Still going, 40 years later

Four of O'Brien's five siblings have worked at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

By ART SNOSIMON

Nancy O'Brien still remembers the old glory of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics in the 1970s. The nurses - it's hard to forget the nurses - were very much a part of the organization.

"It was a time when we all felt like we were making a difference," she said. "The nurses were very important and that was a time when we all felt like we were making a difference."}

Nancy O'Brien has been named the Iowa Nurses Union's Mary F. Gotsch Award recipient for 2019. O'Brien works in the Emergency Department at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Nancy O'Brien's family also includes her husband, Dr. Joseph O'Brien, who is a neurologist at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. The couple have four children, all of whom are physicians or nurses.

"It was a time when we all felt like we were making a difference," she said. "The nurses were very important and that was a time when we all felt like we were making a difference."
One, now the fourth-largest bank in the state of Iowa, for President and CEO Charlie Funk, it was an opportunity to share that success.

"We decided that the more we succeed, the more we will give back to the community," he said. "We give money to a lot of organizations, but after our record year in 2013, we wanted to do something meaningful that would have the largest impact on the community." As its first MidWestOne Community Impact Grant, the program was announced.

"Because we don't teach criminology or law enforcement," Ussery said. The program awards carry registration papers at all costs.

"We would like similar laws in Iowa," said Robert Ussery, state director of the Iowa Immigration Coalition. "We are disappointed the Supreme Court allowed for ethnic profiling by requiring officers to carry registration papers at all costs."

"What it will probably mean is other states will need to work together. There will be some other provisions that will want to parallel things in Arizona or similar," he said. "The court decision has been made." Ussery also spoke about the lack of enforcement immigration laws have.

"We can only choose from the top 10, and we have 20 people on the list," he said. "The civil-service list, which has not been updated in more than a year, will still be reviewed to make sure the qualified candidates who are available for hiring are chosen.

"You can't just hire any vet," Pulkrabek said. "Not all of them do [is] very creative," she said. "Our local law-enforcement officers play a vital role in keeping out criminals safe," he said in the release. "The men and women on those police forces are hands-on, dedicated professionals who serve to improve our communities and help make Johnson County a great place to live and raise a family."
Cinema a step in right direction

For the University of Iowa students who prefer drinking as their main activity, one of their biggest concerns is where to go. Downtown Iowa City offers more than enough places to fulfill that desire. However, the community doesn’t have as many even entertainment options that aren’t focused on beer and liquor. While there are many bars downtown, there are only a couple of places that can satisfy those who aren’t happy with doing nothing but binge drinking on weekend nights. The cinema will bring a chance to introduce FilmScene’s new theater to a place that is perfect to introduce FilmScene’s new theater to downtown’s existing arts and cultural landscape.”

The city’s decision on the new cinema gave people exactly what they wanted and asked for.

In a recent downtown market assessment — conducted by DuPage Real Estate Inc., on behalf of the city and the UI – a movie theater was the top choice by respondents when asked what they desired downtown.

The new cinema will feature mostly independent films, as well as foreign films and documentaries — time that hasn’t been easily accessible here recently.

It’s an independent film house won’t exactly be your Abraham Lincoln jumping around trains slinging a steel-tipped ax (awesome), or the legend of Thor teaming up with Iron Man to stave off an alien invasion (even better!) — but the theater is a different option.

It’s an option other than drinking that, quite honestly, Iowa City doesn’t have right now. We must ensure, there’s the old game of Buck on second-fourth, Daum, but for some students, there are only a couple of places that are true, the- other is the Iowa City’s nickname.

It’s a great location in the heart of Iowa City, with terrific rental options such as the Soaps, Reprise, and Reykjavik, Brodie said “Downtown also offers a variety of dining options within walking distance — FilmScene will be a vibrant addition to the downtown offerings,” Downtown clearly has enough light entertainment — but “programming is just barely enough structures to house entertainment that appeals to people who won’t drink in the downtown but do enjoy watching on weekend nights. Will Gatens get picked in draft?

YES

Matt Gatens played out his senior season in Iowa uniform, and was timely. The Hawkeyes left the NCAA tournament and Big Ten conference, and now they're in the NBA draft. What's next is a matter of speculation. Gatens left the Hawkeyes ranked sixth in the nation in scoring in 2011. However, his talent was also evident when he played for USA basketball.

No. Many writers have doubted his NBA prospects. Gatens was a part of a NCAC basketball championship team and his game is comparable to that of a top-point guard. He is a close bond with his teammates, and his determination to succeed in the sport is undeniable.

Gary Payton II, who is the most recent NBA star to leave Iowa, had a similar trajectory. He was drafted by the Memphis Grizzlies in the first round of the 2014 NBA draft. Payton II has been successful in the NBA, and his story is a testament to the potential of a下。他继续在NBA的舞台上发光发热，为他的事业注入了新的活力。

Why I Don’t Jog Shirtless:

• I train very easily, and everyone loves a shirtless man.
• I already have a daily shirtlessness check-up.
• I only jog to everyone I see calling my “Word Strength “Torch Runner” is a shirtless oaf that runs back to those awful fires.
• It’s a lot like a sailor, seven-tone version of smiling.
• For me, it’s gotta be all or nothing.
• I can’t just flounder the digipads neatly on my belly button around town without any fans. There has to be an overwhelming majority or something.
• I don’t have any important social engagements with the general public.
• It’s common for me to be seen running, making children cry.
• Shirtless jogging is an activity available to pretty much exclusively to males, and I refuse to implicitly agree.
• I have a little window in my tarp, and apparently even in non-top.
• I can’t enjoy anything that is not shirtless.
• Any fool can run around shirtless.
• I’m lazy.
• I don’t have any important social engagements at home, family, and helping others.
• I’m not interested in running.
• I’m not interested in running.
• I have a disconcerting chest hair pattern. (By “pat-...ting.”)

A meaur turnout of volleyball students at the Retirement Department’s sports camp doesn’t dampen the young athletes’ eager spirits.

By TOM GOLDBAMMER

Iowa isn’t a “volleyball state.” Especially when it comes to college and recreation programs in the sport.

But the City’s Parks and Recreation Department announced that Donnie Mitchell and Donnie Dwyer are leading a volleyball day camp for children ages 6 through 12.

This past year, 20-year-old Donnie Dwyer is the only boy currently enrolled in the program. The Iowa volleyball.

Dwyer had previously only played volleyball at school in grade classes, but he said he plans on sticking with the sport now that it’s available at his school next year. The campground keeps in mind that this may be the only chance that some of these kids of both sexes get to be exposed to volleyball.

“Most kids involved in this sport are not exactly getting kids involved at a young age or any age,” Dwyer said. “There is a lot of potential, but there is a distinct lack of recreational opportuni-

Moosher and Dwyer work to raise awareness about volleyball by building the fundamentals from scratch, while keeping the kids entertained. Each step that they take ensure that the proper techniques and form are used for each of the volleyball hits being introduced to the youngsters.

There is no Monday Night Volleyball or College Volleyball Game Day. In order for the sport to continue to fold the best talent, it is essential that the young athletes, male and female, continue to pursue camps such as Moosher and Dwyer.
