 3-point range. The Eagles were able to score 20 points on the game and flashed 8 assists.

McCabe finished with a double-double of his own for Lancers' team, scoring 22 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

Most impressive, however, was McCabe's 3-pointer to seal the win. Just over four minutes remained, and Vinton/Gatens was making a run. But McCabe stopped a potentially bad play and turned it into a good one. "We almost had a turnover, so I took it, McCabe said. "And I don't think he even got us at the end of the game." McCabe, on his left hand, was the game changer. Led by Hawkeyes Aaron White and Eric May, Culver's could not keep up with McCabe's performance alone.

White played well and the Hawkeyes' starting five finished with 22 points, 7 rebounds and 3 assists. The Black and Gold star struggled at times to find his shot, however. With one second left to play, McCabe stopped a potential game-tying shot, however. "We didn't get stops, and we beat up on the glass," White said. "We also didn't have an answer for McCabe, hopefully we can come back next Sunday and put a win on it."
If you look hard enough, you will find ways to improve your surroundings and your relationships. The more you do to enhance your surroundings, the better you will feel about your life and the more motivated you will become.

Skills on My Resume (So Far):
- Click-punching
- Minute-counting
- Crossword answering
- Donor tracking
- Emailing despite inner despair
- Indulgence-suffering
- Cheatings
- Copying with tattoos
- Performing respiratory mental exercise
- Crop-stilling
- Manipulating the memory of personal opinions
- Jargons-spewing
- "Understanding"
- Self-taking
- Name subdivisions
- Eating lunch for exactly 29 minutes
- Postured-setting sitting against being thought of as uninterested
- Fiercely about inane and/or gory topics
- (a.k.a. Being younger than normal)
- Maintaining the secrecy of my mind
- Eating lunch for exactly 29 minutes
- Fielding questions regarding my appearance
- Awareness of standard computers and the internet
- A computer science major
- Silent-screening
- Faced-positivity
- Dry-crying
- Escape-plaguing
- Participating in half-hour-long small talk
- Fantomising

- Not bragging.

---

The Iowa Daily

For home delivery, phone 335-5783

---

HUNGRY?
Check out the Daily Iowan Dining Guide only at dailyiowan.com

---

SUBMIT AN EVENT
Want to see your special event included? Email dailyiowan.com/des Moines@dailyiowan.com. Include the following information: time and date, location, contact phone number, details of the event, and a link to a website if available.

---

HUNGRY?
Check out the Daily Iowan Dining Guide only at dailyiowan.com

---

PRIDE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Mill Ryan (right) applies lipstick to niece Breana Ryan as they wait for the start of San Francisco University of San Francisco Pride Parade on Sunday, San Francisco Pride. Celebration kicked off high noon Sunday, when the streets of Somewhere became a parade route. Grand marshal was me 200 floats, vehicles, and groups of marchers took part in the parade. (Associated Press/Noah Berger)
Basabe and Cole lead their Prime Time League team to a victory on Sunday, scoring a combined 60 points.

COMMENTARY

Euro soccer remains a Luddite

A missed call in the Euro 2012 tournament makes it even clearer that soccer should use video-review technology at the goal line.

---

By NIKITA RUP

The Euro 2012 tournament is a footballing achievement of epic proportions, but the controversial video-review technology at the goal line has once again raised doubts about the integrity of the sport. The missed call in the Euro 2012 tournament has exposed the limitations of the current system, highlighting the need for improved technology to ensure fair play. The importance of video review in soccer cannot be overstated, as it helps to eliminate subjective decisions and ensure that the correct decisions are made on the pitch. As technology continues to advance, it is time for soccer to embrace the potential of video review and ensure that the sport remains a fair and level playing field for all players.

---

Woddy, woodbury controls the paint

Incoming Hawkeye Adam Woodbury's rebounding thwarted future teammate Aaron White in Sunday's Prime Time League action by CARLOS SOTO

Rebounding is vital to having a strong defense and a potent offense. Incoming Hawkeye freshman Adam Woodbury showed flashes of his rebounding dominance when he secured his Prime Time League team to a win on Sunday.

Woodbury started active the whole game for Vinton/Guthrie. He finished the game with a double-double and also led head coach Randy Larson's team in rebounding.

"I just have to keep going after them (rebounds)," Woodbury said. "I have to keep rebounding and staying active. If you don't, that's one rebound you might miss and cost you the game."

"Sunday showed why Woodbury is going to be crucial to Iowa's success in the coming season. His ability to rebound on the offensive end and grab balls has both earned second-chance opportunities at the net. The 6-11 center is expected to make an impact in the Big Ten."

"He has a great presence," Josh Oglesby said. "He's big, so other teams have to respect him. He's in there to affect the game defensively, grab rebounds, and affect people up and down the court."

Woodbury is a presence in the paint and forces players to think twice when they go up for a jam. It makes Woodbury a force to be reckoned with in the Big Ten.

"I'm a big guy, so other people can't just grab me. I have to throw it up for me," Zach McCabe said. "He also doesn't look for his shot, he looks for other people."

Both McCabe and Oglesby benefited from Woodbury's rebounding skills, leading to a victory for the Hawkeyes in their Prime Time League action.

---

Prime Time heats up

Former Hawkeye basketball player Bryce Cartwright now plays hoops with Chris Brown, John Wall, and Metta World Peace.

By TAYLOR AXELSON

Bryce Cartwright isn’t wearing No. 24 this summer. His jersey is no longer black and gold.

He left Carver-Hawkeye Arena for a high-school gym near his home town in Compton, Calif.

He was invited to play in the Drew League, a summer league similar to Iowa’s Prime Time in the Los Angeles area.

Cartwright’s team is the Money Gang. His teammates and his opponents are bigger, better, and known worldwide.

"Dudley [Delrayan, Toronto Raptor player] and I used to play together when we were young," Cartwright said. "Paul George [Indiana Pacers] and I played together at Fresno State my first year, and I also knew Carmelo [the ripper]. They asked me to come play.

The Drew League was founded in 1973 with six teams, by 1995, it had grown to 10 teams. The league now has 20 teams by invitation only because of the popularity and recognition that certain players possess.

"The Drew League provides us safe, fun, and free venue for the community in South Central Los Angeles to view all-level basketball and entertainment," Don Smiley, the league’s commissioner, wrote in an email.

"For many in the community (especially kids), the Drew League is the only opportunity for them to see and mingle up close and personal with top NBA and college basketball athletes and entertainers every weekend."

The games are played at King Drew High in Los Angeles. Admission is free, so the gym is packed to capacity. For those who don’t get into the stands, there are places on the sidelines. Hundred of people wait outside every game waiting to get in.

The 2 p.m. games, during which Cartwright plays every week, are the most packed because of the players who run the court at that time. John Wall, Chuck Brown, Game, and Metta World Peace have all made appearances. Game brings in different people every weekend to draw the crowd.

"Playing in a high-school gym is a good experience, but it’s the same old game. Fans would get paid, too," Cartwright said. "The competition is better because I’m playing against NBA players. They’re good to play against people of your caliber or better."

Cartwright played for the Black and Gold from 2010-2012, averaging 8.4 points per game over the two seasons. He led the team in assists, dishing out 162 and 154 in the two-seas

---

artwright back home

The three-time guard Bryce Cartwright leaves the team after the victory over Minnesota in Carver-Hawkeye Arena on Feb. 12. Cartwright is now playing for the Drew League in West Los Angeles. (The Daily Iowan/Adam Wesley)

SPEARFISH

WODDIN

---

ARTWRIGHT

---

THE DAILY IOWAN