2nd District hopefuls to debate

Experts say this weekend’s debate isn’t likely to make a significant dent in public opinion.

By CADY NIELSEN

On the eve of three debates left in the 2016 election cycle, the 2nd Congressional District candidates continue to spar. However, it is unclear when or if the debates will be televised, as the two candidates are split over which kind of forum to use.

Budnick, the director of the Lora Center, and Justin Holme, an assistant professor of political science at the University of Northern Iowa, both agreed to debate, but Holme listed a number of conditions.

“I’ve been very impressed with your willingness to have a debate,” Holme said.

Leick, 25, is a major figure this weekend.

Both candidates said this because few people pay close attention to House races or watch election forums on the day before the only way the debate will make a significant impact is if it happens in concert with another event — particularly a presidential debate.

father’s, which meant the issue might be genetic.

“Joel has been dealing with his heart issues as long as he can remember,” Mulder said. “My husband and I have always known it might run in the family’s blood.”

Noah, Isaiah, and Elijah were all born with congenital heart defects. One of the boys was born with a ventricular septal defect and another with aortic stenosis. Noah had a heart transplant at the age of two.

“We’re all kind of diving into different things that we can do,” Kris Mulder said. “My husband and I played high-school and college sports, and we know the joy we get out of it.

“It’s been an adjustment for the whole family. Both Joel and I played high-school and college sports, and we know the joy we get out of it.”

In March of this year, the family was notified that Noah has a rare genetic defect called aniridia, a rare condition that causes the iris to be absent or highly pigmented. This condition can lead to various eye problems, including glaucoma and cataracts.

Joel, who is 15 years old, has aniridia, glaucoma, and a rare heart disorder called cardiomyopathy, a heart muscle disorder in which damaged heart muscle is gradually replaced by scar tissue and fat, increasing the risk of abnormal heart rhythms and weakening the heart’s pumping action.

The Kid Captain program highlights the stories of pediatric patients at the Children’s Hospital while introducing them to the field during high-school football games, along with their families. The program is a way for the kids and their families to feel connected to the broader community and to other patients who are facing similar challenges.

Residents have also been able to see the general results of the Carver College of Medicine’s research and successes. It’s a privilege to be a part of this institution and its research.

Jacqueline Lazier has a rare condition characterized by the absence of all or part of the iris. This also causes increased sensitivity to light. In addition to aniridia, she has glaucoma, which is increased pressure in the eyes that can lead to vision loss. In 1996, Lazier won the Indy 500 race, and because of a close personal connection with vision loss, he partnered with the Wynn Institute, a program called Race for the Cure.

“We have a house to have (the institute’s name) on the side of the racecar — because it is making breakthroughs that are changing histories,” Lazier said. “A kidney is just amazing the things that are happening in that building, and I’m very proud to do anything I can to help.

A lot has been said in regarding the issue of the USA Freedom Act and the Information Surveillance of Individuals Act (ISIA). There are many perspectives on this subject, ranging from those who support it to those who oppose it. However, it is important to remember that this act is intended to protect the security and safety of the United States. The USA Freedom Act aims to prevent further terror attacks and protect citizens from threats both at home and abroad. It is a comprehensive and far-reaching piece of legislation that is designed to enhance the government's ability to protect the country from terrorist attacks. It provides the government with the tools it needs to identify and apprehend potential threats, while also protecting the privacy and civil liberties of American citizens. The USA Freedom Act is essential to maintaining the safety and security of our nation and the world. It is a vital piece of legislation that should be supported by all Americans who care about the well-being of our country.

Deloitte presented two alternatives, the Col-

The University-wide model would centralize financial lines of author-

Iowa City Hospice shows off its new remodeling

The Iowa City Hospice hosted a public ribbon-cutting event Thursday, highlighting interior and exterior improvements to the building.

The job of Iowa City Hospice employees will involve making sure all the medical care and comfort take place in facilities that are up to date. In general, the hospice employees spend their time in the buildings, ensuring the renovation of the offices will give the facility the chance to grow, run more efficiently, and provide more welcoming space to patients and family members visiting.

Bruce Braley and Joni Ernst will meet on stage for the second time. The two disagreed on all of the issues now. "Debates have the potential to change the second debate, and officials don't follow up to where they left off in their last debate, including with interruptions, accusations, and downturns.

The biggest thing the television is doing is ensuring their emotions don't get the best of them — and if they don't, they may learn something from the ballot completely.

"I think the public will get fed up with you spend an hour arguing about chickens," Boatright said in regards to accusations against Braley which involved a lawsuit regarding his neighbors chickens. "You can't have a debate in which the happen.

While the post debate had too clear a winner — and in some cases, both candidates were cited as winners.

Braley and Ernst will be vying for Sen. Tom Hark.

The biggest issue now that the health care system is important for the overall health care," Feldman said.

Iowa’s rushing defense is still one of its best, but it’s something that’s always been a part of the team’s identity. The Hawkeyes have always been known for their solid run defense, and they’ve been able to consistently slow down opposing rushing attacks.

Despite being one of the top teams in the country in terms of rushing defense, the Hawkeyes have struggled in other areas this season, particularly on offense. This has led to inconsistencies in their performances and a general lack of focus on the field.

Homecoming

The Hawkeyes are coming off of a bye week and are looking to get back on track when they face off against the Hoosiers. The team has a lot of momentum and is looking to make a statement in the conference.

Griffin’s Play

Iowa’s No. 9 receiver, Brandon Smith, played a crucial role in winning the game against Nebraska. He caught 12 passes for 199 yards, helping the team secure the victory.

Hawkeye field hockey psyches up

“I honestly don’t really know how it started, but it’s something we’ve always done to get us ready and help us get focused.”

After several more passes and play of encouraging form their team, the Hawkeyes break ranks, hop over the end line, run to grab their sticks. All in all, the entire team takes about 10 minutes, but that’s all it takes to unwind from the start.

“I think we’d be a better team and a better unit that we do like to follow, and that’s what makes us Iowa field hockey. It’s something we’ve always done,” sophomore Stephanie Vandenberg said.

The team may have some traditions and rituals that we do like to follow, but that’s all it takes to unwind from the start.

Hawks up for Hoosier offense

Iowa defense has used the bye week to prepare for an up-tempo Indiana offense.

The typical thought is that a spread offense and passing go hand-in-hand. If this is so, then Indiana does not fit the script.

The Hoosiers have a fast-paced, pass-oriented offense. They space the field and put up plenty of points. But unlike most conventional spread offenses, Indiana’s is built on the running game.

More specifically, it’s built on running back Tevin Coleman.

Iowa has already faced its share of talented backs this season, but the Hawkeyes haven’t faced one with the unique offense Indiana possesses.

“That’s maybe a misconception about them is that they’re a throwing team,” Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said. “They throw the ball really well. They run it well. They’re tempo offense.”

Iowa’s bye week came at the perfect time for several reasons. The team had health concerns — specifically quarterback Jake Rudock. Also, with the announcement of the two-quarterback system, it gave the Hawkeyes a week to test the waters.

Even more, the bye week allowed Iowa more time to prepare for Indiana, which has proven difficult for other
