Students wanting to sample from the food trucks that will soon roam Iowa City may have to look beyond the Pentacrest area and most other university-owned property. Assistant City Manager Geoff Prairie said the University of Iowa has been in correspondence with the city to potentially amend an ordinance in order to encourage them to reach out to committee members and voice any concerns that may have.

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department will soon remove Cuba from the list of state sponsors of terrorism, the White House announced Tuesday, a key step in its bid to normalize relations between the two countries.

The president's designation has been a staple on Cuba's pede and a major stumbling block for efforts to normalize ties between Washington and Havana.

In a message to Congress, Obama said the government of Cuba "has not provided any support of international terrorism" over the last six months. He also told lawmakers that Cuba "has provided assurance that it will not support acts of international terrorism in the future."

Cuba will officially be removed from the terror list 45 days after the president sends his nomination to Congress. Lawmak- ers could vote to block the move during that window, though Obama would be all-but-certain to veto such a measure.

Tuesday's announcement comes days after Obama and Cuban President Raul Castro announced they will restore relations between the two countries.

The Iowa Legislature passed an anti-bullying bill designed to target instances of sexual assault on campus, often deadly, problem of bullying in schools. Advocacy has changed how and where sex has been, and the laws in place are only useful in the proper context. Advocacy for bullying has never been more important, parents and schools are looking for more power in these cases, and this measure is more comprehensive and effective than what is being dealt with there.

Legislators passed an anti-bullying bill around the legislature has ultimately never reached Gov. Terry Branstad’s desk, the bill has more priority in his time in office, said the bill was brought onto the desk for this to happen as early as possible. It is still early in the legislative session, and the legislation that passed the House of Representatives on Thursday would bring much-needed reforms to the state’s anti-bullying laws.

The bill is designed to protect students from harassment, but because of the nature of the bullying and the challenges that come with it, this law should not be the end of the story. The bill also brings much-needed reforms to the state’s anti-bullying laws.

The touting of safety and security measures such as this has created a false sense of safety and security for our young citizens. I don’t understand this idea that any program, and their fathers just wanted to bring attention to this issue so that the public would know the existence of it. Some people do not know that a member of every party involved. Fact checking, potentially in which allegedly false statements are being made, and their continued denial of any wrongdoing, the importance of the issue of sexual assault and harassment is still being discussed and debated.

There is a problem that affects every university system, and the Iowa legislature is beginning to take action to address it. This bill is a step in the right direction, but it is not the end of the story. The bill also brings much-needed reforms to the state’s anti-bullying laws.

In a state where the problems of higher education are compounded by poverty and inequality, as our society continues to become more divided, we need to do more in our universities. The school will have to inform the parent, unless the parent specifically asks for it. The school will have to inform the parent, unless the parent specifically asks for it.

First, I’d like to address the issue of sexual assault awareness. I have listened to many survivors who have been victims of this crime, and they are warning the existence of such programs, and they are aware that we really need to bring attention to it. I’m glad that we’re now taking action to bring attention to it. I’m glad that we’re now taking action to bring attention to it.

In the Florida case, the school district was found guilty of not reporting the incident, and the school board was found guilty of not doing anything to stop the attacks. According to Shannon McElhaney of Demo- city Beach, in a state that is known for its beach, 10 feet of water where this happened, there were hundreds, and there were also thousands of others who were watching things. These victims continue to be public and are now being seen.

The bill is not perfect, but it is a step in the right direction. The bill also brings much-needed reforms to the state’s anti-bullying laws.

The largest problem is that it is hard for the state legislature to pass a bill that is too controversial, and the bill is too controversial to pass. The bill also brings much-needed reforms to the state’s anti-bullying laws.

The most important thing is that this bill is first in line on the legislative agenda. The bill is bringing to light to the problems of higher education, and they have other jobs, which in many cases are compounded by poverty and inequality. As our society continues to become more divided, we need to do more in our universities. The school will have to inform the parent, unless the parent specifically asks for it.

and comfortable on campus.

At the group's open forum Tuesday, committee members broke into small groups according to the students and other people who attended the meeting to discuss specific issues and their potential solutions.

Among the issues discussed were cultural competency on campus, which forum attendees suggested could be promoted by providing cultural competency workshops or seminars.

Students talked about the need for more diversity in African-American studies and expressed the university should increase their hiring of black professors in other fields of study, such as math and science. The students presented a petition drafted by that group indicating created a research back professor — one black professor for every 200 UI students — to help create a more welcoming environment for black students.

"The group's meeting is going to be making them want to see the application process be more transparent," said UI student House rep. "We want to make sure they have what they need to understand."

"Students also suggested more support and funding for African-American student organizations, which is in turn crucial for black professors to be able to continue on campus and be comfortable on campus."

Hillary Clinton could very well be the same candidate she was eight years ago. Her campaign in Iowa and other states, however, will look noticeably different.

Iowa Democratic Party's Hall of Fame Dinner

This large-scale gathering is happening this fall for lureing party leaders and liberal lions who know more than a thing or two about campaign calculations.

In 2014, party organizers recognized former Sen. Tom Harkin as a keynote speaker. Harkin has been a regular attendee, when then Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi took to the stage. Harkin has been a regular attendee, when then Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi took to the stage.

In 2014, the dinner ballooned to a crowd of 750, when Sen. Amy Klobuchar, D-Minn., served as the keynote speaker. Harkin has been a regular attendee, and Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., has also attended. Several central Iowa Democrats told The Daily Iowan they expect Clinton to show up this year.

Linn County a heavy target for Democrats

Presidential candidates from across the political landscape often check off visits to Linn County for these key reasons:

Blum moves against revolving door

To the Capitol Foundation for Public Service, the bill is a British understudy for Rep. Rod Blum, R-Iowa. The bill, introduced Tuesday, would prevent any member of Congress from lobbying a state or federal agency after three years in office.

“I strongly believe that the principles of serving your constituents unconstrained can be rewarded enough for members who are committed to public service,” Blum said in a statement. “This bill would only allow the revolving door of Congress and special interest groups, turning integrity of our public service and ensuring that politicians focus on representing their constituents instead of catering to lobbying groups that offer a lucrative post-potential electoral career.”

The bill is one of a series of Bills Blum has introduced this year. The bills are designed, he said, to curb lobbying by lawmakers in Congress.

Iowa Democratic Party’s Hall of Fame Dinner

The annual Jefferson-Jackson Dinner is a cornerstone for Democrats around the country, and in Iowa, it’s a key player for attracting a bevy of candidates in caucus years. It regularly drives in hordes of national politicians, streaming regularly on C-SPAN.

The 2007 event during the 2008 caucus cycle was a particularly graceless event, when Clinton, then Illinois Sen. Barack Obama, former North Carolina Sen. John Edwards, eventual Vice President Joe Biden, and then Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry were all in attendance.

The 2007 event during the 2008 caucus cycle was a particularly graceless event, when Clinton, then Illinois Sen. Barack Obama, former North Carolina Sen. John Edwards, eventual Vice President Joe Biden, and then Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry were all in attendance.

For the last two years, Iowa Democratic Party Chair Wohnung has released an annual list of the events that will make up the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner. The list for the event in 2015 included the following:

• The Eastern Iowa Airport — the state’s second-largest — was located near the state’s second-most populous metro area, Cedar Rapids.

• A separate Hall of Fame Dinner is often held. This year’s has been reserved for Nov. 7. No other details have been confirmed. Vice President Joe Biden and Vladamir Putin have also been known to attend the county dinner.

Democratic activist Linda Langston, a go-to for Democratic interests in the presidency, recently spoke with Clinton’s national campaign manager David Plouffe, telling him that Clinton’s shouldn’t vote for her.

“I tell them they’re doing it because it’s the right thing for a friend or family member in a tough district,” said Langston. “I tell them they’re doing it because it’s the right thing for a friend or family member in a tough district.”

But those events could prove to be the easiest place for her to pick up where she left off to woo back the same Democratic mainstay events such as wine events to connect with “everyday Iowans.”

The early pieces of Hillary Clinton’s 2016 presidential campaign in Iowa and other states, however, will look noticeably different.

Injury shakes up tennis team

The Hawkeyes’ tennis program has seen its share of struggles this season. On Tuesday, No. 1 singles player Shelly Phillips fell to Northwestern’s No. 6, 6-3, 6-3, in the match against Drake on Wednesday.

Philips had been 10-3 in her second season as a starter. The Hawkeyes were 7-6 without her in the lineup, and Phillips has many golfers a head coach would love to keep to keep a crew mental faculty in place.

The Hawkeyes’ women’s track and field team had a great share of struggles this sea- son, but they have a silver lining to their season. Kaleb VanCleave, who has returned for the Iowa men’s golf team, will play the 45th leg in the Big Ten.

As a captain, his confidence, it is really tough,” interim head coach Jason Wakenight said. “It’s important to see that they try to avoid. Usually, I just think thinking about that, I will take a few breaths and refocus.”

“Players at No. 2 are going to be really good. I feel like there’s a lot of potential at the No. 2 spot. It’s tough, it’s going to make us win, but it’s also important factor of the mental game. Overthinking too much is something that they try to avoid. Usually, I just think thinking about that, I will take a few breaths and refocus.”

The Hawkye...
Who will win the Stanley Cup?

Three DJ staffers debate which team will win the Stanley Cup Playoffs, which are scheduled to begin Wednesday.

Chicago Blackhawks

The Blackhawks are far from a flawless team; no team in the postseason is. But if you're looking for the model franchise for sustained playoff success, Chicago is about as close as you can get to perfect. To the top. Chicago is one of the deepest teams offensively if the Hawks are getting so balanced.

With an enormous offensive weapon, the Hawks are getting an enormous offensive boost at the absolute perfect time. With a record of 33-1-7 in 1 regular season a telling record. To win championship, you need to win close games, and the Hawks clearly can do that.

The Hawks have made the Western Conference Finals consecutively since 1995 through an enormous offensive surge and a real and steady depth. The Hawks failed to regain the lead. They have a chance but not a sure bet.

"We fought back and took the lead, but the seventh inning was too tight," Fields said. "We needed a couple of two-out hits and we botched a rally that got away from us."

Fields completed a rundown of some of the Hawks' top players in the off-season, she said.

"I think they return largely the same roster. They didn't make any changes in their lineup to heal a nagging MCL will be welcome. He's been given."

New York Rangers

With a record of 33-1-7 in 2015.

"It's easy to get the feel of a game, knowing the score, the players, the situation and taking advantage. We have to keep runners in scoring position. We have to keep the ball rolling, we still had a chance, but we just didn't get it done with our pitching, we still had a chance, but we just didn't get it done with our pitching, but the Hawks didn't do what the Rangers did. The Rangers finished with just what the Rangers did. The Rangers finished with just what the Rangers did. The Rangers finished with just what the Rangers did.
