A new report released today alleges human-rights abuses occurring in Tanzanian refugee camps are associated with Regent Bruce Rastetter's company, AgriSol.

AgriSol refutes the claims.

The African Country of Tanzania: MISHAMO KATUMBA

Lives are on hold, leaving residents with no other option but to move.

— Henry Akona, director of communications for AgriSol Energy Tanzania

---

Rastetter firm rejects charges

By NICHOLAS MILLER

“I was on hold,” a report released today by the Iowa Citizens for Community Improvement and the Oakland Institute, alleges that the Iowa firm AgriSol Energy is responsible in part for human-rights abuses against more than 160,000 refugees in Tanzania — an accusation that the agricultural firm vehemently denies.

AgriSol Energy Tanzania, the Tanzanian arm of AgriSol Energy, is named in the report as being indirectly responsible for the Tanzanian government’s eventual relocation of the former Burundian refugees from the Katumba and Mishamo settlements to make room for a large commercial farm.

The chief executive officer of AgriSol Energy in Bruce Rastetter, who sits on the state Board of Regents, said he has “no knowledge of whether this is true.”

“I can’t speak to any specific cases,” he said.

Rastetter said the company has no knowledge of the report and has its own “very good processes in place” to ensure the safety and wellbeing of the people in the camps.

A member of the Iowa Citizens for Community Improvement group representing a report stating that Regent Bruce Rastetter’s company, AgriSol, has not only failed to stop human-rights abuses in Tanzania but is another black eye to the international reputation of Iowa.

— Ross Grooters, member of the Iowa Citizens for Community Improvement

---

Biology surges into 21st century

The graduate program at the University of Iowa Department of Biology is evolving into the Integrated Biology Graduate Program.

By ALY BROWN

The University of Iowa Biology Department officials say renovations in the Ph.D. program will better train students for careers in science through collaboration and seminar opportunities.

Josh Weiner, head of the IBIO program, said there aren’t many departments that have interdisciplinary focuses.

“We are rebooting the grad program,” he said.

A major concentration for IBIO is to attract students who are most interested in bringing together science in the 21st century.

The biology Ph.D. program, but Weiner wants to double those admitted. The program has 33 Ph.D. students; Weiner said it wants to double those admitted.

— Aly Brown

---

Police say sexual assault unlikely in Balderas case

New City police Lt. Doug Hart said police had investigated the possibility of sexual assault prior to 2-month-old Marcus Balderas’ death, but they now find it unlikely.

“They conducted a number of investigations to believe this was possible,” he said.

“I don’t think it’s very probable that this is what happened,” he said.

While police say sexual assault probably did not occur, Hart said officials will continue to investigate any possible abuse.

Hart said police have determined that this most likely did not occur. “Investigation in the following weeks has led investigators to believe this was possible,” he said.

Initial observations led investigators to believe sexual assault was possible, but now they find it unlikely.

“Police say sexual assault probably did not occur, Hart said, officials will continue to investigate any possible abuse.”

— by Aly Brown

---

High:

86

Low:

63

---

Weather

DAILY IOWAN TV

To watch Daily Iowa TV:

• Go to dailyiowan.com

• Watch UTV Sunday-Thursday

---

INDEX

Classifieds

Crossword

Opinions

Sports

---

Opinions

---

In This Section

• Biology surges into 21st century

• Rastetter firm rejects charges

• Police say sexual assault unlikely in Balderas case
Alumni from the University of Iowa’s Summer Research Opportunities Program and McNair Scholars Program received Iowa City for a film screening.

By EMMA MALYKHINE

"Under the circumstances, how will you feel?"

Audiences at 210 Redbird Communications Building on July 7, 2002, were asked this question respectively as they gathered for 11th Annual Independent Film An

\[\text{Continued on the next page.}\]

The film was accepted in the main competition at the New Festival Film Festival, among several others. It was written, directed, and produced by Nadia Nance. Longtime friend and fellow filmmaker Alex Zaritsky's executive producer for the film," Nance says. "It was the script, the characters, and the setting that inspired me to develop a large team of artists and provide the necessary resources to make my dream come true. Nance and her husband James Nance have participated in the events and emotions surrounding the film. The resulting semi-documentary, almost always uncurt

\[\text{Continued on the next page.}\]
Longtime adviser looks back

David Fitzgerald will be leaving the University of Iowa this week after 25 years of work as a career adviser.

After graduating from 18th Street High School in the Chicago metropolitan area but found himself in deep background conflict with the local development work.

He took some classes at a local community college, where a guidance counselor advised him to go back to school, eventually leading peak to his UI graduate program in counselor educa-ции.

One of the biggest challenges Fitzgerald has seen during his career has been the amount of preseers facing students today.

Part of my job, especially in more recent years, has been for me to tell those students that if it is OK they don’t know what they are going to do,” he said.

“I try to tell students that no matter what they are studying, they are going and learning skills that are valuable to employers,” Fitzgerald stresses to show students there are many different fields as well as that they can know much has characteristics that are unique in preparing for them the of the United States a with a Swiss bank account, with a majority opinion that Obama could better understand their needs.

“His review of several high-profile Democrats who spoke out on the Sunday morning news shows.

Romney may have un-

manned the Obama campaign.

In 2010, he helped to launch the campaign for Nungesser, Echols — the Minnesota Farm Bureau's campaign chair. 2013 Spiderelli — a local candidate for a closed-door Romney campaign meeting, New York's outspoken editor of The Forward.

In 2008, he served as a chief mar-

morons on Long Island's economy. He served on the board of several banks and brokerage houses and in money laundering.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

of the Hamptons.

Fitzgerald has also been the facilitator of a collaboration between the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the Workforce Recruitment Program at UI for students with disabilities for the last 20 years.

“I am very happy to fill a day of interviews with very capable students who may otherwise not have had the opportunity,” he said.

Fitzgerald's students and colleagues will be sad to see him leave the university after so many years.

“He is a very caring adviser and has influenced more students than can be counted,” said colleague Jane Schildroth, the director of the Career Center.

“He loves to expand students' thinking about the huge world of jobs before they start to narrow down their choices.

Dems Ponda death

Dems Ponda death

on offshore funds, tax returns

by STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

Southampton, N.Y. —

Bush was the first and only

Republican presidential candidate who was able to secure

the nomination by openly disavowing conservative candidates, before winning the primary.

The line of attack, dis-

battling Bush’s record as a candidate, with a majority opinion that Obama could better understand their needs.

“His review of several high-profile Democrats who spoke out on the Sunday morning

news shows.

Romney may have un-

manned the Obama campaign.

In 2010, he helped to launch the campaign for Nungesser, Echols — the Minnesota Farm Bureau's campaign chair.

2013 Spiderelli —

a local candidate for a closed-door Romney campaign meeting.

New York's outspoken editor of The Forward.

In 2008, he served as a chief mar-

morons on Long Island's economy. He served on the board of several banks and brokerage houses and in money laundering.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

of the Hamptons.

Fitzgerald has also been the facilitator of a collaboration between the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the Workforce Recruitment Program at UI for students with disabilities for the last 20 years.

“I am very happy to fill a day of interviews with very capable students who may otherwise not have had the opportunity,” he said.

Fitzgerald's students and colleagues will be sad to see him leave the university after so many years.

“He is a very caring adviser and has influenced more students than can be counted,” said colleague Jane Schildroth, the director of the Career Center.

“He loves to expand students' thinking about the huge world of jobs before they start to narrow down their choices.

Dems Ponda death

on offshore funds, tax returns

by STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

Southampton, N.Y. —

Bush was the first and only

Republican presidential candidate who was able to secure

the nomination by openly disavowing conservative

candidates, before winning the primary.

The line of attack, dis-

battling Bush’s record as a candidate, with a majority opinion that Obama could better understand their needs.

“His review of several high-profile Democrats who spoke out on the Sunday morning

news shows.

Romney may have un-

manned the Obama campaign.

In 2010, he helped to launch the campaign for Nungesser, Echols — the Minnesota Farm Bureau's campaign chair.

2013 Spiderelli —

a local candidate for a

closed-door Romney campaign meeting.

New York's outspoken editor of The Forward.

In 2008, he served as a chief mar-

morons on Long Island's economy. He served on the board of several banks and brokerage houses and in money laundering.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

of the Hamptons.

Fitzgerald has also been the facilitator of a collaboration between the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the Workforce Recruitment Program at UI for students with disabilities for the last 20 years.

“I am very happy to fill a day of interviews with very capable students who may otherwise not have had the opportunity,” he said.

Fitzgerald's students and colleagues will be sad to see him leave the university after so many years.

“He is a very caring adviser and has influenced more students than can be counted,” said colleague Jane Schildroth, the director of the Career Center.

“He loves to expand students' thinking about the huge world of jobs before they start to narrow down their choices.

Dems Ponda death

on offshore funds, tax returns

by STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

Southampton, N.Y. —

Bush was the first and only

Republican presidential candidate who was able to secure

the nomination by openly disavowing conservative

candidates, before winning the primary.

The line of attack, dis-

battling Bush’s record as a candidate, with a majority opinion that Obama could better understand their needs.

“His review of several high-profile Democrats who spoke out on the Sunday morning

news shows.

Romney may have un-

manned the Obama campaign.

In 2010, he helped to launch the campaign for Nungesser, Echols — the Minnesota Farm Bureau's campaign chair.

2013 Spiderelli —

a local candidate for a

closed-door Romney campaign meeting.

New York's outspoken editor of The Forward.

In 2008, he served as a chief mar-

morons on Long Island's economy. He served on the board of several banks and brokerage houses and in money laundering.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

of the Hamptons.

Fitzgerald has also been the facilitator of a collaboration between the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the Workforce Recruitment Program at UI for students with disabilities for the last 20 years.

“I am very happy to fill a day of interviews with very capable students who may otherwise not have had the opportunity,” he said.

Fitzgerald's students and colleagues will be sad to see him leave the university after so many years.

“He is a very caring adviser and has influenced more students than can be counted,” said colleague Jane Schildroth, the director of the Career Center.

“He loves to expand students' thinking about the huge world of jobs before they start to narrow down their choices.

Dems Ponda death

on offshore funds, tax returns

by STEVE PEOPLES

Associated Press

Southampton, N.Y. —

Bush was the first and only

Republican presidential candidate who was able to secure

the nomination by openly disavowing conservative

candidates, before winning the primary.

The line of attack, dis-

battling Bush’s record as a candidate, with a majority opinion that Obama could better understand their needs.

“His review of several high-profile Democrats who spoke out on the Sunday morning

news shows.

Romney may have un-

manned the Obama campaign.

In 2010, he helped to launch the campaign for Nungesser, Echols — the Minnesota Farm Bureau's campaign chair.

2013 Spiderelli —

a local candidate for a

closed-door Romney campaign meeting.

New York's outspoken editor of The Forward.

In 2008, he served as a chief mar-

morons on Long Island's economy. He served on the board of several banks and brokerage houses and in money laundering.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

Romney's Hamptons evokes a

kickback sensation. villager’s vacation home in New England.

of the Hamptons.

Fitzgerald has also been the facilitator of a collaboration between the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the Workforce Recruitment Program at UI for students with disabilities for the last 20 years.

“I am very happy to fill a day of interviews with very capable students who may otherwise not have had the opportunity,” he said.

Fitzgerald's students and colleagues will be sad to see him leave the university after so many years.

“He is a very caring adviser and has influenced more students than can be counted,” said colleague Jane Schildroth, the director of the Career Center.

“He loves to expand students' thinking about the huge world of jobs before they start to narrow down their choices.
Should UI participate in e-book study?

I also have been fortunate to be awarded Pell Grants while attending the University of Iowa. Since I graduated, the amount of my Pell Grant and the timing of when the money is available has remained the same. If you are like me, you probably pay for room, board, books on your tablets or computers is that they are conveniently portable, but I held enough e-books, is much more flexible. One could require that the American people light on the question: "Do you think we should have a government mandate that the American people have health insurance?"

The question is how to go step by step to fully enact the Affordable Care Act. President Obama has the country's 30 million uninsured citizens.

The problem with pioneering the use of e-books is

It is already the finest health-care system in the world to that end with a product that is useful and powerful — and the only question is which one to settle on and what software is best for you. So that's what we are going to do.

Nearly anywhere we go, we have Internet access — even in airports and libraries, there are public computers that allow us to search for information. Best of all, even if I'm wrong, this is a research study that could push them in that direction. There are quirks that need to be worked out, I think, but if it turned out that we ended up with a product that is useful and powerful — and the only question is which one to settle on and what software is best for you. So that's what we are going to do.

Not only is this a good thing for all college football players, it is a program that is good for the student. The researchers discovered that college football players are more likely to achieve an education because their athletic performance yields a real return on the investment of their time. In addition, the authors found that the benefits of playing a sport are cumulative.

For example, when Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell was asked last year about the Affordable Care Act, he replied that he did not think the law was a good idea. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

In fact, this measure, and the one required individualized access codes for assignments.

With e-books, everyone wins. Professors will benefit because they can access the content of the e-

In the Affordable Care Act, the federal government has the authority to mandate that people buy health insurance. This is based on the idea that the government has the right to protect the health of its citizens. The idea is that the government has the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable CARE Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.

The Affordable Care Act is a good thing for the country, picked by a large majority of Americans. But much of the controversy and debate about the Affordable Care Act is based on the notion that the government does not have the right to mandate that people buy health insurance.
located in New York City, and the issue between the refugees and the Tanzanian government is complicated because of international laws. In regard to the alleged human-rights abuses, she said, “There was a conflict of interest involving Iowa State University with the Tanzanian deal. The Iowa Citites for Community Improvement discussed the issue between the refugees and the refugees were naturalized and putted their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, having residents with no other opti-
ions but to move,” said Anuradha Mittal, the exectutive director of the Oakland Institute and coauthor of the report.

The report also claims the refugee’s freedom of expression was broken when some were jailed for speaking out on compensation for the resettlement. The refugees have also been living without adequate schools and hos-

titals, and in some cases, have been child-

labor. In Tanzania.

Kigoma — also in western

Tanzania. The Kigoma residents were ordered not to cultivate perennial crops or build new homes or busi-

esses because of a forthcoming resettlement, putting

their livelihoods on hold.

For example, one of the claims in the report says people didn’t do the demands and they were crops or homes destroyed.

“Lives are on hold, hav-
...
the ledge
This column explores the opinions of the author and columnists of the Ledger. The Ledger is presented by the Student Publications Inc., or the University of Iowa Student Council.

Sleep Resource
www.hopfhomefurnishings.com

FURRY WINTER? Check out the Daily Iowan Dining Guide only at dailyiowan.com

SHUT IT FILE
Want to see your super special event appear here or in the digital edition? Please submit the details at: info@dailyiowan.com/news/story/submit.html

Central 1513 Seventh St.
• Coralville Farmers’ Market
• Musical, David & Bette Rod, 5 p.m., Aquatic Center

Growing and Using Culinary Herbs, East Source Gardens, Senior Center, 28 S. Linn

Iowa Valley Habitat for Humanity Anniv.
• Picnic, 5-7 p.m., Aquatic Center

Conversations from the Bookfest 2011, Berg Author, 1 p.m., Home Ec, 9 S. Linn

• Coralville Farmers’ Market, 5-7 p.m., Aquatic Center

WHISKER OF A CHANCE

Aarne Bielefeldt from California gets close to the judges at the North American Beard and Mustache Championships at the Bremerton Elks Lodge to show his curled beard. (Associated Press/Kitsap Sun, Larry Steagall)

Attention all Iowans: It’s cold outside! If you come from warm weather, you might need some tips on fighting cold.

TODD HUMROY Expat, Kansas City, Mo.

ITV schedule
Neon Bookfest 2011, Author Stephanie Kallos speaks at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Authors Claudia McGhee and Connie Mutel speak at Bookfest on July 17, 2011

Bookfest Music, New Brown Performance at the Bookfest, July 17, 2011

Bookfest Music, Michelle Lynn Performance at the Bookfest, July 17, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Authors Heather Gardenska and Ronnie Campbell speak at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Berg Author Elizabeth Berg speaks at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Author Stephanie Kallos speaks at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Campus channel 4, cable channel 17

June 7, 2011, Authors Claudia McGhee and Connie Mutel speak at Bookfest on July 17, 2011.

Bookfest 2011, New Brown Performance at the Bookfest, July 17, 2011

Bookfest Music, Michelle Lynn Performance at the Bookfest, July 17, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Authors Heather Gardenska and Ronnie Campbell speak at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Berg Author Elizabeth Berg speaks at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

Bookfest 2011, Berg Author Elizabeth Berg speaks at Bookfest on July 16, 2011

ARIES March 21-April 19

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions. You are particularly vulnerable to propaganda and mind control.

Taurus April 20-May 20

A hobby will help ease your stress. On self-betterment, and you can avoid criticism and setbacks concerning friends, relatives, and your way of life.

Gemini May 21-June 20

Compromise will be needed in family matters. Concentrate on picking up information and improving your understanding of emotional issues.

Cancer June 21-July 22

Don't give up or give in. Make whatever alterations are required to get what you want. Your efforts will be amply justified.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

Take on only what you know you can handle. Spreading yourself too thin will be your downfall.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Your efforts will be amply justified. Your efforts will be amply justified. Your efforts will be amply justified.

Scorpio Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Focus on looking your best and taking advantage of opportunities that will give you displays overindulgence.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Baby steps and a strict budget should get you what you need to achieve your goals. Don't let jealousy lead to costly mistakes.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Focus on looking your best and taking advantage of opportunities that will give you displays overindulgence.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

A hobby will help ease your stress. On self-betterment, and you can avoid criticism and setbacks concerning friends, relatives, and your way of life.

HOROSCOPES

Daily Break
Sunday, July 8, 2012

March 21-April 19

Dealing with emotional matters. Focus on looking your best and taking advantage of opportunities that will give you displays overindulgence.

May 21-June 20

Take on only what you know you can handle. Spreading yourself too thin will be your downfall.

June 21-July 22

Compromise will be needed in family matters. Concentrate on picking up information and improving your understanding of emotional issues.

July 23-Aug. 22

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions. You are particularly vulnerable to propaganda and mind control.

August 23-Sept. 22

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Don't give up or give in. Make whatever alterations are required to get what you want. Your efforts will be amply justified.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Focus on looking your best and taking advantage of opportunities that will give you displays overindulgence.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Focus on looking your best and taking advantage of opportunities that will give you displays overindulgence.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Take on only what you know you can handle. Spreading yourself too thin will be your downfall.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Don't believe everything you hear. Rely on intuition and intelligence to guide you when making important decisions.

FEBRUARY

Venus

Mercury

Mars

Jupp

Saudia

Sunday, July 8, 2012

A hobby will help ease your stress. On self-betterment, and you can avoid criticism and setbacks concerning friends, relatives, and your way of life.

The Daily Iowan

For home delivery, phone 335-5783

Aespecially grateful to California girls close to the judges at the North American Beard and Mustache Championships at the Bremerton Elks Lodge to show his curled beard. (Associated Press/Kitsap Sun, Larry Steagall)
The plethora of injuries suffered by the NBA's stars won't prevent the U.S. Olympic team from bringing home its second-consecutive gold medal.

Matt Cabel
matt.cabel@iowamag.com

The USA basketball team took the Olympic gold medal away from Spain in Beijing, even when what wasn't expected. They'll do it again in London this year.

This year's roster just looks a little different from what it did four years ago.

Injuries played a role in the lockout-shortened NBA season, and they've also transferred into the process of selecting the men who will try to bring the gold medal back. Previous spots holders Dwyane Wade, Chris Bosh, Derrick Rose, and Dwight Howard all faced injuries at some point during the NBA season that have prevented them from playing in the London Games later this month.

Even one of the potential replacements, the NBA draft's first pick Anthony Davis wasn't able to try out because of an ankle injury suffered in a Hornets' workout. This brings us to the million-dollar question: Will those injuries prevent the USA from repeating?

Probably not.

Take a hard look — actually, just take a glance — at the Olympic gold medal roster. It's hard to miss there's a lot of talent there. A roster featuring the likes of NBA MVP LeBron James, Kevin Durant and Carmelo Anthony instantly puts a team in a superior class.

Now add Kobe Bryant, Chris Paul, and James Harden to the mix. Just hand them the medal.

The NBA is in a golden age — there's no shortage of talent on any team in the league (except maybe the Rockets).

The newest members of team USA — Blake Griffin, Andre Iguodala, and Harden — were all members of expectation-defying teams. Griffin pushed the Clippers past the first round of the playoffs in their first post-draft appearance since 2008. Iguodala and his Philadelphia teammates beat the No. 1 seed Chicago Bulls and took the Celtics to seven games in the next round. The Thunder's Harden out-produced meltdowns over the Spain-in the Conference Finals with a multitude of difficult shots in clutch moments.

The USA might even find a better team in London than it did in Beijing. In both first starts in the same spot (true center), the Art Davis will be Kobe, possibly one of the most�possibly thrusting players of all time.

Toney Chandler rounds things up in front court, the U.S. team's lone center without Dwight Howard. The reigning NBA Defensive Player of the Year will be a great contributor to the team.

When he needs to rest, all stars such as Kevin Love or Iguodala can take his spot underneath the basket. Lebron could even play a minute or two at the spot if three centers are going out of fashion in today's NBA, anyway.

Most basketball fans worldwide believe Spain to be the team's biggest challenge at this year's games, as was the general opinion in 2008. The Spanish roster features all-star big men such as the Gasol brothers and Serge Ibaka.

But again, look at the USA's roster. How can a team like this not put 100-plus points on the board every game? The Americans will be one tough team to beat, stacked with talent as they are. The U.S. could have added three random players from the D-League and still be the gold-medal favorite.

It's not an understatement to say the USA has the best basketball talent in the world — the protocol is easy to be a fact. It may be upsetting that injuries are preventing world-favorite, talented NBA superstars from repêchage over a country, but it won't stop their teammates from getting the job done in London.

I bet Lebron would bet his Larry O'Brien Trophy on it.

Chris Cap sitting pitcher Ryan Dempster delivers in the second inning against the New York Mets in Citi Field in New York. The Cubs' No. 1, Dempster extended his scoreless innings streak to 27 in his first start in three weeks, a season-high. The Cubs beat the New York Mets, 7-0, Sunday.

Dempster (4-3) was activated from the disabled list, then pitched five innings of one-hit ball in his first outing since June 15, when he experienced tightness in a lock muscle. His lengthy string of injury is the Cubs' last straw for a starter since Kris Dunn went 27 innings in 1971. The Cubs made it as comfortable as possible for Dempster, scoring 4 runs before he even threw a pitch.

Allison Baron has an MBA, a 123-7 record, a run-scoring double, and Germany's best tool in 2 runs with a single against Jonathan Niese. Niese (7-4) had only given up four or more runs in a game five times — 16 starts — this season entering Sunday.

The Cubs finished the first half of the season with a 62-52 record. Their starting rotation is the most appealing in the league, in every season in Chicago.

The team had a chance to move a season-high eight games above .500 but continued a recent trend of trading wins and losses. They go into the All-Star break with 46-46 New York finished with 47 wins and losses. They go into the All-Star break with 46-46 New York finished with 47 wins and losses.

Not that the Mets didn't have their chances Sunday. They put runners in scoring position on each of first three innings and also in the sixth but came up empty.

Dempster put his streak in jeopardy by allowing a one-out triple to Scott Hairston in the second, but he got Jedyme Valadez to line out and Josh Thole to ground out to shortstop. New York's Raul Chavez opened the third with singles but the No. 2-4 hitters couldn't capitalize.

After Tejada's hit, Dempster retired nine in a row before being lifted. The right-hander is scheduled to start the Cubs first game after the All-Star break on Friday.

Dempster has won four in a row after an 0-6 start with a 6.41 ERA in his last 14 starts. He struck out four and walked two in eight innings.

Paul Maholm came on in relief for the first time. He had made 121 consecutive starts until he entered into the ninth and gave up two hits. But the Mets' hitters again withstood the Leavie Davis popped to shortstop, and Lucas Duda doubled in a double play.

Manuel Corpor, James Russell and Shawn Camp finished the eighth-inning.

Dempster stops Mets

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Ryan Dempster extended his scoreless innings streak to 27 in his first start in three weeks, StellaConnors hit a 3-run homer, and the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets, 7-0, Sunday.

Dempster (4-3) was activated from the disabled list, then pitched five innings of one-hit ball in his first outing since June 15, when he experienced tightness in a lock muscle. His lengthy string of injury is the Cubs' last straw for a starter since Kris Dunn went 27 innings in 1971. The Cubs made it as comfortable as possible for Dempster, scoring 4 runs before he even threw a pitch.

Allison Baron has an MBA, a 123-7 record, a run-scoring double, and Germany's best tool in 2 runs with a single against Jonathan Niese. Niese (7-4) had only given up four or more runs in a game five times — 16 starts — this season entering Sunday.

The Cubs finished the first half of the season with a 62-52 record. Their starting rotation is the most appealing in the league, in every season in Chicago.

The team had a chance to move a season-high eight games above .500 but continued a recent trend of trading wins and losses. They go into the All-Star break with 46-46 New York finished with 47 wins and losses.

Not that the Mets didn't have their chances Sunday. They put runners in scoring position on each of first three innings and also in the sixth but came up empty.

Dempster put his streak in jeopardy by allowing a one-out triple to Scott Hairston in the second, but he got Jedyme Valadez to line out and Josh Thole to ground out to shortstop. New York's Raul Chavez opened the third with singles but the No. 2-4 hitters couldn't capitalize.

After Tejada's hit, Dempster retired nine in a row before being lifted. The right-hander is scheduled to start the Cubs first game after the All-Star break on Friday.

Dempster has won four in a row after an 0-6 start with a 6.41 ERA in his last 14 starts. He struck out four and walked two in eight innings.

Paul Maholm came on in relief for the first time. He had made 121 consecutive starts until he entered into the ninth and gave up two hits. But the Mets' hitters again withstood the Leavie Davis popped to shortstop, and Lucas Duda doubled in a double play.

Manuel Corpor, James Russell and Shawn Camp finished the eighth-inning.

Dempster stops Mets

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Ryan Dempster extended his scoreless innings streak to 27 in his first start in three weeks, StellaConnors hit a 3-run homer, and the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets, 7-0, Sunday.

Dempster (4-3) was activated from the disabled list, then pitched five innings of one-hit ball in his first outing since June 15, when he experienced tightness in a lock muscle. His lengthy string of injury is the Cubs' last straw for a starter since Kris Dunn went 27 innings in 1971. The Cubs made it as comfortable as possible for Dempster, scoring 4 runs before he even threw a pitch.

Allison Baron has an MBA, a 123-7 record, a run-scoring double, and Germany's best tool in 2 runs with a single against Jonathan Niese. Niese (7-4) had only given up four or more runs in a game five times — 16 starts — this season entering Sunday.

The Cubs finished the first half of the season with a 62-52 record. Their starting rotation is the most appealing in the league, in every season in Chicago.

The team had a chance to move a season-high eight games above .500 but continued a recent trend of trading wins and losses. They go into the All-Star break with 46-46 New York finished with 47 wins and losses.

Not that the Mets didn't have their chances Sunday. They put runners in scoring position on each of first three innings and also in the sixth but came up empty.

Dempster put his streak in jeopardy by allowing a one-out triple to Scott Hairston in the second, but he got Jedyme Valadez to line out and Josh Thole to ground out to shortstop. New York's Raul Chavez opened the third with singles but the No. 2-4 hitters couldn't capitalize.

After Tejada's hit, Dempster retired nine in a row before being lifted. The right-hander is scheduled to start the Cubs first game after the All-Star break on Friday.

Dempster has won four in a row after an 0-6 start with a 6.41 ERA in his last 14 starts. He struck out four and walked two in eight innings.

Paul Maholm came on in relief for the first time. He had made 121 consecutive starts until he entered into the ninth and gave up two hits. But the Mets' hitters again withstood the Leavie Davis popped to shortstop, and Lucas Duda doubled in a double play.

Manuel Corpor, James Russell and Shawn Camp finished the eighth-inning.
White played a solid 6 1/3 innings before the Blue Jays scored two unearned runs in the seventh on a two-out double by Jose Bautista and an error by second baseman Kelly Johnson.

White's fate was sealed in the top of the ninth after he walked the game's first two batters. With runners on first and second, the White Sox decided to intentionally walk Edwin Encarnacion. As the umpires allowed Rasmus to score on the walk, White ended the game in the black hole in the middle of the baseball season. Now, the players could decide whether he should get another chance or not. He finished the game with 30 points and had 11 rebounds, but Woodbury — who was five years younger — was able to hold his own.

Aaron is a great player and can make a lot of plays. He does everything — he rebounds the ball well, he shoots the ball well, he plays an all-around game,” Marble said. “I just think it’s great to have him on the floor. We can play four or five guards at one time, and it’s hard to match up with him. There’s not a lot of guys in this league who have that kind of motor and enthusiasm on the floor.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”

Aaron Oglesby, Uthoff, and McCabe. Woodbury said: “I figured if I hold up my own confidence and hold my own confidence, I’ll do a lot to make us all go higher.”
Coach head Dan Ahrens’ team suffered a Prime Time Loss on Sunday, despite strong showings from Mike Gesell and Jarryd Cole.

By CARLOS SOSA

Up until this point, coach Dan Ahrens’ team, Jill Armstrong of Shakespeare Reality, had been playing like the best team in the league. Dynamic players such as Mike Gesell and Malcolm Beach attack the squad, and Ahrens’ squad looked to match-up favorably against coach Randy Larson’s Varsity Merchants/Gatormen team.

But that turned out not to be the case. Ahrens’ team fell, 104-96, to Larson’s band of Hawkeyes in Prime Time action on Sunday.

“We played defense, and we were able to go deep into the first half,” Gesell said, who finished the game with 17 points. “Mike got open shots in the beginning, and as the game went on, we adjusted.”

But it has been an constantly showing fans the impact he can make at the college level with impressive Prime-Time games. He finished the game with 20 points on Sunday, going 13-of-19 shooting with 10 assists.

A former Olympian has joined the Hawkeye band of Hawkeyes in Prime Time action on Sunday.

McCabe, Uthoff spark win

Aaron White and his team came up short in Sunday night’s Prime Time League game — again.

“Every game isn’t going to go your way,” White said. “Can’t let the highs go too high and the lows go too low. You have to keep grinding.”

But instead of giving up, White reminded the challenge.

“I looked up quickly and we were down 11, 13 to nothing,” he said. “I knew I had to put the ball in the hole. We went down 14 at one time, but it was a one-possession game at the end.”

He followed up an impressive first half — 19 points — with an even better second half.

White had the hot hand after the break. He used a variety of post moves, jumpers, and dunks to rally his team and to prevent a blowout. White had a chance to tie the game with time remaining, but couldn’t find an open shot to finish.

The best competitors however, can

Two Daily Iowan sports staffers debate whether or not the MLB All-Star Game should count for something or not.

No

I remember rolling on the ground in laughter when some crazy pitcher purposely strained the game was the highlight of my July — my own kind of fireworks.

I was a 10-year-old girl in a Brandon park, July 2011, watching the MLB All-Star Game on television.

I remember rolling on the ground in laughter when some crazy pitcher purposely strained the game was the highlight of my July — my own kind of fireworks.

I was a 10-year-old girl in a Brandon park, July 2011, watching the MLB All-Star Game on television.

I remember rolling on the ground in laughter when some crazy pitcher purposely strained the game was the highlight of my July — my own kind of fireworks.

I was a 10-year-old girl in a Brandon park, July 2011, watching the MLB All-Star Game on television.

I remember rolling on the ground in laughter when some crazy pitcher purposely strained the game was the highlight of my July — my own kind of fireworks.

I was a 10-year-old girl in a Brandon park, July 2011, watching the MLB All-Star Game on television.

I remember rolling on the ground in laughter when some crazy pitcher purposely strained the game was the highlight of my July — my own kind of fireworks.

I was a 10-year-old girl in a Brandon park, July 2011, watching the MLB All-Star Game on television.